This musician has done exceptional collaborations in an early stage of her career. Her collab with Zedd in 'The Middle' is a noteworthy work of her life. Other than that she has worked with the artist of the world-renowned band One Direction's Niall Horan.

She has garnered global exposure through her exceptional creations. And now she is all ready to make a new record with her new album 'Humble Quest'.

She has introduced the album by dropping the leading song from the album named, 'Circles Around This Town'.

Morris has said about her this new album that 'Couple hundred songs and the ones that finally worked/Was the one about a car and the one about a church'.

From the first song, she gave a little idea of what they can expect, and certainly, we all can assume that it is going to be a blast.

Morris has tried to portray a different site by this album. The pop-rock songs and collaborating with the notorious producer Greg Kurstin has created a buzz among all of her admirers.

This duo has previously worked with the producer and given her hitmaker track 'The Bones'.

In this latest album, she has shown everyone how her relationship with her husband Ryan Hurd has grown and matured over time. She has depicted all the ups and downs of their relationships.

A harmonious step back more into her country-leaning origins, 'Humble Quest' completely reconstructs Morris' place in the musical landscape.

CAMILA CABELLO AND ED SHEERAN JOINS FOR THE SONG OF HEARTBREAK BAM BAM: LISTEN TO IT

‘We were kids at the start, I guess we’re grown ups now. Couldn’t ever imagine even having doubts, but not everything works out.’ ‘Bam Bam’, the latest song of Camila Cabello featuring Ed Sheeran too is not a typical breakup song. When the opening lines exhibit the unexpected termination of a relationship, the buoyant music from the acoustic guitar accompanied by the voice of Camila sounds optimistic.

This song reminds people of her 2019’s collaboration with Shawn Mendes for the biggest hit song of the year Senorita. While the song was about the insatiable summer lust, this song ‘Bam Bam’ is about bittersweet separation.

Flamenco and catchy bass and rhythm of the guitar take command of the music. There is a delicate and effortless quality in the voice of Camila. Although melancholy is the subject matter of the song, the song quickly picks up happiness, hope, and acceptance.

Thereafter, the second hooks come and the song warms the ear with its catchy “Ba-da-bam-bam-bam-bam-bam”. Camila sings as she floats atop with the breezy instrumental of the song.

Then, Ed Sheeran jumps on to the song and sings, ‘It’s been a hell of a year, thank God we made it out. Yeah, we were riding a wave, and trying not to drown’, before they bridge the voices.

One of the most significant and noteworthy parts of the song- it has brought the rich and textured elements of Latin music into the mainstream pop song.

Camila commands, ‘Sigue Bailando!’, and Ed bounces back with the English version of the term, ‘keep Dancing!’ The energy of Ed Sheeran is unmatched. The song will be able to experience the listeners the feeling of the Sevillian side streets on a summer’s night. The vibe of the song is very contagious. The final chorus of the two sounds is dynamic and flourishing. The song fulfills Camila’s precise set out for her upcoming studio album, Familia. Camila explained about it, “This whole album to me was inspired by two things: family and food. Your family by blood, but also your chosen family. Who do you want to break bread with? Who you want to sit at the dinner table with, cook a meal for, get wine drunk with, and dance in the living room with”.

Katy Perry Wins the $2.8 Million Copyright Case Over 'Dark Horse' Brought by Rapper Flame

Katy Perry is once again making headlines with her latest win on her appeal in a copyright case for her hit single 'Dark Horse'.

Rapper Flame filed the case against her co-defendants that included Capitol Records in 2016 claiming that the song was plagiarized. He said an eight note ostinato from his soundtrack, 'Joyful Noise' released in 2009. He won the case and the jury found his claim viable. He was awarded $2.8 million three years later with the verdict. Perry appealed against it and a federal district court canceled the verdict in 2020.

Perry will not have to pay the $2.8 million to Marcus Gray or rapper Flame after the verdict. The judge at the ninth circuit court of appeals dismissed rapper Flame's claims saying that he was trying to impose a monopoly over the conventional building blocks of music.

In the new hearing, it is said that the ostinatos found in both Gray and Perry's songs are made of commonplace musical elements. It also says, 'The similarities between them do not arise out of an original combination of these elements'. According to the judge, if such copyright rule is imposed over that material, it would put a limitation over the creativity of the musicians 'to allowing an improper monopoly over two-note pitch sequences or even the minor scale itself, especially in light of the limited number of expressive choices available when it comes to an eight-note repeated musical figure.'

A lot of A-list musicians are also facing copyright lawsuits besides Katy Perry.

This ruling of Perry winning the case will definitely bring some hope for the rest. British singer Ed Sheeran had been sued as well. It is alleged that he copied some parts of his 2017 hit single 'Shape of You' from a song that is written by Ross O'Donoghue and Sami Chokri. He is defending the case in the high court this week.

Fellow artist Dua Lipa is also facing not one but two lawsuits for her 2020 hit number 'Levitating'. While one of the lawsuits is brought by two disco songwriters, the other one is by a Florida-based reggae band. The allegation of copying parts of a song created by Jordan Vincent, Rosco Banlaoi, and Christopher Miranda has been brought upon Sam Smith and Normani for their 2019 single, 'Dancing With a Stranger'.

Up-and-Coming Rapper Flava J Is Offering a Raw and Refined Essence Through 'Triggers'

Versatile performer Flavio, aka Flava J is making a huge buzz with his unwavering track 'Triggers'. This talented artist has spread his creative aura through every medium whether it is music, theater, or photography. Based in London, this artist was born in Portugal and offers a blended essence of Latin and hip-hop music. We thank the artist for sharing a few words with us on his never-ending musical journey.

DMR: 'Triggers' is quite an intriguing project. How did you come up with the concept?

Flava J: I wanted to write a song about emotional triggers and how we deal with them. We hit rock bottom many times in our life time and this song is for therapy and healing, just in a slight different way. Triggers speak from a determined point of view that no matter how many times we can be down We also can easily come back up by molding adaptation responses.

DMR: Tell us something about your creative influences. Who inspired you're the most?

Flava J: I am a quirky creative, constantly challenging reality and bending the norm. Jessie J, Sia, Cassie, Beyonce, Usher, Ne-Yo, Timbaland, Timberlake, Michael Jackson, Mary J Blidge, to name a few artists that shaped who I am today but ultimately you can think: Adam Lambert + Rihanna = Flava J

DMR: How did your musical journey initiate?

Flava J: From a young age, rhythm were intrinsic in my veins. If something music related (being It dancing, singing acting etc) was on, I would get lost in space just wondering how I would do it. 2008 and 2009 marked my first steps as a dancer and singer but had an early end as rejected by "So You Think You Can Dance" and "Portugal Idol" I then moved to the U.K. to be professionally trained. In 2016 a knee surgery made me step away from stages, so I started writing my lifebook and journalling. After a year it all starts gaining shape as I realized that I could convert what I wrote into songs and it was a wakeup call, I replanned my life and I knew it there that my injury happened for reason, it kept me going for 6 years.

DMR: How do you like to craft your tracks? Music first or songwriting?

Flava J: The right answer is - Mood first but it can be both really. There are times that I have an instrument playing non-stop in my head so I need to put it down and play it with other sounds in order to come up with words, other times I have key words that I want to write about and I am lucky to have a great team that understands my visions and make me tailored tracks but its always about the mood.

DMR: Is music your full-time profession? Tell us something about your other ventures.

Flava J: Yes, music has a vast umbrella of duties that takes it beyond full-time to be honest. Since I left Portugal that it has been a juggling game when it comes to a profession. Over the past 13 years I worked as an engineer, cleaner, waiter, supervisor, restaurant manager, car sales executive, multi-lingual bank agent, financial services, mental health mentor. Currently I am finishing my studies in music performance, I am an actor and working on my own music.

DMR: The modern music industry is getting more competitive than ever. Do you find any obstacles in the way of your progress?

Flava J: I surely do, having an idea was my first step to the encounter of many that were just around the corner and I'm sure the obstacles will vary with the time but they will always be there in some shape or form.

DMR: From Flavio to Flava J, how would you like to describe your journey till now?

Flava J: My journey has been full of ups and downs, there was times that I felt like I was being put to a test and life was asking me how much I wanted this, and other times when great results showed up, I couldn't stop smiling and was feeling super proud. Today I am grateful. Flavio and Flava J have different attributes, Flavio experiences life and Flava J brings the vibes. He is the best version of myself.

DMR: Can we expect another musical project to be released soon? Please shed some light.

Flava J: "Oyiee bebe" - will be released in May and it might have some company.

DMR: Since you are quite great with both Latin and hip-hop music, what do you refer most?

Flava J: They both have an equal place in my heart at this stage, however, Latin wins.

DMR: Would like to experiment with other music genres in the future?

Flava J: Yes, there are many genres that I will love to experiment.

DMR: What piece of advice would you suggest to the emerging music artists in the music industry?

Flava J: Believe in yourself, we are too harsh on ourselves sometimes and after so much self-criticizing we stop trusting that we are good enough.

DMR: Is there anything your fans and followers should be aware of?

Flava J: I'm super grateful for the support I get, big thank you! And be tuned.

WHY MASTERING THE VIOLIN IS SO HARD AND WHAT YOU CAN DO TO GET BETTER AT IT?

Though mastering the art of violin playing is a quite difficult task, with genuine passion and hard work, you can improve your performance tremendously.

Violin is one of the toughest instruments to play; it takes a lot of talent and effort to play it. People practice for years and still are not able to learn more than the basics. There are not many people who can say they have mastered it. But, why is it so hard to learn and play the violin? And why does it take so long to become proficient in playing the violin? Let's talk about the challenges of playing the violin and what you can do to become a good violinist?

Violins do not have keys or frets

Violin itself is a complicated instrument in terms of its structure. There are several technical aspects that one must understand and get familiarized with such as bowing techniques, positions, and movements of the finger, scales, counting and reading music, and more. These components can be intense for the learners. What makes violins different and overwhelming to play is that they don't have keys, frets, or buttons. To play the instrument properly, you have to find the right notes with your touch on the fingerboard. The slightest change in the position of the finger will alter the tune that you intended to play. It is because of the short length of the violin strings. Cello is a lot similar to the violin but due to its long length, there is more spacing between the notes. So, it is easier to position your fingers. With much longer strings there is not much change in the tunes when you place the fingers a little bit incorrectly. The players need to develop accurate muscle memory to place their fingers correctly on the fingerboard when they are playing the violin.

The distance between the notes on the fingerboard

The second challenge that a violin player must conquer is the different spacing between the notes. You need to keep changing the position of your fingers on the fingerboard as the distance varies between the notes. At the place of the scroll, the distance between the notes is wider and to the bridge, the tones are much closer to each other. On the highest pitches, the distance between the tones can be 0.1 inches. It gets a lot difficult to position the fingers correctly when the notes are placed so closely. You have to train your brain and fingers hard to hit the correct notes each time.

Bowing technique

Handling the bow is quite difficult for a violin player. The stores of the bow have to be made with precision to generate the perfect tunes. The violinists must have to control the bow angle and the pressure to their hair to master the instrument. A little bit more or less pressure can alter the tune or sound entirely ruining your symphony completely. This is one of the aspects where most beginners struggle.

Tuning

Violins need to be tuned just like any other instrument. Tuning your violin before every performance can be quite hectic due to how difficult it is to tune the violin. You have to work with two elements: the fine tuner and pegs to tune your violin correctly. One mistake at tuning with the pegs and the strings can easily break. Tuning a violin can be very challenging for players, especially for beginners.

How can you improve your efficiency?

Playing the violin is quite a difficult task. But the sound a violin produces attracts many to learn and master the art. Here are some tips that can help you get better at playing violins.

Relax

The difficulty level of violin playing can get the players stressed easily. The anxiety can create more problems for you in the process of learning. You need to relax both body and mind to play the instrument to perfection. While doing a vibrato, you need to wiggle your fingers on the left hand subtly to create the perfect tune. You need to relax your left hand completely to perfect the technique.

Attention to details

There are several small details that you need to keep in check to maintain the right flow of your music.

- Placing your finger even 0.1 inches off can change the sound completely.
- Placing the fingers even a second late can alter the tune.
- Applying a bit too much pressure can make you out of tune.
- Your elbows must be in the right position to reach the right strings.
- Handling the bow matters a lot in your performance.

Be patient

The final thing you have to understand is that mastering the art of violin playing takes a lot of time. It takes a lot of time to even make a simple tune sound good. You need to have a lot of patience while learning it. Do not get stressed, try to enjoy playing the violin, and practice hard to improve your performance.

“No Love (Extended Version)” Featuring Cardi B & SZA is a Magical Recreation by R&B Artist Summer Walker

R&B is the musical genre, which united the African-American communities back in the 1940s. Many artists have achieved their desired fame with the help of this genre. Signifying the same, globally famed R&B artist Summer Walker has just launched her new music video “No Love (Extended Version)”. The track is already exploding the statistical count on YouTube as it has already broken the 1.9 million-view mark, gaining more than 152,000 likes on it in less than a day. The artist previously came up with the same track just 4 months ago featuring SZA. Well, this time the artist has added the real spice to it by collaborating with another heavyweight in the form of Cardi B.

The latter’s influence can be easily witnessed in the latest release as the video is trending at no. 7 currently on YouTube. Cardi B has shown a different side of her as she has implemented a softer side of her tone rather than her famous hard-hitting raps. The music video starts with both of the artists sitting on a bed with clouds all around in what is shown as heaven on top of the sky. This particular phenomenon can instantly catch the eye of every viewer. Summer Walker, with her latest song, has tried to indicate a broken love story with the feeling that a person comes up around after having a bre ak-up with their loved one. The lyrics completely synchronize with the background beats and highlight the deeper story present behind them. The story between them may now be over, and all she wants is to cherish the presence of her partner without any feeling of love. Hence, the title of the track has been perfectly put as “No Love (Extended Version)”.

The excellent video choreography is also one of the highlights as the presentation of the leading artist in the field full of roses can take the breath away of any viewer.

The comments section on YouTube is flooded with all the positive comments from fans as it goes on to show that they were eagerly waiting for this collaboration to happen. The entire process of this music video starting from director Lacey Duke to Choreographer Sean Bankhead has opened a new path for the artist to excel in her prospects in the musical field.

Watch the music video available on YouTube and follow the artist on Instagram, Twitter, and Facebook for more interesting information.

The singer, rapper, and music composer, who seems to understand the vibe and driving factor of the Indian Youngsters, has come out with another presumably hit track. Moreover, in this song actor, Tamannaah Bhatia adds glamour to the song.

Tabahi comprises a random lyricism as the rapper seems to put all his effort into the packaging of the song. It is a fast passed track with the use of techno beats which is retro in nature. The song reminds the listeners of the cabaret era of Bollywood music.

With the release of every song Badshah is showcasing his expertise in Dance too, and the song 'Tabahi' is no different.

Tamannaah's presence in the song adds a bling factor to the song. She looked stunning in every glittering outfit with varying colors she wore in the song. She, with her looks and performance, has left the audience speechless and mesmerized.

Badshah had earlier told in an interview, "The music closest to my heart would be the one that I just put out randomly on my YouTube channel without any video — the rawest raps. They are like barenaked emotions with no expectations. He further added, "And when both you and your audience don't have any expectation from each other, I think that is the purest form of art."

Well soon after the release, the song has been getting appreciations for the performances of both the artists.

Netizens assume, like the previous one, 'Jugnu', this one also would be a trending one on the Instagram reels.

Within two days of the release of the song, nit has garnered more the 6 million views with 152K+likes on YouTube. Moreover, it is also trending at the number 10th position on Youtube for music.

The song starts off with Badshah being handcuffed and complaining about how Tamannaah has taken over his heart and mind and ruined him properly. Just like the other tracks of the artist, 'Tabahi' also showcases Badshah's excessive weighing on catchy lyrics, foot-tapping rhythm, and hook step.

Featured Tamannaah took to her Instagram handle and share her feelings about the song, "Chalo, thodi #Tabahi machaate hai! Out Now Everywhere, watch & like the video on @badboyshah's YouTube channel and listen to it on your favourite streaming platform (sic)."
