Top Korean Girl band BLACKPINK's ROSÉ has come up with her debut solo single, titled 'On The Ground'. The official music video premiered today on 12th March, at 2 p.m. KST. It is the title track of her first solo album, named "R". The music video is produced by Teddy, 24, and many other producers like Jon Bellion, Jorgen Odegard, ojivolta, etc. The music video features ROSÉ in various fashionable outfits and vibrant colors, starting with Black and Pink. Meanwhile, the fanatics are guessing whether it's a metaphorical link to her band, the pop track proceeds with a grunge-like ambiance with burning cars, falling chandeliers, fire, and flashes in an abandoned amusement park-like setting. The series of destruction is well balanced with creativity, aesthetic and soothing color palette. At the end of the video, The artist could be seen performing and levitating in a field full of white and pink flowers to the horizon.

Adele took the centre of the stage and left her fans in awe with her latest song 'Oh My God'

On Saturday Adele posted a sneak peek of her video 'Oh My God' in a red dress withholding a red apple in hand. The post created a sense of eagerness among her fans. Putting an end to the suspension Adele has released her new music video 'Oh My God' from her latest album 30. The surreal video has enthralled everyone. In the music video, there were shown multiple Adele, with a lot of stunning dancers, a burning chair, and a horse. The sensational artist has presented the video in a moody black and white visualization. The conceptual video has shocked everyone. This exquisite video has been directed by Sam Brown, who has worked with her previous video 'Rolling In The Deep'. The astonishing dance has added more aesthetic flavor to it. Being more proficient in power ballads this song has more effects than pop songs. She has surprised her fans not with the lyrics but with new experiments also. Plus the upbeat song has come into life with the powerful voice of the spectacular singer.

Along with the great thematic concept she has seen in the video in elegant gowns that has grabbed everyone's attention.

She hasn't clearly said anything about the song beforehand but the lyrics said it all.

The video has beautifully depicted her divorce from her husband Simon Konecki.

It is a visualization of her breakdown in her marriage and the rebirth after her divorce. The sultry video has set the stage on fire.

'Oh My God' is the second single off the album 30

. The first song was 'Easy on Me' which was released in October.

30 is being a remarkable album in the career of Adele as it became the top-selling album of the year in just three days of the release. Even it spotted No.1 in the Billboard 200. She released her first album in 2015, named 25. It is like marking her second album.

She has said in an interview that she wrote this album after her divorce, and it helped her to understand herself. It worked like a self-discovery to her.

Adele even said that, before she used to think that she knows herself enough but was proven wrong. Turning 30 with the album 30 made her realize many things that she didn't know.

It is just only beginning, there are a lot more that the star has planned for her fans and she is excited to release them.

Coachella Festival to be Headlined by Kanye West and Billie Eilish, SHM is also in contention

Kanye West and Billie Eilish are all set to headline the 2022 Coachella festival. Speculations also tell us that the Swedish House Mafia may also feature with them.

The festival is due to take place from the mid to the end of April in 2022 in its famous location of Empire Polo Ground in Indio, Calif. Concerns regarding the Omicron surge indicate a postponement for the fifth time as the Grammy awards were also shifted to a late date.

The Coachella festival has sold out all of its tickets, as it is the greatest music festival in North America. The 21st edition of the festival was due to happen in 2020 but it was postponed four times due to the pandemic. Although the initial headliners for this edition were Travis Scott, Frank Ocean, and Rage Against the Machine, Ocean moved his appearance to the next year in 2023, and Scott was removed for the Astroworld tragedy back in November.

The final announcement regarding the confirmation of performers is expected in a few days.

The dates for the 21st edition of the famous Coachella festival shifted from April to October in 2020, further to April in 2021, and then to October 2021 (unofficially rumored dates).

Goldenvoice refrains from any types of comments regarding the postponements of the festival to the media.

The plans for the festival this time are moving fast as the concert industry began returning the last summer. Various music festivals have already taken places such as Lollapalooza and Rolling Loud. Travis Scott's Astroworld in Houston was marred by the death of 10 people in the huge crowd due to asphyxiation and on the other hand, Drakeo The Ruler was murdered backstage, which is still a mystery.

Controversies were raised regarding the 2022 edition of the festival when it announced the dates on their Instagram page and people were more confused when it reversed from the previously implemented vaccination policy.

Multiple sources are speculating that Goldenvoice has taken this step for promoting the country-themed Stagecoach festival, which is due to take place right after the Coachella festival.

Justin Turk has been creating compelling songs which paved his path to Century Music Group

Justin Turk has been making music that is compassionate, free-flowing, and organic. He has shown interest in those topics that have a wide range of emotions. His songs are gripping, nostalgic, and supremely arranged. His career is on the verge of flying high and steadily with his ambitious songs that the potential as well. Hey Justin Turk, best wishes for your coming song 'Just In Time' with Century Music Group. After witnessing your previous song it is evident that this album is going to be very much dipped in soothing humane feelings that you convey fluently and flawlessly.

Q. Firstly which name would you like to promote and where are you from?

Justin Turk: Justin Turk is the name and I was born and raised in New Jersey and just currently moved to Florida.

Q. How old were you when you thought that music is the thing you want to pursue as a career?

Justin Turk: I was probably about 6 years old when I knew that this was what I wanted to do. As a child, I would play my cassette tapes on my Walkman player.

I'd pause them and rewind them trying to learn all the words. I also made my own poetry books out of scrap paper. The band "Hanson" hit the charts when I was about 7 or 8 years old. Seeing young kids around my age playing music was an eye-opener for me. I always thought if they could do then so could I.

From there I would sing and perform Kareoke at family parties or restaurants that my parents would take me to. When I was 12 my dad got me my first guitar from there I started my first band and at the age of 14 I already released multiple demos. I released my first full-length record when I was 16 with a band called Render Me Useless. I then released my first solo record in 2011.

Q. Who or what was the inspiration behind, that triggered your passion for music?

Justin Turk: I'm not sure where the inspiration came from. It was always just a part of me. My parents are big-time music lovers. Neither of them is a musician but I guess their love for music rubbed off on me. They have always been huge supporters in my music career. Having that kind of support from your parents can be a huge inspiration.

Q. Can you share some memories that you have that are associated with this Album 'Just in Time'?

Justin Turk: My son was born in 2019 right around the time I signed with Century Music Group. I had to write songs for the new EP but the only time I got the chance was when I put him down for a nap.

Even then I would have to play really low so that I wouldn't wake him up. I have so many demos of these songs with him crying in the background because I woke him up from his nap. I have pictures of him in my guitar case watching me play.

Q. Tell us more about the genres that you follow? Or are you willing to try and make songs from other genres which you haven't tried yet?

Justin Turk: I don't really follow a genre. The songs just kind of end up in the genre that they are. I'm not a country fan and as much as I try not to be country my songs always end up having country elements to them. It's just how I write my songs. I am very versatile though. I emerged from the hard rock music scene of New Jersey.

I use to headbang and scream into a microphone. I've made pop songs and worked with rappers in the past as well. Fans expect a certain sound though and although I can write songs in any genre I still need to maintain that brand.

Q. Apart from Century Music groups with whom you have worked before?

Justin Turk: I use to be a featured artist for Conquer Entertainment. I also worked with celebrity vocal coach "Cari Cole" in one of her artist development programs.

Q. Tell us about the songs of this album what inspired you to make these beautiful numbers?

Justin Turk: In 2017 I had a life-changing experience at a native American church where they worked with a Sacrament called ayahuasca. This really opened my eyes and allowed me to see life in a new way.

I became more mindful of my thoughts and actions. I switched to a vegan diet and started focusing on my health. I developed morals for a better way of life. This carried over to my songwriting. I started to write more inspirational, positive, and uplifting lyrics.

Q. According to you which one is the best song that you have composed in your career by far and why?

Justin Turk: My personal favorite is "There's no Use in Complaining" the song is a lot of fun and it came out exactly how I imagined it would. I think the best out of the four would be Passion. The song has strong lyrics and it really expresses the message that I am trying to get out there.

Q. What triggered you to leave performing with bands and you started performing solo?

Justin Turk: I honestly just got sick of being the only one in the band that did all the work. I wrote the lyrics, I came up with the arrangements, I scheduled the rehearsals, I scheduled studio time, I booked all the gigs, I promoted the gigs, I invested the most time and money out of anyone in the group.

I was tired of having to hound other band members to show up on time or to help sell tickets. The biggest challenge was maintaining band members. It's much easier when the band works for you opposed to trying to work with the band. Especially when the band expects you to carry all the weight. I tried joining other groups but I had similar issues. It just made sense to go solo.

Q. What are your views on the other musician who is making songs in the same genre as you are, Pop Rock Folk?

Justin Turk: I think pop-folk is really starting to make a comeback. Especially with artists like The Lumineers who are really just crushing the charts and creating a buzz for the genre in the ears of the mainstream. I love how personal the genre is. Anyone can really tune in and relate to the songs.

Q. What's next we should expect from you in future singles solos, more albums, or collaborations?

Justin Turk: Well hopefully things go well. I'm getting older and the industry is getting harder. Like the flip of a coin, this EP will either be my ticket to a more sustainable career or it will be my last hoorah.

The Weeknd with his extensive range of musical aura that shallows the whole music industry within a fraction of a second

The Weeknd is identified as a brand now. From his fashion sense to his elevated musical aura he is brilliant with his form of art. Each of his songs has relevant meaning and indulging tonal quality. Whatever he tries from his exquisite singles, mixtapes to this newly launched brilliant album of this week, he exceeds himself each time with flying colors. His music has made the world come to its knees and offer its utmost love for this immense talent. He has received several awards in his musical journey. and have received an incredible amount of respect and admiration that he received for his music.

Beginning of 'The Weeknd'

Abel Makkonen Tesfaye was born on February 16, 1990, in Toronto, Ontario, Canada. He was an only child of their parents.

But as they got separated he started to live with his grandmother and mother in Scarborough since he was only six. He started smoking marijuana when he was just eleven and later on he used several drugs. In 2007 he dropped out of his school and moved to Parkdale, Toronto. In August 2009 he started uploading anonymously on YouTube. On the next year, he met Jeremy Rose a producer who produced three of the songs sung by Tesfaye. In December 2010 he released those songs, 'What You Need', 'Loft Music', and 'The Morning' on YouTube with the name 'xoxxxooxo'. These songs were mentioned in a blog post from Drake and respectively received coverage from several major media.

The path towards 'The Weeknd'

In 2011, he co-founded the XO record label with Wassim 'Sal' Slaiby and Amir 'Cash' Esmailian and along with Taylor. On 21st March, Tesfaye released his debut mixtape 'House of Balloons', which was appreciated by a huge number of people. These were shortlisted nominees for the 2011 Polaris Music Prize. On August 18th, he released his second mixtape 'Thursday' which received generally positive reviews from everyone. His third mixtape, 'Echoes of Silence' was released on 21st December. This mixtape was also met with critical acclaim. In July 2011, he held his first tour and also his first live performance at the Mod Club Theatre. After this performance, Drake met Tesfaye for future collaboration. And Tesfaye was landed with several Drake's shows and also contributed to four songs of Drake's 'Take Care' and a featured artist in 'Crew Love'

The Weeknd

In April 2012 Tesfaye began his first international tour, including a performance in Bowery Ballroom in New York City. This received positive appreciation. His performances in Spain and Portugal have made his path smoother. Later on, in September he signed with Republic Records. On 13th November 2012, he released a Trilogy with remixed and reexamined versions of his previous tracks with additional three songs. This trilogy took him to rank four of the U.S. Billboard 200 with first-week sales of 86,000 copies. And this took him to the platinum club and double platinum as well. And his 'Kiss Land' also received proclaiming positive remarks from overseas. And later on, he added three singles to this album, 'Belong to the world', 'Love in the sky', and 'Live for' featuring Drake. And since then there was no looking back for him.

The Weeknd and more

His R&B single 'Earned It' from the film Fifty Shades of Grey has won him a Grammy and was also nominated for the Academy Award for Best Original Song. He also contributed to the soundtrack of The Hunger Games: catching Fire in the songs 'Devil May Cry', 'Elastic Heart', along with Sia and Diplo. In 2014 Tesfaye remixed Beyonce's single 'Drunk in Love'. He collaborated with Ariana Grande in 'Love Me Harder'. Later on, he released 'My Dear Melancholy' in 2018 and later on in 2020 'After Hours'. And his latest released album 'Down FM' has been appreciated vastly. Jim Carrey has recited in this album. This album has several brilliant songs that include, 'Less Than Zero', 'Take My Breath', 'Gasoline', 'and Sacrifice', 'I heard you're married', 'Gasoline'.

He is a great singer and songwriter who has delivered some incredible songs throughout his journey. He is supremely well arranged with his musical form. The genre has gained a brilliant singer since his debut. His life has matured his form of music. And will have an extensive musical journey ahead. His music is grooving and his narration has always been concrete and constructive. His initial songs did not have a lot of raps. He included Rapping style along the way and mastered the art with complete dedication. He is overly talented and his journey will inspire generations of musicians who have nothing else but eyes full of dreams. He is honest he is hard working, his charismatic aura has gripped much attention and his songs have been enjoyed thoroughly by the world. The sweetness of his voice adds up the flavor of joy to his songs. The honesty of his storytelling is also very addictive.

The celebrated storyteller Subhash Ghai is making his debut in music composing with Zee5's movie '36 farmhouse'

India's one of the most celebrated and talented moviemakers Shubhas Ghai is setting foot in music composing for the first time, with Zee5's original movie 36 Farmhouse. This movie is directed by Ram Ramesh Sharma and produced by Mukta Searchlight Films and Zee Studios. The veteran filmmaker has also written the lyrics of the songs. And his admirers are eagerly waiting for his next venture. In a very classic way he launched the music of this movie on Zee TV's famous and one of the longest-running reality shows Sa Re Ga Ma Pa. in presence of Himesh Reshammiya, Vishal Dadlani, and Shankar Mahadevan the music was launched.

The first song 'Mohabbat' is a sweet romantic song sung by the melodious singer Sonu Nigam. This song tells a story in form of remembering several charming moments with your loved ones. The second one is the catchy number 'Mind Your Business' sung by extremely talented singer Hariharan. This is a quirky and unconventional song that pictures Sanjay Mishra. Subhash Ghai has prominently recreated the magic that 90's songs used to have in his debut album. The magic that Subhash Ghai's movies and stories used to have, musical movies like Pardes, Taal, he recreated that experience with his newly released songs.

The ensemble cast of this movie includes Sanjay Mishra, Vijay Raaz, Amol Parashar, Barkha Dutt, Flora Saini, and Ashwini Kalsekar, and many others. This movie highlights the disparity between the rich and the poor in a satirical form. This comedy-drama portrays the vivid message that some steal for need and some steal out of greed. Subhash Ghai said, 'We launched the music of 36 Farmhouse on Sa Re Ga Ma Pa show and the response we received from - my friends, Himesh, Vishal and Shankar, the contestants and the audience members - made me feel overwhelmed and is what keeps me going' About the music launch.

He further added, 'I tell stories and write and compose songs for my passion but without the love from my fans, all the efforts would mean nothing. So, I am glad that even after all these years, the fans still want to see more from me. I hope that they love and appreciate my OTT debut too and I am looking forward to seeing these songs climb the charts soon'.

Yet the fans are thrilled to see him excelling in music composing. But all are waiting to see him back on his director's chair.

The star cast of the song is complimenting each other. Talented artists Mohsin Khan and Heli Daruwala have given remarkable work that has enhanced the video more.

Both the artists have achieved to showcase their talent and convey the story beautifully. Their performances have enhanced the achingly beautiful song. Along with that the location and visualization have added a special element to it. The song has been dropped on Indie Music Label's YouTube channel. It is going to be a wonderful experience for the listeners too. There are not a lot of songs like this, so it is going to make a deep impact on listeners.

It is just the start of the year, there might be a lot more that the audience can expect from the singer. Till then enjoy the mesmerizing song.

SARANGI - A FRETLESS, BOWED STRING INSTRUMENT REVIVING FOLK NOSTALGIA OF NORTH INDIA

Sarangi, the Indian Classical musical instrument is bringing all the melody and further expanding its legacy in the Indian classical music industry.

Form Factor

Sarangi is a musical instrument, which is bowed, and short necked in nature. It is a small instrument, which is two and a quarter feet high, with three main parts consisting of the main body and resonator, the neck and the peg box. It has three main playing strings made of gut and a drone metal string. It consists of 36 sympathetic strings, which run under the main strings. The instrument has a roughly rectangular shaped and slightly waisted body and broad fretless neck generally carved from a single piece of wood.

Playing Sarangi

The musician who will be playing the instrument has to be seated, holding the instrument against his/her left shoulder in a vertical position and will play the instrument with an arched bow held in an underhand grip in their right hand. Cuticles present in the Sarangi in the left hand of the musician can be pressed against the strings for different sounds and coming up with specific pitches. The unique bowing technique of the instrument enables a Sarangi player to produce continuous 'Meend' and 'Gamaks', making it a popular accompanying instrument.

The Sarangi is played mostly in traditional music in several parts of India. To be precise, Punjabi folk music, Rajasthani folk music and Boro folk music implements the usage of Sarangi in their culture. The instrument is also quite popular in the neighboring countries of Pakistan and Bangladesh. The Sarangi is famous within traditional music genres as it possesses the capability to imitate human voice with the help of its vocal ornaments 'Gamaks', which refer to the shakes in a voice and 'Meend', which refer to the sliding movements.

History

The name of the instrument is highly influenced and one can say that it is derived from the bow of Lord Vishnu as the instrument is played in a bowing position. The word in the name of the instrument has a larger significance as it represents three melody strings. The most common folk etymology discusses that the word Sarangi is derived from 'Soi Rang', which refers to a hundred colors. It goes on to point towards the fact that a Sarangi is capable of producing vocal music of many styles, hence, proving its flexible tenability and also its ability to produce a large palette of tonal color and emotional nuance.

Facts of a Sarangi Musician

It has been widely observed that musicians performing with a Sarangi are closely associated with vocal music. While doing a performance with a solo Sarangi, it includes a full scale 'Raag' presentation with an extensive 'Alap' with an ever-increasing intensity and various compositions with increasing tempo known as 'Bandish'.

Music enthusiasts from around the world have come across many Sarangi players and have observed the fact that it is very rare to find a Sarangi player unaware of the words of classical music compositions. The words of classical music compositions are generally present during the musician's performances, which includes the types of elaboration, its organizational structure, and tempo, the relationship between the sound and the silence and its presentation of 'Khyal' and 'thumri' compositions. The vocal quality of the music instrument Sarangi falls under a different category than that of a 'Sitar', which tries to imitate the nuances of 'Khyal'.

Renowned Personalities

India is blessed with several famous Sarangi players who have always performed with their heart and soul and has left a mark in the Indian classical music industry. Some of the famous Indian music artists who performed with Sarangi as their main musical instrument are Sultan Khan, Sabri Khan, Aruna Narayan, Dhruba Ghosh, Ramesh Mishra and many other renowned Indian musical artists.

Popular Indian musician, vocalist and Sarangi player Ustad Faiyaz Khan has provided with his personal insights praising the Sarangi as a popular accompanying instrument as he went on to state the fact that he has been playing Sarangi from his earlier days of childhood. He shared his experience after his father's death when he ultimately realized and decided of going on with his family tradition and met his guru Pt. Ram Narayan and Ustad Lateef Khan belonging from AIR Bhopal.

The musician also went to state the legacies of some famous musicians from the 20th century in the form of Bundu Khan and went on to mention the names of Ghulam Sabir, Shakur Khan and Gopal Mishra. The musician also went to explain that in order to learn playing a sarangi, one has to listen to it closely and connect with his or her own thoughts.

Sarangi is a trademark Indian classical musical instrument, which will further expand the legacy of Indian classical and folk music. Artists from around the world are inspired by Indian classical music. Like any other musical instruments, Sarangi has its own style, charisma, emotion and its personality because music is all about emotion and instruments are played to portray it.

present society. This album offers tracks like 'I heard you're married' which feature Lil Wayne is very melodious. 'Less Than Zero', 'Take My Breath', 'Gasoline', and 'Sacrifice' are very well-made songs offered in this album.

'A Tale by Quincy' offers a poem with a terrifying story delivered that is completely soaked with humane sufferings. 'Phantom Regret by Jim' is another poem with some heartfelt lines. 'How do I make you love me?' is also investing number with the tingling feeling of admiration. The piece of Quincy Jones is also impressively enthralling.

As the title says the album is released in form of a radio program along with the classic way of representing songs. A Cover photo of him with a convincing old man makeup gives the album a more authenticated aura. This album offers a journey that will take you along an old dusty memory lane that essentially evokes self positivity. The voice-over by Jim Carrey as a Radio Jockey, the poems recited by him have given the album the maturity of ecstasy. The assuring voice of Jim Carrey saying 'we'll be there to hold your hand and guide you through this painless transition' just before the second track 'Gasoline'. The quirk and wit of Jim Carrey combined with the truthfulness of Abel Tesfaye, The Weeknd have made this great concoction of melody. The year has just started and already gained a great album like this one.

Billie Eilish

American singer Billie Eilish's new music video, 'Billie Bossa Nova' bring people up close with her emotions

One of the greatest pop artists today Billie Eilish has released an ecstatic music video for her single, 'Billie Bossa Nova' from the album, 'Happier Than Ever'.

American singer-songwriter Billie Eilish has released the music video for her single, 'Billie Bossa Nova' on January 13th worldwide. The song is the third track from her second studio album, 'Happier Than Ever', which was released on July 30th, 2021. The singer shared an acoustic performance video of the track teaming up with her brother Finneas back in December last year. The short video clip was a part of a Gucci promotional campaign and was directed by Phillip Andelman. She has finally released her own version of the song in the recent full-length music video.

The music video already received more than 1 million views on YouTube, released only a few days ago. Her silky voice fused with her incredible presentation make the music extremely ethereal, taking it to another level. The song had been a standout on the album ever since it was released last year. She has tried to do something new with the song. She has avoided replicating what she did in her previous works and brought in a completely new approach to music-making. The acoustic guitar of her brother Finneas has added a brilliant element to the track, making it one of her finest.

The song features her trademark whispering which has become more powerful and robust with her emotional strength. Her voice has an amazing sense of intimacy that connects with the listeners on a higher level, making them feel her emotions accurately. The music video is part of her live performance series and it is the final performance of the series. It is shot in the Crystal Ballroom of the Biltmore Hotel in Los Angeles and directed by Kyle Goldberg. The fans are highly excited to see the performance and have been flooding the comment section with how much they like her singing and the aesthetics of the video.

The other songs in the live performance series are 'Your Power', 'Male Fantasy', and 'Lost Cause'. The taunting knowingness in her singing is what makes her music different from others. But her whispers are stronger and more expressive than before. The track, 'Billie Bossa Nova' is much more mature and relatable to the audience. The retro yet trip-hop rhythmic cadence intermingled with her soothing singing makes the live performance shine brighter.

In 2019, at the age of only 17, Billie Eilish astonished the world with her mind-blowing debut album, 'When We Fall Asleep, Where Do We Go?' it was a blockbuster and made her a pop sensation overnight. Now at 19, she has a total of seven Grammy Awards under her belt. Her sophomore album, 'Happier Than Ever' is an absolute masterpiece with the artist herself breaking all her own boundaries. The album is available online.

‘We Don’t Talk About Bruno’ is perhaps bringing back the Lin-Manuel’s trick in ‘Hamilton’

Disney Animation’s latest movie ‘Encanto’ has mesmerized the audience and what took over the world is its title track ‘We Don’t Talk About Bruno’. The track is currently busting the top charts while offering listeners a multi-genre musical approach. Audiences are quite familiar with this approach as Lin has already done that before in a previous project by Disney named ‘Hamilton’.

Composer and versatile performer Lin-Manuel Miranda has successfully encapsulated his creative aura in this track which is reaching new heights. In the movie ‘Encanto’, the song is sung by a variety of characters addressing a prophecy-telling character named Uncle Bruno.

‘We Don’t Talk About Bruno’ is referred to as the curse of misfortunes given by Uncle Bruno, yet the track shows good fortune with its record-breaking appearance in the top charts. It has even defeated ‘Frozen’s worldwide famous track ‘Let It Go’ which has been reigning in the Billboard 100 from 1995.

Lin-Manuel did not compose the track but also contributed much to crafting the overall story of ‘Encanto’. The artist has previously written many tracks for Disney animation pictures, like ‘How Far I’ll Go’ from ‘Moana’; another popular number in the history of animation movies.

Disney has previously featured the musical project ‘Hamilton’ by Lin-Manuel where he showed an ample amount of the creative aura. Expanding his relationship further with Disney, the artist is looking forward work on more projects in the coming days that can win the hearts of listeners around the world. He is also being asked to compose for the upcoming live-action movie ‘The Little Mermaid’ movie by Disney.

Hamilton is perhaps one of the most critically acclaimed projects

Miranda that showed his ability to work with an array of musical genres.

His versatile nature and a great sense of original music allow him to work with a variety of music genres and styles. Dabbling among pop, hip-hop, R&B, soul, and many other genres, Lin-Manuel is capable of creating a smooth and groovy polyphonic composition by fusing all the genres together.

This amalgamation of flavors captivates a broader range of audiences around the world. Hamilton becomes a successful project with this trick of fusion. Similarly, the latest track ‘We Don’t Talk About Bruno’ also offers a blended essence of different regions and genres.

The tropical flavors along with modern music improvisations make the track dynamic, diverse, and organically enjoyable.

Animation movies are taking a bigger place in the music industry as well.

Lil Squid shows his brilliance in the hip-hop genre with the song 'Atl Anthem', available on Apple music

Lil Squid has been quite versatile throughout his song 'Atl Anthem'. The song is one of the very few hip-hop performances of recent times, available on Apple Music.

There are a number of songs for hip-hop lovers to add to their playlist. The songs of the artist Lil Squid are some of the best hip-hop songs made in recent times. The songs have captured the essence of hip-hop music. If you want to feel the real spirit of hip-hop music, the songs are going to make you feel amazed. The song 'Atl Anthem' is one of the modern hip-hop songs that has been enriched with the artist's catchy melodic voice, groovy music and beat in the background, and unmatched energy of the artist. With his passion and emotion in the song, it has become a unique piece of music within the known boundary of hip-hop.

However, the artist has played perfectly with his voice. To make the song one of his best compositions till now, he extends his limitations and becomes versatile. The term "well-rounded" is justified for the song as Lil Squid has given his best to make the song glorifying of the genre, musically and lyrically. Rap is indeed the main part of the song.

It showcases a good use of poetic techniques and rhetoric. Besides, the artist has sung in a manner that can draw your attention. So, listen to the song 'Atl Anthem' on Apple Music.

And follow him on Instagram. It is noted that a glimpse of the song 'What You Saying' of his upcoming album is uploaded on his profile.

Kanye West, Harry Styles, and others the latest celebrity entrants set a high excitement for Coachella 2022

Coachella Valley Music Festival is going to take place this year in April. Music eminences like Kanye West, Harry Styles, and Billie Eilish are conformingly in for the festival taking place between 15 to 17th April and 22 to 24th April in Indio of California.

Some other notable music personages are going to perform at the festival like Lil baby, Doja Cat, Megan thee Stallion, Ari Lennox, Phoebe Bridgers, and others. However, rapper Travis Scott is out of Coachella 2022 lineup due to the Astroworld Music festival controversy.

Travis was previously scheduled for Coachella 2022. However, he had to take his name out for the ongoing controversy of the Astroworld Festival as the mishap caused 10 deaths and hundreds of injuries. The organizers of the festival told Travis Scott to remove his name from the list and paid him a cancellation fee, according to the report of a renowned newspaper.

Last August the Coachella co-founder Paul Tollet announced that Travis Scott and Rage Against the Machine would be on the lineup for the festival as these two had set to the headline in 2020 before the postponement due to Covid.

Due to the pandemic-stricken two years, Coachella was postponed and canceled multiple times. However, this year the makers are optimistic and want to make it bigger and grandeur.

The festival was originally scheduled for spring 2020. Due to Covid restrictions, it was postponed to October 2020 and later it was delayed to April 2021. Eventually, the makers had to cancel it keeping public welfare and safety in mind.

It was reported that Coachella and Stagecoach both would not require any proof of vaccination and it had allowed a negative Covid 19 test report within 72 hours of arrival on the spot. However, the policy goes against the previous one put by the festival's parent company.

The festival organizers at Goldenvoice were reached out to ask if the safety measures can be revised in light of the massive spread of the new variant omicron.

Nonetheless, the joining of popular and eminent music figures makes people excited about the Coachella festival 2022.

But, the spread of Omicron in the major parts of the world, and the looming threat of the arrival of any new variant, dwarfing to some extent the expectations of the organizers, and excitement of the people who have been waiting for this for more than two years.

The latest album 'Drip Season 4Ever' by the hip-hop eminence Gunna is highly recommended to every hip-hop music lover. Catch it on Spotify exclusively.

Hip-hop artist Gunna has arrived with his latest album of 2022 'Drip Season 4Ever'. The Hip-hop music genre has always been under scrutiny of many orthodox music stereotypes. However, the artists of the genre have never taken the format for granted.

With their understanding of music and skills harnessed, rappers from different ties have made this genre one of the most popular genres of all time. Nevertheless, the efficiency and intent of the hip-hop genre are by no means lower than any of the other genres.

The album has 20 songs, and each of the songs signifies each aspect of the album.

All the 20 individually are sufficient enough in depicting the deeply-rooted understanding of the music of the singer. The album begins with the song 'Private Island'.

The song despite being a rap has some melodic and smooth touches that make listeners engaged with the song. Another prolific example of hip-hop is 'poochie gown' It has an addictive tune in the background upon which the voice of the rapper Gunna feels like a perfect combination. Some other tracks like 'thought I was playing', 'how you did that, and some others. In some songs, he has collaborated with various artists. And all the songs are creative and praiseworthy. Gunna has been natural with each song and his dealing with every song so simply makes the album a genuine and authentic piece of music.

The main characteristic of the album is its natural effort to impress the listeners. No-heavy bass, very calm and groovy music in the background, rap with melody bring the songs as some easy-going and soothing songs.

Without putting much musical complexity and loud bass, the artist provides a delightful mood of vacation. Moreover, A bit of romanticism can also be felt by the listeners in the songs.

The most powerful and beautiful element of his songs is his rap. The rap of the artist is indeed worth remembering. With each line the rapper creates magic. He as a songwriter and a rapper played both roles with subtleties.

Moreover, he uses poetic techniques so skillfully that they involuntarily enhance the overall impact and beauty of the songs. The rhetoric used in the songs enhances the quality and adds some qualitative layers to the songs.

So, all together makes the album a pure piece of music that brings joy to the soul of each listener. So, without any doubt or conflict 'Drip Season 4Ever' is recommended for every music lover.

A BRIEF HISTORY OF CELLO AND SOME INTERESTING FACTS

Cello is a classical music instrument that is a significant part of any orchestra, paving the way for musicians to implement classical music into modern music.

The Cello is a bowed instrument that has four strings and is the closest cousin of the violin. It is one of the most sophisticated musical instruments in human history. For hundreds of years, it has been gracing us with its warm and blissful sounds, which are a lot closer to the range of human pitch. It has been used as both solos and in orchestras mostly in Western music for decades. Though it is a well-recognized instrument, the history of how it came to be is quite interesting.

The invention:

In ancient times before the A.D., people used stringed instruments such as harp for music. The first versions of the cello were introduced at that time and the bow was included after that. In the thirteenth century paintings, there is picturization of early forms of violins, which later evolved from the Byzantine-Greek lira and rebec. These instruments were gradually divided into two parts based on their methods of playing. The viola de braccio meant arm and viola de Gamba meant leg. Viola de gamba was the most preferred instrument and liked by the aristocrats. But the violin family of today all originated from the viola de braccio design.

In the first half of the sixteenth century, the renowned violin makers of Europe started creating an instrument that became the modern cello. People like luthiers Andrea Amati, Gasparo da Salo, and Paolo Maggini hold the credit for the first violin designs, which were then called violone. The instrument then was much bigger and larger than its modern counterpart mostly because the lower pitches were hard to accomplish unless the instrument was large in size.

More solidified design:

The instrument featuring F2, C3, G3, and D4 tunings were mostly as large bass instruments as long as 2'8" long or as small as 2 and a half-inch short. The metal wound strings invented in 1659 made the existence of these instruments.

Between 1700 and 1710, the interest in reducing the size of the instrument increased and we are left with the modern-day cello.

The cello made by Antonio Stradivari has the size of the modern cello. After 1710, he was making cellos that were between the two original sizes. In Europe, luthiers followed his design, and many modern cellos are designed this way. Bach's Six Suites was the first major work written for the instrument. The change in the design of the cello continued during the 1800s and the early 1900s. The most recognizable change that was made is the endpin rod which helps with the balance.

Modern cello:

Cellos are highly popular even today. It has been used in several musical genres due to its exceptional acoustic flow. The subgenre of rock, cello rock has a massive fan following featuring gothic music with a touch of classical music.

They are part of most of the symphony orchestras with more than eight cellists. They are a critical part of the orchestra providing great support to other instruments. People also play solo in various events. In cello concertos, a solo cello performance is followed by an orchestra. Many such solos are composed by iconic composers like Bach, Haydn, Dvořák, Vivaldi, Boccherini, and more. Some of the greatest cellists of all time are Mstislav Rostropovich, Yo-Yo Ma, Jacqueline du Pré, Pablo Casals, and many more.

Interesting facts about the cello

Here are some of the most compelling facts about Cello:

- The real name of the instrument was not intended to be cello; it's just a nickname. The full name of the cello is violoncello. In Italian, it means 'small-large viol'.
- The plural form of the cello is both celli and cellos.
- In earlier days, the cellos used in orchestras used to have coarser black hair on a heavier bow. And in the solo cello performances, they had white hair on a lighter bow.
- The neck of the cello is slanted backward because that way the downward force applied on the bridge by the cellist is increased. That way it produces a louder sound which is important in orchestras.
- In earlier days, before the 18th century, the cellists used to support the cello and keep it upright using their legs only. The endpin in modern cellos that helps with the balance was invented by S.F. Servais who was a performer and tutor, being unable to support his cello only by his legs.
- Cello strings used to be made of sheep gut in the beginning. But now metal wiring is mostly used in making cello strings.
- During the time between the 17th and 18th centuries, the cellos used to have five strings in Germany and Flemish and Dutch areas, unlike the modern cellos that have four strings.
- Vibrato is a common and effective technique that intensifies long notes. It is also called close shake or tremolo.

Armed with a rich historical background and intense sonic beauty, the cello proves to be a unique and fascinating instrument. Its versatility has given it the power to stay relevant even in modern times.

Shashaa Tirupati is overwhelmed after working with A. R. Rahman and Arijit Singh for 'Atrangi Re'

Shashaa Tirupati, mostly known as 'The Humma Girl' has recently sung a song for the Dhanush, Sara Ali Khan, and Akshay Kumar starred film, 'Atrangi Re'. The song, 'Rait Zara Si' is her third duet with singer Arijit Singh.

The singer has given several hits like 'Khul Ke Jeene Ka' from 'Dil Bechara' and 'Phir Bhi Tumko Chahunga' from 'Half Girlfriend'. The new song is her first song with Sara Ali Khan. While talking about the song, the award-winning singer said that it was her third duet with Arijit Singh. It is a love song and it is her first time to sing for Sara Ali Khan. I had sung both the Tamil and the Hindi versions of the single. She feels that her voice and Arijit's voice sync beautifully together. She loves how they sang it together. She said that the music for the track is gorgeously composed by A.R. Rahman and written by Irshaad Ji. 'The thing is that when you are recording any song for Rahman sir he kind of casts you in that song in his mind and then he calls you for it.'

She further added that she felt an instant connection with the song when she was singing and even rendered it for the first time. She recorded the first version of the track in Canada at the time of lockdown. For her, it was love at first sound. She prayed for the song to be released in her voice. She expressed her gratitude to A.R. Rahman and Aanand L. Rai who took a collective call to select her for the song. According to her the sheer amount of love, vulnerability, and naiveness in the song represent her in many ways.

She describes her experience of working with Arijit Singh as overwhelming as he is one of her favorite singers of all time. She said that she has tried to learn from Arijit Singh as much as possible. His incredible knack for interpreting melodies is something that she utilizes in her singing by learning from him. It is unreal for her to be featured in the same song as him. She expressed her wish to do a single with him and write a song for him.

She calls herself both his fan and student.

Her latest songs are 'Chhoddo Mori Baiyyaan' from 'Navarasa' and 'Hututu' from 'Mimi'. Both the songs have become major hits all over the country. She has recorded songs in more than 20 languages with over 250 songs under her belt.

The Indian-born Canadian singer-songwriter will also be releasing her debut English EP 'I'm Sorry Heart' very soon.

Britney Spears blasts her sister Jamie's comments from a GMA interview on social media

Britney Spears blasted her sister's comments and described it as "out of control" on Jamie Lynn's recent interview at "Good Morning America"

Britney refuted the comments made by her sister Jamie Lynn Spears and stated that her behavior was erratic before the 13-year conservatorship, which was terminated in November.

After Jamie Lynn's interview at 'GMA', Britney wrote on social media "She was never around me much 15 years ago at that time... so why are they even talking about that unless she wants to sell a book at my expense".

Addressing her sister's previous comments about her performances, Jamie Lynn Spears said on 'GMA' that she "didn't understand" the problem. Britney went on to further elaborate on the reason for picking up the issue.

With her statement on Thursday, Britney stated "I know it may sound like a silly thing to most people but I wrote a lot of my songs and my sister was the baby, she never had to work for anything. Everything was always given to her!"

She added, "I do remember asking my sister why she did that when she knew I was waiting to change my show and her only words were, 'Well, it wasn't my idea ...' Hope your book does well, Jamie Lynn!"

This is Britney's latest post where she had highlighted how her family treated her during the conservatorship. Meanwhile, Jamie Lynn in the interview said that she offered to help her sister with resources but that she "didn't want to be part of" the conservatorship.

She added "I didn't understand what was happening, nor was I focused on that. I was focused on the fact that I was a 17-year-old about to have a baby. I understand just as little about it then as I do now."

Fans of Britney Spears have criticized Jamie for the benefits of the arrangement despite her comments not being part of her sister's legal situation. Back in October, the non-profit organization This is my Brave went on to announce that it will not take donations from Jamie Lynn Spear's memoir after the backlash from Britney's supporters.

Janapriyan Levine is known for his explosive musical arrangements dropped another melodious number 'Tera Hua'

The talented musician Janapriyan Levine dropped a compelling number 'Tera Hua', which offers a melodious field with a tragic undertone that elevates the song.

The extremely talented musician Janapriyan Levine is known for his fusion music, where he infuses western musical instruments and arrangements with South-Asian mostly Indian musical forms. And the outcome is completely ear-pleasing. From his initial days, he has been making music for movies, mobile applications, games, and tech products. He is one man production house that has a bold and disruptive sound quality. He often collaborates with several Indian music artists and Grammy-winning rappers. His wisdom of music offers a pure and vast idea that music has no language and anyone with any mother tongue can fall in love with music irrespective of the language. He makes music that is fresh and has a way to win the hearts of his audience. Besides pop he uses various genres which make his music more unpredictable and engaging.

His debut album was recorded in Ahmadabad Gujrat in 2001 after he left New York City. Since then he has been producing songs. Janapriyan Levine has collaborated with Shweta Subram who is now known for her voice in Jalebi Baby. Moreover, Varijashree Venugopal, The Dhoad Gypsies of Rajasthan, hip hop artist Secret Agent 23 Skidoo, playback singer Suvarna Tiwari and many more he has collaborated with in his several songs. With powerful skills, he has become an entrepreneur who has produced and written, and curated many artists. His audio music library has over 10,000 songs. He releases vibrant music flavorful and colorful numbers. He has songs like 'Bajre da Sitta', 'Sainya Ve', 'Cherathukal', 'Piya' in his vastly popular bucket.

His new musical venture 'Tera

Hua' is a compelling number that has spread a musical aura along with its melodious form. The song is sung by Vikalp Sharma, a talented artist with a magical voice.

When Levine was asked about this song he said 'Tera Hua' is not just a song it's an anthem of dedication and love. The song shares the feeling of when someone realizes that they are in love but only after the love interest is gone. The tragic undertone was well complimented by the free-spirited voice of Sharma.

The inspiration for the video came to Levine at 3 am in the morning, and he couldn't wait for the morning to start looking for Mannequins and other props that were used in the video. He is completely pleased with the end result that Ekabhuya animations have offered to him, as it is the replica of his dream.

Abbey Road Studios is still an inspiration with its ever-lasting Legacy Famous Music Recording Studio Abbey Road Studios are expanding their legacy with all its latest technological advancements and their latest services.

Abbey Road studio formerly known as EMI studios, is a famous music recording studio located in London, United Kingdom. The English rock band 'The Beatles' who are very popular in the rock industry named the studio after their eleventh studio album which came on the September of 1969. Earlier, Abbey Road was only the name of the street where the studio is located.

History

The history of the Abbey Road studio dates back to 1929 when music recordings were still made by a wax disc. The Gramophone company bought the nine-bedroom house plot with a large garden and built the first recording studio in the world. The Gramophone company later merged with Electrical and Musical industries, thus, naming the studio after EMI recording studios.

Abbey Road music recording studio was officially opened in 1939 with the performance of Sir Edward Elgar's Land of Hope and Glory. The studio with its grand opening later went on to feature classical and orchestral legends like Sir Thomas Beecham, Maria Callas, Geoff Love and many more.

Abbey Road is a studio which has defined generation after generation and has provided us with some world-famous artists. The 1940s was defined by the dance and jazz artists like Joe Loss Orchestra and Glenn Miller and the pop charts in the 1960s were defined by Ravi Shankar, Cilla Black and many other famous artists. The Beatles, however went on to record their 190 out of their 210 songs in the studio between 1962 to 1970. They had a great influence on the studio as they changed the studio and its culture forever. The three-hour sessions in the studio went to be all whole night sessions as they pushed experimentation beyond limits with their creativity.

Contribution Of New Technologies

It was in Abbey Road where the concept of stereo music was invented by master Alan Blumlein when he patented 'Binaural' which means listening with two ears. The Record Engineering Development Department was introduced by engineer Len Page in 1955 to respond to the needs of different artists and music producers using the rooms, developing their first mixing desks.

It was also in Abbey Road that the concept of Artificial Double Tracking (ADT) was discovered by Ken Townsend, who was an engineer of the studio.

The legacy of mastering has been an ever-special aspect of Abbey Road studios as it consists of several mastering suites, combining an unrivalled selection of classic analogue and modern digital gear. From the early 1970s till date, many renowned artists have chosen their music to be recorded there. From George Harrison to Lady Gaga, all are fond of Abbey Studio.

Studio Sections

Abbey Road comes with a lot to offer as having a chance of recording or even working on a project there is a dream come true for any artist and producer. They are available with large spaces and segments ranging from Studio One, Two, Three to their latest additions of The Gatehouse and the Front Room. Emerging talents from around the world are welcome to Abbey Road and for them to use the legendary studio equipped with all the modern gears required for an excellent production is one to be excited about. The Penthouse offers the flexibility for every kind of project.

Studio One – it is the world's largest purpose-built recording studio where it can comfortably accommodate a large symphony of orchestra or a chorus.

Studio Two – It is their most famous studio space which offers a unique design, modern booths, warm acoustics and unparalleled history have made it the most sought-after studio in the world.

Studio Three – It is the ideal and large room for mixing sessions and a substantial living room. It also offers isolation booths for both vocal and instrumental recordings.

The Penthouse – The Penthouse is a modern studio for multi-purpose mixing projects. It is a completely different studio space from the earlier ones as it is entirely accredited for Dolby ATMOS home entertainment projects. It is dedicated for high end music productions.

The Gatehouse – It is absolutely perfect for a small band or vocal artists who are looking for cutting edge technological equipment with a control room and mixing desk.

The Front Road – The studio has been designed for smaller scale recordings and writing sessions. It is designed to allow a wider range of clients to benefit from the unique inspirational atmosphere at Abbey Road.

Abbey Road studio has been contributing since the last 40 years, their excellence in film scoring has made the studio world's premier destination for any type of projects. Projects like Raiders of the Lost Ark, The Lord of The Rings, Harry Potter series, Avengers: Endgame etc. have been well scored and mastered in this very popular studio. The studio is a place where artists come and get inspired about their brand-new productions and this particular studio has been the sacred place for many world-famous artists who started their golden journey towards greatness.

PIANO, THE ESSENTIAL INSTRUMENT, SPREADING ITS MUSICAL FIELD OVER CENTURIES NOW

Piano or pianoforte is a keyboard instrument attached by strings with wooden hammers that has the strength to cast a charm with some powerful notes of complete ecstasy. From Wolfgang and Beethoven to Chopin or Vladimir, this has been the key instrument of many great maestros. From the classical music orchestra to new age acoustic music this instrument has contributed to building up the prime stage to elevate the magical aura of music.

History

Various instruments have influenced the invention of the Piano. The Pipe Organs which has been a part of music since antiquity influenced the builder to involve in making keyboard instruments as a result Clavichord and harpsichord came during the time of the renaissance. A keyboard instrument that has strings that are attached to hammered dulcimers. With the new mechanism and technicality Bartolomeo Cristofori came up with the main structure of piano in around 1700, in Padua Italy, he was employed as a keeper of instruments. Cristofori named the instrument 'un cimbalo di cipresso di piano e forte' which means that, a keyboard of cypress with soft and loud. There are still three Cristofori's pianos that survived ages and now are kept in museums.

Structure

The instrument is covered in a wooden case and the keyboards are attached with strings and the strings are connected with wooden hammers. The modern-day piano's hammers are made of wood or plastic, are often covered in wool, or leather to increase longevity and also to make soften the tune. Cristofori used thinner strings to deduce the tone of the prior keyboard instruments. The name fortepiano is mainly conveyed in that it has two sets of keys for louder tones and also for the softer tones.

Types of piano

There are several types of piano and have evolved with various structures. But there are three types of piano that have dominated the music industry. Which are,

Upright or Vertical pianos: the structure of this piano's soundboard and strings are attached in a way that stands perpendicular to the ground. The main purpose is they take a lesser place. Though, the tonal quality is a little different from the regular piano.

Grand Piano: Grand Piano or Classical pianos are the largest of them all. It keeps the shape of Cristofori's, which means that the keyboard and the strings are attached horizontally. With the best sound quality and also are the most expensive ones.

Digital Pianos: this has a quite similar structure to the Upright pianos. Instead of a hammer and strings, this piano has activated sensors. A good quality digital piano will sound almost similar and it can also record and playback the piece. This new mechanism is much more user-friendly.

Piano and great maestro and Sonata

This musical instrument holds classical music with might that no other instrument ever has. Take any symphony from the classical orchestra, piano is present almost everywhere. With the changed taste of music, a piano is still one of the major parts of music.

Some great musicians have included piano exponentially in their music and started the usage of the evergreen musical trio, Piano, Violin, and Cello, which is called the sonata.

Haydn, the father of the symphony, was the first one who used piano, violin, and cello together which created musical heaven on earth. The uprising positivity of the music of this Austrian Maestro has influenced others to join the tradition, which was going to be the most used form of music for eternity.

Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, the best composer of the classical period who is present everywhere to children poems to tormenting adults Mozart has made prominent use of piano and piano trio in his music and gave us pieces like, 'Rondo Alla Turca', 'Symphony no.-40', 'Symphony no. 25' or 'no.- 9', which will remain with every music lover forever.

Ludwig Van Beethoven: the prominent pianist and composer Beethoven has exceeded excellence with his piano. His piano pieces have manifested words from thin air. His pieces that will always have a huge place in the history of the piano in the history of music with 'Moonlight Sonata', 'Für Elise', '5th symphony', '9th symphony' will hold the most powerful piano pieces of all time.

In the classical era of music piano and the piano trio were the dominating instruments of music. With time piano has become more users friendly with a digital piano and later on keyboards which are used vividly in modern music. Several orchestra groups are still making classical pieces with the vivid use of piano. Some of the greatest evergreen pianists are Sergei Rachmaninoff, Vladimir Horowitz, Frederic Chopin, Martha Murray, Ignaz Friedman, Alfred Brendel, Claudio Arrau, Mitsuko Uchida and many more have enriched the history of this instrument.
