'LIFT ME UP'

The Black Panther universe is making a comeback with its second movie, "Black Panther: Wakanda Forever" which is releasing on 11th November 2022. The movie is equally exciting and painful for the viewers as this is the first movie without Chadwick Boseman. The actor, who played T'Challa, the king of Wakanda and the Black Panther died in 2020 from colorectal cancer. Fans are excited to see how the movie deals with the actor's real-life death and at the same time cannot fathom the idea of a Black Panther movie without the Black Panther. Amidst every anticipation, the movie got added hype when Rihanna announced her collaboration with it. Recently the singer released 'Lift Me Up' as her new single which is the perfect example of how an artist should be making a comeback after a long hiatus. The fact that the singer is making her comeback after 6 long years and making her comeback with the movie's soundtrack has created a whole lot of publicity. The singer's ballad lived up completely to the hype and the world has gotten back the Rihanna magic. This is not the singer's first take at a ballad,

Sam Smith Is Making Statements with Their Latest Song 'Unholy'

Sam Smith, the four times Grammy winner's latest song 'Unholy' has made it to the Billboard Hot 100 chart. Sam has created this single song featuring Kim Petras. It is the first ever that a nonbinary artist reached the no. 1 position. The track is in the same position for the last four weeks. In the song, the artist has said about cheating in a relationship. The way of presentation is very much different and that is why it has gotten the no.1 position in the chart. In this short period of time, this song has got 29 million views, which is astonishing.

Sam is a nonbinary artist and Kim is also a trans woman.

Thus they have depicted the story in a whole new way which is making it even more attractive. Before this one, Sam has also given many songs that got into the Billboard chart but there is something very special about this track. After seeing such a massive response they have said that 'honestly speechless' and 'extremely happy' with the success of 'Unholy'.

They have also said 'This song is so special to me for so many reasons and I am just so proud of everyone involved for their bravery and guts and spirit'. They have added more by saying 'I am so honored to get to work with such incredibly talented musicians and humans. And Kim... what magic you are. You are a treasure and an inspiration to so many'. Kim has also shared her reaction on Instagram by saying 'I'm so honored to be a part of your first number one in the US which you should have 500 of at this point... I love you forever angel'. She has said that it was a dream for her though she is from Germany. And now being in that position really feels like fulfilling a dream. She added more that 'I've just always found the UK has a more interesting take on music than America does most of the time'. In this song, Sam has reached many milestones. There is another thing that should be celebrated that, they are removing the barrier and featuring a gay porn star named Paddy O'Brian.

ADIDAS FINALLY CUTS TIES WITH KANYE WEST

The German sportswear, apparel wear, and accessories brand Adidas announced on Tuesday, 25th October, that it is cutting down all of its ties with US musician and fashion designer, Kanye West. Now legally known as Ye, the rapper has been in a partnership with the company for almost a decade.

In an official statement, Adidas said, "after a thorough review, the company has taken the decision to terminate the partnership with Ye immediately, end production of Yeezy branded products, and stop all payments to Ye and his companies."

The announcement came after the rapper made some controversial statements against the Jewish people followed by widespread condemnation by several Jewish groups. On 20th October 2022 Jonathan Greenblatt, the Anti-Defamation League CEO retweeted Adidas saying, "Really, @adidas? You continue to partner w/ Ye as he spreads vile #antisemitism AND releases his product as we approach the anniv. of the deadliest attack on Jewish people in US history. Are you really this ignorant? Or simply indifferent? #RunAwayFromHate".

Considered to be the most influential and famous rapper, musician, and fashion designer of this age, Kanye West, is not unknown when it comes to controversies. In the past, he has already had his Instagram and Twitter accounts suspended for controversial statements and posts.

This time the controversy started on October 7th, after the rapper made an Instagram post suggesting that P. Diddy, another worldwide successful rapper like Ye, was being controlled by Jewish people. This post was considered to be referring to an antiquated antisemitic trope that says that the Jewish people have control over global finance. This post of the rapper gathered controversy and as a result, Instagram restricted his account for violating its guidelines.

After being restricted from Instagram, Ye took it to Twitter and again attracted negative responses. He tweeted saying he was going to go, death [sic] con 3 On JEWISH PEOPLE". Many people think that this was in reference to DEFCON, which is the defense readiness condition of the US military.

After being called out on his anti-Semitism, he further responded stating he cannot be anti-Semitic as black people are also Jewish. He then proceeded to make another tweet blaming other people for changing the narrative, he stated, "You guys have toyed with me and tried to black ball anyone whoever opposes your agenda." As a result, Twitter also joined Instagram in locking his account for violating the guidelines.

HONEY SINGH IS DATING TINA THADANI: SOLID PROOF TO SUPPORT THIS RUMOR

Captivating and sometimes explicit rapper Yo Yo Honey Singh has been reigning in this industry for a while but after taking a small break now he is back and making gaining great traction for his catchy tracks. But the fuss about him started to buzz when he started to surprise his fans when he was seen holding hands with a mysterious woman. In the first pictures, the faces weren't very clear but fans were going gaga as they had the slightest hint of this romantic relationship.

For a while, the name of the lady wasn't revealed but due to the fast-paced world with a great and user-friendly internet connection, people didn't take much time before they knew the name of the girl. His previous divorce case was much talked about maybe this is the reason he didn't want to reveal more about the lady. But on Tuesday, Yo Yo Honey Singh shared a close-up shot of two hands, he wrote in the caption, "Its all about us You n Me !! My song Together Forever is out now!! Make reels with ur loved ones". Many are resonating with this as a promotional aspect of his upcoming release, but some are taking these photos very seriously.

On Wednesday, an entertainment magazine claimed that the person Honey Singh is dating is Tina Thadani. After they disclosed their identity, everyone become extremely curious to know more about this person. They also included photos as proof of their claims. In the post of that news site, they shared a recent picture of Tina Thadani where she is wearing the same bracelet as the woman in Honey Singh's holding hands picture.

After digging further, people found an old picture of them together. People are also taking an account of how many times Tina and Honey liked each other photos and commenting on them on several social media platforms. Though there are some differences of opinion on this subject as well. As one social media user said, "Don't see the bracelet matching. The first pic bracelet has two nuts and the 2nd and 3rd has a pearl. Also the first pic bracelet has a texture and the other one is smooth," neither Honey nor Tina has spoken a single thing about his rumors.

BEYONCÉ CLAIMED THAT 'RIGHT SAID FRED' WAS PAID FOR THE USAGE OF THEIR SONG "I'M TOO SEXY"

Beyoncé was previously accused of using a musical created by a popular British Pop band known as Right Said Fred. The members of the band claimed that the singer has utilized their song 'I'm Too Sexy' without their permission which rose questions about copyright infringement.

The singer has finally opened up and hit back at the band by calling their allegations "erroneous and incredibly disparaging." The singer also claimed that the band is being already paid for the copyright.

Previously, during the 2022 Broad Music Inc Awards in London; the leading members of the band such as Fred and Richard Fairbrass called out Beyoncé for using their track 'I'm Too Sexy' in a recent musical single titled 'Alien Superstar' which appears in her recent album 'Renaissance'.

Talking about the singer, the members of the band said, "Normally the artist approaches us but Beyoncé didn't because she is such an arrogant person." They further added, "She just had probably thought 'come and get me', so we heard about it after the fact, when you did." The members said, "To use our melody they need our permission so they send us the demo and we approve it and if so we get a co-write credit,".

Talking about the differences in the artists they said, "With this Beyoncé thing there are 22 writers, it's ridiculous, so we would get about 40 [pence]. The reason that is happening we think is because there is so little money now in the actual sales, people like friends, golfing partners, engineers, bookers, and the guy who brings the coke, they all want a cut."

Many major artists such as Drake, Taylor Swift, and many others have acquired permission from the band the Fairbrass brothers before utilizing their music in their works. However, the brothers are not ready to challenge Beyoncé since she possesses a lot more power and money in the industry.

However, the singer claimed on Thursday that the Fairbrass brothers were paid for the music and they gave permission to utilize the elements in her song. She said in a statement, "Permission was not only granted for its use, but they publicly spoke of their gratitude for being on the album."

The singer further added, "For their song, there was no sound recording use, only the composition was utilized. Permission was asked of their publisher on May 11, 2022, and the publisher approved the use on June 15, 2022.

They were paid for the usage in August 2022." She also pointed to a tweet in July by the band that reads, "it's nice to get a writing credit on the new 'Beyoncé album. 'Renaissance' Credits: Drake, A.G. Cook, Syd, Right Said Fred, & More."

Nora Fatehi Is Creating History with Her Vocals in the FIFA World Cup 2022 Anthem 'Light The Sky'

Nora Fatehi is now joining the club of Jennifer Lopez and Shakira. Her music videos have her in the news for her gripping dancing abilities, and now are going to be a part of history as she has not just flaunted her dance moves in the official Qatar World Cup anthem 'Light The Sky'. The Qatar Government chose the artist after the world witnessed her brilliant and versatile dancing abilities.

The Bollywood actress has faced critique for her acting performances. She has been bullied by her nationality, yet being the face of India in this Qatar World Cup anthem has been a proud moment for her and the entire nation. After she won the world with her dance moves now the world is praising her for her singing abilities as well.

The Dilbar girl is seen in the video with a brief Hindi rapping portion and his bold and beautiful dancing styles. And the quirked 'Chalo Chalo' is going to a banner-worthy portion for the upcoming matches of the Qatar World Cup 2022.

Previously the official page of FIFA released the official video 'Hayya Hayya' and now they have released this multilingual track in English, Hindi, and Moroccan, on the 7th of October. Along with Nora in this video are Balqees, Rahma Riad, and Manal. The video was choreographed by Sadeck Waff and produced by RedOne.

The craze that football is unparalleled but the joining of India has been a proud moment for every Indian. Yet, watching Nora rapping the lines like a pro is offering goosebumps.

The third verse of the track holds the Hindi portion, where she sings the lines "Hamein karna hai jo, Ham karenge wahin, Ham jaisa yahan, Par koi bhi nahi, Chahe east or west, Ham milenge yahin, You don't need no rest, You can lean on me".

Apple Music Is offering Plenty Of Reasons To Ditch Spotify And Others

Perhaps it is the best time to swap from Spotify Music to Apple Music as the platform is offering some good enough reasons with its long journey of seven years. While the platform is proving itself beneficial for both the listeners and artists on it, there are some features every music lover should know.

Obviously, Apple Music does not provide free services like Spotify with advertisements; but when it comes to opting for a paid subscription option, Apple Music proves to be better in every way. The subscription plans come at the same pricing which is $9.99 a month. The monthly family plan of Apple Music with 6 different accounts also costs less than Spotify at a range of $14.99 to $15.99.

Other than its affordability, Apple Music has over 100 million songs right which increased from 30 million songs earlier and it is even higher than Spotify's current status of 80 million songs along with numerous podcasts as well. Apple Music is adding over 20,000 tracks every day.

While most successful music artists are available on both platforms, Apple is offering more opportunities to brag about a newly found indie band with its huge collection and finest curation. However, is it still enough the switch from Spotify?

Well, no listener wants to compromise with the quality of music when the user is opting for paid subscription service for music. Apple Music provides access to spatial audio and true hi-res audio at 24 bits/48kHz which is truly a treat to eardrums. However, the high audio quality does not seek any addition cost as it is included in the basic packages already. Spotify on the other hand is creating a new version of high-quality audio which will be out soon. This version will be known as Spotify HiFi. Just like the listeners, music artists can also gain more benefits by focusing on this single platform. Apple Music pays way more for a single stream than Spotify does. So, garnering more streams on Apple Music can truly help to build a successful career ahead.

Apple Music might not be compatible with all consoles other than PS5 but its CarPlay mode and connectivity with the Apple TV 4K are too fluent. iOS users should definitely take an advantage of this golden opportunity.

Arijit Singh Has become the 7th Most Followed Asian Soloist on Spotify

One of the most talented playback singers in Bollywood, Arijit Singh sets a new benchmark with a massive fan base. The artist has made his place in the top 10 most followed artists on Spotify and gaining much global recognition right now.

The singer who has gifted listeners back-to-back chartbuster singles and melodious Bollywood tracks is now competing with global singers and rappers. He is the first ever solo Asian as well as an Indian music artist to achieve this. He was the most followed Asian solo music artist in the year 2020 and 2021, according to Spotify. And now, Arijit is giving tough competition to global artists.

The 'Kesariya' singer has offered some of the most unforgettable tracks in Bollywood such as 'Tum Hi ho', 'Dil Samhal Zara', 'Gerua', and the list goes on with thousands of others. With his massive follower base spreading all over the world, the singer is reaching new heights of success.

It is time for his fans and followers to celebrate as the singer has become the 7th most-followed music artist on Spotify among global rappers and pop stars. The top 10 most followed artist list has been revealed recently and it showed Arijit in seventh place right after Eminem.

The singer has beaten Taylor Swift in the game of followers as she is featured at number eight. Bad Bunny is featured at number 9 with 56 million global followers and BTS at number 10 with 55 million. The top 10 list is aced by Ed Sheeran with over 103 million followers. Ariana Grande and Billie Eilish are featured in the second and third positions respectively. Drake has taken the fourth position with over 67 million followers and last but not least, Justin Bieber is in 5th position with 66 million followers on Spotify.

As soon as the list surfaced, many lauded Arijit for making this achievement. However, some of the users also showed different emotions saying that the Indian Music listener base is divided among various platforms such as JioSaavn, Gaana, Wynk Music, and Spotify as well. Perhaps that is the reason it took so long. Others have claimed that Taylor Swift and Bad Bunny are supposed to stay on the top based on weekly charts. So, it is all about the Algorithm that made Arijit hit the top 10 list. No matter what the reason is, Arijit has finally made his place in the global music industry and more golden days are coming on the way.

BECKY G SHARED VIDEO OF 'AMANTES' WITH DÁVILES DE NOVELDA

Becky G, the renowned American singer shared her memory of her recent visit to the country Spain. She has recently dropped a video of her soundtrack 'Amantes'. It is a bachata song given by the artist, which has gained a huge response from everyone. The video has been directed by Zazo Canvas.

In this video, audiences got to see the unseen clips of her from the European adventure. Becky is a singer who has a huge fanbase for her unique work. In the video, along with Becky, Dáviles de Novelda has also been seen. She has performed the song roaming around in the city. And this video has given a refreshing vibe that everyone has enjoyed thoroughly. They have shown many special places in the video, like Museo Nacional Thyssen-Bornemisza, Casa Alberto, and Corral de la Moreria. It is her first-ever bachata creation and that has created a buzz among all.

In the song, she has sang 'Cántame flamenco yo te bailo una bachata/Báilame pega, baby que tú me arrebatas,' Becky sings. "Tú me vuelves loca, la mirada me delata/Me haces falta", which means 'Sing me a flamenco song, and I'll dance you a bachata/Let's dance close, I want you to grab me/You drive me crazy, my look shows it/I need you'.

This artist has said on social media that 'Spain has always been a really special country for me, I filmed this video with images of my family, my team, and my perspective during my time in Spain'.

She has shown her diversity with this soundscape. This artist always tries to come up with something very different and that is what kept everyone hooked to them. She has said to the media that 'You can hear different sonics in the production, down to the melody, and each song has a space of its own. I wanted to own that as my superpower, versus it being just an artist singing songs just because... It was so intentional to step outside the box, especially for my Spanish-speaking fans who might not be used to hearing certain sonics from me.'

She continued by saying 'That's one thing I think is so unique about my experience in the industry: I did start singing in English, then went to Spanish, then went to both. So it was like the reverse crossover, then the crossover'.

Taylor Swift Is Back with Another Cinderella Story for Her Latest Music Video 'Bejeweled'

On the 25th of October Taylor Swift unveiled her second release from her 'Midnight' music video series. Now, this is the time for some shimmering 'Bejeweled'.

The old story of Cinderella has been widely disapproved by the independent women of today who will not wait for a man to propose and take them out of misery. Based on this elevated theme where a girl takes herself out of that misery and enters a shining castle.

The almost 6 minutes video is telling a story where three mean girls along with their mother are giving our not-so-naive Cinderella. While the girls were being mean to Taylor she replied back with much-needed zest.

Taylor herself has directed the video, and you will see Jack Antonoff as the "Prince" along with him you can see Laura Dern and the Haim sisters and Dita Von Teese as a cameo in the video.

The video opens in a dark gloomy cellar room, where they have a conversation about the upcoming contest to win over the prince's proposal, in the beginning of the video you can see the names of three characters and their intention.

The winner of the contest will be the proposed prince and will get married to him but before that to reward the winner there was a selected castle.

As the story proceeds you can see Tay Tay having a great time in a bathtub that looks like a martini glass. Just before she announced the video release, she wrote as a caption of a photo of her dressed up as Cinderella, "Midnight, what a storied and fabled hour... On this sparkling evening, I'll be releasing my twist on a fairytale we all know. The one about the girl and her step sisters and the clock striking 12..." She continued, "This video is wild, whimsical, and created SPECIFICALLY for you, my beloved fans who have paved this shimmering path. Look out for some dazzling cameos! Join us later for a very Bejeweled premiere." Last she added a diamond emoji to her caption as well. The album is already a big hit and the newly launched video is already trending in the 11th position on YouTube.

Rihanna Makes The Perfect Comeback With 'Lift Me Up'

The Black Panther universe is making a comeback with its second movie, "Black Panther: Wakanda Forever" which is releasing on 11th November 2022. The movie is equally exciting and painful for the viewers as this is the first movie without Chadwick Boseman. The actor, who played T'Challa, the king of Wakanda and the Black Panther died in 2020 from colorectal cancer. Fans are excited to see how the movie deals with the actor's real-life death and at the same time cannot fathom the idea of a Black Panther movie without the Black Panther. Amidst every anticipation, the movie got added hype when Rihanna announced her collaboration with it. Recently the singer released 'Lift

A person is shown from the side, wearing a long, flowing dress with a blue bodice and white pleated skirt. The dress has a wide, draped collar and long sleeves. The person is standing on a light-colored surface, and the background is a soft, out-of-focus blue.

Me Up' as her new single which is the perfect example of how an artist should be making a comeback after a long hiatus.

The fact that the singer is making her comeback after 6 long years and making her comeback with the movie's soundtrack has created a whole lot of publicity. The singer's ballad lived up completely to the hype and the world has gotten back the Rihanna magic. This is not the singer's first take at a ballad, her 'Stay' has ruled the music charts and the hearts of music lovers for a long time.

Now 'Lift Me Up' is having a similar impact on her fans. If you are a fan of Rihanna or have ever listened to her music, which is so hard not to, you would know how powerful her vocals can be. The glimpse of her powerful vocals combined with the soothing musical tunes has created a perfect ambiance which is captivating the listeners. What can be a better tribute to Chadwick Boseman than this spectacular piece of music?

The music video is released at the same time as the audio and people are going emotional by the visuals. The video used scenes from the movie which appeared to be the shots from T'Challa's funeral and the scenes with Rihanna were shot at the beach at the time of twilight. The breeze in her singer's hair, the lowlights, and the aesthetics created a perfect ambiance that matches the composition of the track.

'Lift Me Up' is beautifully written, and contains lyrics of peace and harmony which is ideal for the movie and the theme. Rihanna's voice sounded angelic on the track, proving the singer's ability to create magic. Many of the fans were expecting upbeat music, but the singer's choice for a ballad seemed to be the perfect choice and the perfect tribute to the beloved T'Challa of Marvel, Chadwick Boseman.

Watch the video on YouTube and listen to it on streaming platforms!

SZA Shared More about Her Upcoming Album, Confirming She Has Recorded 100 Tracks by Far

SZA's highly anticipated album is released around the corner. And the craze is elevated after she corroborated that she has recorded 100 songs for the album.

After the recording sessions, SZA finally revealed the reason behind this long waiting period for her upcoming album. She says that she recorded 100 tracks for this album, and the last weekend the star stated this. She was asked by a paparazzo at LAX airport about the time when the album will be released and her fans can have a great time listening to her songs. She charmingly said more news about the upcoming is going to publicize "any day" now, and everyone should be updated very soon.

While she made her way to the TSA pre-check line the paparazzo asked, "How many total songs do you think you've recorded?" And she replied beneath her white hoodie and the black mask, "Total? A hundred, maybe? Like, I don't even know, actually... Five years' worth of material."

Later on, she was asked by the same paparazzo to reveal something about the songs of this extremely crazed album and how many songs are going to be there. This is her sophomore album, she released her debut album in 2017 "Ctrl". About release dates, she responded "I'm hoping it goes well," without giving any specifics.

Previously her "Ctrl" got a Grammy nomination for the best urban contemporary album. In the very same year, she was nominated as the best artist as well. She joined Justin Timberlake, Clipse, Q-Tip, and Pharrell along with various other artists at the 2022 Something in the Water festival in Washington, D.C. over the Juneteenth Weekend.

Recently, she was a part of the 10th iteration of Global Citizen fest in Accra, Ghana, to celebrate the 20th Anniversary of the African Union.

Meanwhile 'Ctrl' has already celebrated its 5 years of success earlier this year. If the wait seems to be hard on you then you also can revisit her previous tracks whether with Travis Scott or with Rodney Jerkin.

She said, "That was always my dream to work with him based on his work with Brandy and Amerie," about working with Jerkins and added, "did like seven records in one day." While the wait for the album is long after revisiting 'I Hate You' and 'Love Galore' or 'Shirt', justified the wait.

SONG CONTEST

Liverpool Is Going To Host the Eurovision Song Contest 2023

Liverpool defeated Glasgow and has been selected for the Eurovision Song Contest 2023. This news has created a buzz among everyone and excited for the show.

Liverpool has been announced as the host for the Eurovision Song Contest 2023. Graham Norton has declared the news through a social media post that Liverpool is going to host the show. Ukraine was a part of the run-off but couldn't win the show. Along with that, Ukraine cannot host the show due to the war.

The Liverpool mayor said to Ukraine in the event 'do you proud'. Joanne Anderson said that 'faced strong competition from Glasgow'. She has also said 'This is a massive event and the eyes of the world will be on us in May, especially those of our friends in Ukraine... Now begins months of work to put on the best party ever. Ukraine - you have my promise we will do you proud'.

UK Prime Minister Liz Truss said that Liverpool would 'put on an unforgettable show which celebrates the rich culture and creativity of Ukraine'.

The director of the city council's Culture Liverpool, Claire McColgan has given her statement that 'It feels like the whole city kind of jumped in the air at exactly the same time tonight'.

Along with them, a lot of people have uttered their statements. The Culture Secretary has said Michelle Donelan 'The city loves music and knows how to throw a party, so I've no doubt it will host a spectacular experience for the thousands in attendance and millions watching at home on the BBC'.

Sonia, the artist who participated in Eurovision in 1993 and came second stated that 'Scousers know how to party and we're going to have the biggest party ever'.

Everyone has shown their excitement after the announcement. DJ Candi celebrated the news by playing the classic music of Sir Cliff Richard's 1968 Eurovision. She also said 'Anything that brings investment into the city has got to be good, hasn't it?'.

She has also said 'We're only hosting Eurovision to support Ukraine, aren't we, because we didn't win it [this year]. The UK has decided to do that, and I'm glad that Liverpool won it, and sorry for Glasgow. Sort of!'.

Everyone is eagerly waiting for the show and is very much excited to see Liverpool in the Eurovision Song Contest 2023.

QUAVO AND TAKEOFF FINALLY RELEASE THEIR COLLABORATIVE BRAND NEW JOINT ALBUM 'ONLY BUILT FOR INFINITY LINKS'

Two peas of Migos, Quavo, and Takeoff have built serious anticipation in the industry when the news of their collaborative album first dropped. Now that the album, 'Only Built For Infinity Links' has been released, it can be said that maybe this album is the strongest project of post-Migos time.

Two peas of Migos, Quavo, and Takeoff have built serious anticipation in the industry when the news of their collaborative album first dropped. Now that the album, 'Only Built For Infinity Links' has been released, it can be said that maybe this album is the strongest project of post-Migos time. The trio, formerly known as the Migos started at the underground scenes and crawl their way up to the main rap industry with the omme3nse talent. The Atlanta trio officially ended in 2021 in rap glory. This created hype for the rap album even more as this is the first time, two main rappers of the trio are coming together in an attempt to create the same magic that the trio Offset, Quavo, and Takeoff created.

The 18 track-album is now out and the positive responses from all around the world along with increasing streaming on social platforms say that the attempt was successful. The total run time of the album is approximately 1 hour and features some happening names in the rap music industry of recent times, such as Young Thug, Gunna, NBA YoungBoy, Summer Walker, Gucci Mane, and more.

The album, 'Only Built For Infinity Links' is named after the Wu-Tang Clan member 'Only Built 4 Cuban Linx' and the rappers revealed that they were given Raekwon's blessing to name the project. The opener of the album, 'Two Infinity Links', works as the perfect trip of nostalgia, yet serves a bigger purpose of letting people know that their bond goes deeper and declares their brotherhood. The most notable feature of the album is definitely Summer Walker who is absolute bliss in the track 'Mixy' with the hint of R&B that creates a fun and exciting musical tease. 'See Bout It' is another notable track featuring Mustard that is truly a spicy Latin surprise for the fans. 'Bars Into Captions' honors Southern rap forebears OutKast in a unique way, creating a true treat to the ears. Gucci Mane also has given one of his career-defining flashy performances on 'Us vs. Them'. This 18-track long album is most definitely the strongest project of post-Migos but relies heavily on the past and nostalgia. Yet it was able to create its own flavor that excites the audience. Justifying the excitement and anticipation of the fans, the album is creating a feeling of exhilaration for the post-Migos upcoming projects.

The 1975 is offering some amazing musical experience and maturity with its latest album 'Being Funny in a Foreign Language', an eleven-track pop music album.

The 1975 is churning out some musical brilliance in 2022 with its latest album 'Being Funny in a Foreign Language'. As quirky as its title suggests, this 44-minute-long pop album is a roller coaster of emotions that are highly relatable in the modern world. Whether it is feeble psyches and tired eyes on social media or the relationship with boredom where intimacy is found through Facetime; this album is masterfully crafted to reflect the lives of listeners, the common, and the mass. There is romance, fun, comedic edge, and a naked depiction of society. This latest album consists of a total of 11 singles and each of them is marking an epic comeback of this highly-talented English pop-rock band.

The 1975 is actually making good music that not only sounds good but is quite intriguing to spark emotions among the listeners, especially the youth with a sense of radicality and sincerity. Unlike previous albums like 'A Brief Inquiry Into Online Relationships (2018)', 'Notes on a ConditionalForm (2020)', etc; the band is showing more maturity as the latest album does not offer the thumbing of taps but rather provides careful use of classic guitars, drums, saxophone, and some major hooks. Jack Antonoff did a great job with his production help which made this album shorter and more focused.

Matty Healy didn't fail to captivate the fans with his unparalleled skills of singing and songwriting. Whether a satirist or romantic person or a postmodernist; Matty fits every role as he speaks from the heart.

The latest album 'Being Funny in a Foreign Language' offers some of the most wholesome musical experiments along with many emotional transitions related to the band. The track 'Part Of The Band' is the greatest reflection of himself. On the other hand, the band utilized Environmental activist Greta Thunberg's essay on climate to craft the lead and namesake single 'The 1975'.

The band is paving a way for a change, a hope for a better future that channelizes through everyone.

Released under the label of Dirty Hit Records, this album also offers ample romantic singles such as 'Looking For Somebody (To Love)', 'I'm In Love With You', 'About You', 'When We Are Together', etc.

It is romantic, it is cliché, it is profound and most importantly it is 1975 that makes everyone groove. The album is currently buzzing through all the major music platforms.

TAYLOR SWIFT'S 'MIDNIGHTS' IS SPREADING ELECTRONIC POP VIBES WITH IT

Taylor Swift has dropped her latest album 'Midnights' and it is acquiring a large number of listeners. This creation of her has created a buzz among everyone.

The biggest pop album has been released and no one was being able to wait for more. The global pop icon Taylor Swift has dropped her brand new album 'midnights' that everyone was eagerly anticipating. They were no promotions about the release except for the announcement. But it created one of the biggest buzzes of all time. This artist often shared some bits of the album, which encouraged the listeners immensely. People were extremely moved and intrigued by the album. It is her 10th studio album, and it is fulfilling in every possible way.

Her voice has been presented with electronic guitars. In this album, she has tried out some different things that have made the album even more captivating. With this album, listeners got the opportunity to experience something extremely unique. The diverse presentation has left everyone enthralled. Taylor made a powerful comeback with this album that no one can take their eyes off.

The fascinating descriptions and hooky music has made all the song diverse.

4.8/5

By Daily Music Roll

With such a large array of variations, Taylor has succeeded to attract her global audience. She has shown a whole different kind of confidence in this creation of her. There are thirteen enigmatic tracks that are enriched with profound lyricism and music. She has shaken the world of pop with this album and stunned everyone. This artist has stated a completely different vibe by delivering these pieces of music. It is a very special creation for the artist along with her listeners.

She has faced a lot of trouble with her previous works for the productions but now she has become from Miss Americana in favor to Miss Not-Afraid-to-Borrow-Kendrick's-Producer. And this initiative of hers is making a lot of difference. While making this album she has collaborated with Jack Antonoff. Along with that, there was something that everyone was talking about.

A brand would be structured with various songs of artists and this has been proposed by Lana Del Rey, but Taylor was not much informed about that. There are many things that Taylor has given her statement through this album. That is why her way of presentation has changed a lot. Now people are getting to see something from Taylor that no one has ever seen before.

The speculating deliverance Taylor has stunned all music enthusiasts. This artist is adding a new charm to pop music culture with this album. Those people who were saying her creations are getting monotonous; this album is something that they should listen to.

K-POP ICON BTS HAS ANNOUNCED THEY ARE JOINING KOREAN MILITARY SERVICE

On October 17, 2022, BigHit Entertainment which is the record label and management label of BTS announced that the members of BTS will complete their mandatory military service and it will start with the band's oldest member Jin. The other 6 boys will follow and join him shortly.

Why does BTS need to serve in the military?

According to the laws in South Korea, all able-bodied men in the country who are in the age group of 18 to 28 years must serve in the military. The time period is said to be between 18 to 21 months. It is to defend their country against North Korea and its nuclear-armed, aggressive, pro-war mentality.

It is mandatory for every man who is able-bodied to join the force by the age of 30 years. In the past, some exceptions were made for men who have won gold medals in the Olympics, Asian games for South Korea, or other classical musicians or dancers who have won top prizes in certain international/ national competitions.

Can there be any exceptions?

Regarding this, there has been a debate that is going on whether BTS will be joining the mandatory military service or will be excused too. Needless to say, the Korean band has had a huge impact on the international music industry. Their record-breaking musical projects, international fame, and worldwide popularity have been a great help in spreading South Korean culture to the world. The group has also contributed to the country's overall economy on a larger scale. There has been a buzz in the country since BTS is currently the biggest boyband in the world, they will qualify for the exemption. Where many supported their exemption, there has been opposition as well.

The debate and the decision

Some of the BTS members are approaching the age of 30 years, so the debate was becoming even stronger. On October 5th, during the parliament audit, Lee Yong Ho who is a member of the People Power Party asked Minister Park to review the issue of BTS's military service. In response, Minister Park has said, "Member Jin's enlistment is set to be sorted out by December, but the MCST will finalize our stance before that". He further added, "We are comprehensively reviewing the issue by looking at various aspects including the points that national defense is a sacred duty, military service is a symbol of fairness, BTS has made Korea known as the vanguard of K-culture and created a huge economic ripple effect".

Will it affect the group?

We know.... Everyone is thinking of the same thing, so let's address the elephant in the room. Will Jin joining the military affect the group and its future? The answer is no. At Least according to HYBE (they own Big Hit Entertainment). However, the question has been in people's minds since the topic first arose. Even Minister Park has said during his answer, "There are equity issues between popular artists including BTS, and those who practice fine arts. This will affect the group when one of the BTS members joins the army.", he said. After the news broke out that Jin will be joining the military, HYBE made an official statement, saying, "Both the company and the members of BTS are looking forward to reconvening as a group again around 2025 following their service commitment".

When will Jin join the service?

BTS members have been permitted to differ the law which opened a new amendment. In this new amendment, artists receive recommendations from the Korean ministry to postpone mandatory military service till they turn 30. BTS's oldest member, Jin has also put off the service for as long as he can. However, when the ministry of Korea finalized the service needed to be done, Jin now faces the full stint which means he will be out of the public eye and in the military for nearly two years when he turns 30 years old in December of 2022.

HYBE has announced, "Jin will cancel the request to delay enlistment in late October 2022 and follow the Military Manpower Administration's relevant procedures for enlistment,".

Jin himself addressed the issue in a press conference in April of this year. He said, "I talked a lot with the company and entrusted all military service-related tasks to the company". Previously HYBE stated that every member of the group will answer their "call for duty" but they are struggling as the policies keep changing and new amendments keep being made.

Now that it's all settled, Jin will initiate the process and join the service after he is done with his solo music release. His upcoming solo music is scheduled to be finished at the end of October. Fans are waiting for any news regarding Suga's joining now, as he is the second oldest member after Jin in BTS.

7 Interesting Things You Probably Didn't Know About the Queen of the Music Industry: Beyoncé

Critics and other people in the industry predicted the success of Beyoncé Giselle Knowles-Carter even before she debuted as a solo artist. In the 1990s, she was in an all-girl R&B group named Destiny's Child with her friends. The trio made it one of the best-selling girl groups of all time and Beyoncé was the one that caught the eye of everyone among all. She debuted in 2003 as a solo artist with the album, 'Dangerously In Love'. Since then she has become unstoppable energy and one of the most respected, widely famous, and among the bestsellers in the music industry. Soon she got the tag of the 'It Girl' and maintained her legacy throughout. But how much do we know about our favorite superstar and Queen Bey?

Keep reading to know 7 unknown yet interesting facts about Beyoncé.

7. She participated in 'Star Search' in 1993 and lost!

At only the age of 9 years, Beyoncé with her best friends created an all-girl singing and rapping group named

'Girls Tyme'. The group proceeded to take part in the US talent show 'Star Search' in 1993 when the singer was merely 12 years old. In the competition, the group performed effortlessly which helped them earn 3 stars from the judges. However, at the final battle, the group lost to 'Skeleton Crew', a rock band. The singer later in life called the experience a "defining moment" in her music career and childhood. In her song 'Flawless' she even included a soundbite from the show.

6. She continued her singing by performing for customers at her mother's salon

Talent has a habit of blooming even in unusual situations. Beyoncé was a natural performer and her childhood is living proof of that. In her documentary, 'Life Is But a Dream', she explained how she grew up at home with her mother who was a hairstylist. In her salon, she and her friends would perform if the customers wanted to listen. She then explained how even though her mother did not want to listen to it all the time, she and her friends insisted on singing and getting money in return.

5. Beyoncé and her alter ego Sasha Fierce

Performers often go through stage fright and stage anxiety that can be overpowering, and Beyoncé is no different. To overcome this, she invented her alter ego named Sasha Fierce. In an interview in 2008, she said that there are sentient things she would not say in public or certain types of clothes she would not choose to wear in real life.

But on stage, Sasha Fierce gave her the confidence to do so. This alter ego became a significant part of her image, she even named her 2008 album after this alter ego, 'I am...Sasha Fierce'.

4. Battle with depression in the Destiny's Child era

Destiny's Child broke up when Lockett and Roberson left the band. The media turned quickly on Beyoncé and blamed her for the disbanding. This took a toll on her mental health and she battled depression at this time. Beyoncé opened up about this stage and said she used to lock herself up in her room for days.

3. Obsession with the number 'four'

Queen Bey is obsessed with the number four and the reason behind it is that many important events in her life fall on this date. This includes her mother's birthday (January 4), her husband's birthday (December 4), her marriage anniversary (April 4), and her own birthday (September 4). She and her husband, Jay-Z have matching tattoos of roman numerals on their ring fingers. It is also the name of her fourth studio album.

2. Singing while running a mile was in her vocal training

For a long period of time, especially in the rising years of her career, Beyoncé's father Mathew Knowles was a big influence. He used to manage when she was in Destiny's Child and many of her techniques were developed under influence of her father. One of these is that she used to do her vocal training while running a mile. Mathew thought it would develop her ability to sing and dance at the same time. This is something that she still practices!

1. 'Crazy In Love' was written in two hours!

One of the career-defining songs of Beyoncé is definitely 'Crazy In Love'. But how much do you know about the story behind how it was composed? Well, the super-talented Bey wrote the entire track in just two hours.... with a hangover!!! Many of us would not even want to go to work when we are hungover, but Beyoncé wrote one of the most celebrated tracks of all time while being in that state. Even though the singer herself along with her team was doubtful of the track, it turned out to be a huge huge success!!

Listen to the Enthusiastic Song 'Working on a Hangover' By Cynthia Renee

The prolific artist Cynthia Renee is reaching out to a large number of listeners with her newly released soundtrack 'Working on a Hangover'. This unique presentation has garnered many audiences from all around the world. The talented artist is spreading her musical charm and creating a solid fanbase in the shortest period of time. Recently we got the opportunity to have chat with her and this is how it went-

DMR: Hello Ms. Cynthia Renee, first of all, congratulations on the huge success of the song 'Working on a Hangover'. What would you like to say about your debut single track?

Cynthia Renee: Working on a Hangover is simply a fun tune about blowing off steam after a long workweek by getting your drink on a Friday night. It's a super catchy song with lyrics you will want to sing along with and tap your feet to.

DMR: Are you happy with all the responses on this track?

Cynthia Renee: I am so thrilled with the incredible response to this song! I think Working on a Hangover is just super relatable by most people and it's just an overall fun tune.

DMR: How did you come up with the concept of this soundtrack?

Cynthia Renee: In working with SSM Nashville Records, I have these songwriting sessions with amazing Nashville-based songwriters. When I wrote Working on a Hangover with fellow songwriter Dustin James, I had already had two earlier songwrites that same day. I guess you could say, I was mentally toasted at that point and struggling to come up with a new song idea. Dustin started playing this catchy lick and almost immediately we had the chorus. The song pretty much wrote itself from there.

DMR: What has inspired you to make a song like this?

Cynthia Renee: If you have been to Nashville you know it's a Bar Town. Honky Tonks line Broadway street and music echoes down the boulevard. Thus, Working on a Hangover just seemed like the perfect Nashville song.

DMR: You have a band and you are a musician for a long time. What encouraged you to become a musician?

Cynthia Renee: I was singing before I could really talk. My parents told me as a toddler I used to sing along with television commercial jingles just by mimicking the words and sounds I heard. Then I started singing in church and at nursing homes and I even had the opportunity to perform at my own grandpa's church on many occasions.

I've always loved music and the storytelling involved. I love being able to bring someone joy or even move them to tears through a song I've sung.

DMR: How do manage to create songs on your own?

Cynthia Renee: I've always loved to write. I've written many stories, songs and poems in my life and have filled up countless journals. Writing songs helps me process my life and the circumstances I'm going through. Writing songs often helps bring me resolution to trials I'm experiencing in my life. Then I can sing about those trials and how I got through them and maybe help someone else.

DMR: Is there any other genre that you would like to explore in the future?

Cynthia Renee: I've always loved the gospel and hymns. Singing in my grandpa's church and other churches growing up has always inspired me to sing songs about healing, faith and the Lord. The Lord has gotten me through many difficult times and has also blessed me with musical success. I have a lot to be thankful for.

DMR: If you were not a musician then what profession would you choose?

Cynthia Renee: I have actually worked as an estate lawyer for many years. But I would happily retire from lawyering to sing and perform full-time.

DMR: Is there any new project you are working on right now?

Cynthia Renee: If the success of Working on a Hangover continues, there may be a music video in the future. I also have several other singles complete and hope to finish an entire album in the near future.

DMR: If yes then when you will release it?

Cynthia Renee: The release date for future singles is really up to my label. I have been in discussions with SSM Nashville about that but we don't have actual release dates yet stay tuned.

DMR: Are planning some new concerts in the coming days?

Cynthia Renee: I have several concerts that are in the works right now in the greater Sacramento area. I just finished a show at Hard Rock Casino, Sacramento, and I plan to perform at Swabbies along the Sacramento Delta soon. I am also in discussions with Sky River Casino to perform at their venue soon as well.

DMR: Any message you would like to give to your fans?

Cynthia Renee: I am honestly still pinching myself with all the success this song has had, and I truly cannot thank my fans enough for their continued support along my musical journey. I have wanted to get my music out in front of a larger audience my whole life and it has been an absolute dream of mine to get it there. It may sound a bit cliché, but I guess with enough hard work and perseverance, dreams really do come true!

Thank you so much for taking out your precious time.

Kelly Clarkson Discusses Her Not Being A Part Of 'The Voice' In The New Interview With Gwen Stefani

Leaving your co-worker or work bestie is always a tough thought and it was a heavy subject that was discussed on The Kelly Clarkson Show when the host, Kelly Clarkson invited rock-and-roll icon, Gwen Stefani. Even though the show was competitive as every coach was on each others' necks the whole time to win the challenge, in real-life, there is no bad blood between the two queens of the music industry. There is more like a deep friendship bond between them that was highlighted during the entire episode of The Kelly Clarkson Show.

Gwen Stefani was invited by the "Since U Been Gone" singer for the second time on the couch and their candid and lightened interview gave us a sneak at the dynamic that the duo shares. During the interview, Clarkson admitted that it was 'weird' for her not to be a part of the competition this year. She joined the reality singing tv show back in 2018 for season 14 and has been a consistent coach for these 4 years. During her presence on the show, Kelly has been a part of four back-to-back wins which was historic in its sense.

Gwen, responding to Clarkson's comment about feeling weird for not being on the stage with everyone else said, "It's weird to be here talking to you". Further explaining her feeling about the singer's departure, she said that she has been feeling like she is "cheating on you or something". The Havana singer, Camila Cabello was the one who took Kelly's spot at the competition, being the fourth judge of the show, and the switch-up also made its way into the conversation between Clarkson and Stefani.

Kelly, showing her excitement about Camilla joining her spot, says that both of them share similar personalities. Agreeing to that Gwen further states, "I was gonna say, she has the same mentality as you. Like, she doesn't care about glam or about what she wears,".

Discussing the similarities furthermore, Stefani says that Cabello talks a lot and is competitive, and continued saying, "she's umm..she's you!"

The two also discussed the infamous Blake Shelton rivalry. At one point, when Kelly joked about her excitement to see Camilla going against Blake, Gwen responded saying, "It took [Camila] a couple of days to really get there and after the first 'Shut up, Blake', then it was on."

Even though Gwen and Blake are now married, there is no reason to think she is going to go easy on her husband. Blake reigns as the coach with most of the wins, now that Kelly has departed. It is getting more exciting to see if Camilla can take the trophy this year or if the seniors get the last laugh.

Adele's Las Vegas Shows' Tickets Sell At $40,000, Fans Express Disappointment On Social Media

Fans are left disappointed after tickets to Adele's upcoming gig in Las Vegas plummeted to sky-high prices. The 34-year-old singer postponed her Las Vegas residency merely 24 hours before the opening in January, which had been a grand event with a splendid orchestra, band, and a 60-members choir. The singer has now revised her plan and decided to "strip down" on her shows in order to make them more "intimate" for her audience.

According to reports, tickets for Adele's residency in Las Vegas are being sold for as high as 40,000 dollars per piece. The tickets were initially priced at as low as 85 dollars but they were all sold out within minutes, after which fans of the "Easy on Me" singer were compelled to look for tickets on resale websites like Stubhub or subscribe to Ticketmaster's Verified Fan, where the prices of the tickets were fixed as high as £40,000. The presale was supposed to take place on Tuesday, but following a server outage, it was postponed to Wednesday.

The Weekends with Adele shows were supposed to be opened in January at The Colosseum at Caesars Palace but was canceled due to Covid-19 at the last minute, leaving fans heartbroken and angry over the money wasted on hotels and flight tickets. In July, Adele took to social media to announce the revised dates for the shows to be held in November and thanked the fans for their patience. She also announced that priority will be given to the existing-ticket holders of the shows.

The presale was supposed to take place on Tuesday but following a server outage, it was postponed to Wednesday. As the tickets reached record-high prices, fans who were unable to purchase the cheaper presale tickets took to social media to express their outrage at the dynamic prices that left major dents in their pockets. While some of them called out the resellers for ripping off fans by purchasing tickets at lower rates and then making ridiculously high profits, others blamed the singer for putting her fans in a tight spot by holding too small a tour.

Back in January, Adele shared a video on her social media channels apologizing for canceling her show at such short notice. She explained to her fans that in spite of her best efforts, she would not be able to carry out the shows as Covid 19 had afflicted most of her crew and team and crew, along with delivery delays for the show. Adele appears to be ecstatic at having finally overcome that snag and being able to perform.

The Prolific Country Music Artist Jody Miller Has Died At the Age Of 80

The country music legend Jody Miller has died at the age of 80. She is a Grammy Award-winning singer, who has shown her musical charm to all country music lovers. Miller lived the very last moment of her life in her hometown Blanchard, Oklahoma. The artist died on Thursday and she had been treated for the disease Parkinson's for the last few years.

Her daughter Robin Brooks made her statement by saying 'Middle Sister is sorry to announce the passing of Jody Miller this morning, music icon and mother of Robin Brooks. Please remember the family as they deal with this great loss'.

She was the very first artist from Oklahoma who won a prestigious award like Grammy Award. Her death has been extremely shocking for her fans. The news was devastating for everyone. Her creation 'Queen of the House' accumulated a large number of listeners and made her a global icon.

After her big success, she got the chance to work with Capitol Records and established herself as a prolific artist in the industry. It can be said that she had a long-lasting career among everyone. She has given many soundtracks in her career, which has helped her remain a significant country artist.

Some other tracks of her that have gotten huge responses are 'Home of the Brave' and 'Long Black Limousine'. Apart from Capitol Records, she has also collaborated with Epic Records. With this new recording label, she has given songs like 'Baby I'm Yours', 'There's a Party Goin' On', 'Darling, You Can Always Come Back Home', and 'He's So Fine'.

All these creations of her are considered the finest country music. Her absence in the music world will make a deep impact. She has shown different aspects of her as a musician at certain points in time. In 1980, this artist paused herself as a country music artist, and later she tried her hands at Gospel music.

After her death, Jennifer McMullen said a few words about the singer 'She had this innate, God-given ability to interpret and communicate with the most beautiful tones and inflection'. She has also added that 'She made it look and sound so easy that it sometimes takes a moment to realize the greatness of what you are hearing. But she was just as authentic and exceptional in her own life as she was on stage and on record'.

BTS's Jimin Has Earned Four Nominations In Multiple Korean Music Award Shows

While most members of BTS have taken re-birth with solo music careers, Jimin seems to make some significant progress despite having no official debut as a soloist.

With his unwavering personality and musical aura, the artist has made each of his releases a successful one.

It is the time of the year when Korean Music Award Shows take place and Jimin has already earned 4 nominations single-handedly. On October 24, Mnet Asia Music Awards declared the nominations for various categories, and Jimin along with V, J-Hope, Suga, and the group BTS together have garnered a total of 17 nominations.

‘With You’ is the most anticipated musical project by Jimin which happened to be his first-ever solo release as well out of BTS.

The artist collaborated with Ha Sungwoon to create this luxury OST which is nominated as the Best OST of the year on MAMA. There are also many other artists on the list such as Melomance's ‘Love, Maybe,’ ‘Christmas Tree’ by V, ‘Your Existence’ by Wonstein, etc to name some. Jimin’s OST is the only OST to be in this category which is used for popular Korean Drama ‘Our Blues’.

Other than the list of nominations, ‘With You’ is also making and breaking some records as it stands as the most streamed OST released in 2022.

It has already garnered more than 158 Million streams on Spotify and continues to gain more. It has also gained more than 30 Million streams on YouTube as well as gathered more than 385K Shazams.

The track is also making history by being the first ever Korean OST which is topping WorldWide Apple Music Chart, Gaon Weekly Charts, Billboard Charts of Asian countries, Melon's Top 100, and others. The OST is the fastest song to achieve #1 in 100 countries in iTunes history.

The track has also sold over 105K units only in the United States. The song earned another nomination for the Song of The Year (Daesang).

Jimin’s solo track ‘Filter’ was also nominated for Song of The Year on the 10th GAON Chart Awards released in 2020 while he was in BTS. Similarly, another track produced by him titled ‘Friends’ have been nominated and was used as the OST Marvel's blockbuster hit ‘Eternals’ in 2021.

Jimin is currently working on many new musical projects, making sure to gain more achievements. Stay tuned to know more.

RIHANNA MAKES AN EPIC COMEBACK WITH HER SOLO SINGLE ON 'BLACK PANTHER: WAKANDA FOREVER'

Rihanna has come back to the music industry with her latest solo project 'Lift Me Up' from the movie 'Black Panther: Wakanda Forever', a tribute to Chadwick Boseman.

Pop queen Rihanna has dropped her first solo single in six years and the fans are going crazy over it. While most people thought that the singer might have stopped working in the industry due to her prolific progress with Fenty Beauty; the singer proved everybody wrong by singing one of the most heartfelt tracks ever. She has performed the song 'Lift Me Up' which is taken from the soundtrack of Marvel's sequel 'Black Panther: Wakanda Forever'. This highly anticipated movie is all set to release this November and the singer dropped the track on Friday, teasing her return to the music industry through social media.

While the singer is getting critical acclaim for her return to the industry, Director Ryan Coogler said that it was to honor the late actor Chadwick Boseman who played the character of Black Panther. The director said, "Honestly, I think it was Chad". He further said "A lot of improbable things needed to happen for it to come through and Rihanna was very clear that she did that for him."

Boseman was one of the finest actors in the industry who appeared in various movies like 'Da 5 Bloods', '21 Bridges', 'Get On Up' and many others. The actor died in 2020 after being diagnosed with colon cancer four years. He was posthumously nominated for Oscar for Ma Rainey's movie 'Black Bottom'. Rihanna's tribute to Boseman is truly indulging and the lamentation resonates deep within the fans' hearts.

The track 'Lift Me Up' has been co-written by Coogler, Rihanna, and singer-songwriter Tems. With the subtle musical arrangement along with Rihanna's amazing vocal skills creates a cinematic essence that is perfect for the movie as well as its theme of it.

Director Coogler explained, "We knew (she) was at a point in her life as well where she was focusing on different things - focused on business, motherhood, which is a big theme in our film. We were holding out hope that maybe it could work out and boy did it for this song." this is the first solo single by the singer since her last studio album 'Anti' in 2016.

With Rihanna's involvement in the movie Wakanda Forever, the anticipation and excitement meter has gone even higher. It is paving a way for making it a huge box office success, releasing soon on November 11. Perhaps it is one of the most emotional projects ever released by Rihanna.

Groove Along With Striking Artist Lizzie and Her Upcoming Single, 'Fool of My Heart'

After the debut EP 'Silverlining', the mesmerizing artist Lizzie has released the official first single off her second EP, titled 'Fool of My Heart'.

A few days back, I came across an interesting young artist on Spotify that made me spellbound. The artist, Lizzie has done an exemplary job at making her debut EP consisting of 6 tracks that will take you on 6 separate journeys. Now the artist has released the first single off her second EP, entitled 'Fool of My Heart' which is available for you to listen to now.

Come along with me in this beautiful musical journey of the singer and songwriter Lizzie and be a part of her exceptional musical talents.

The track, 'Fool of My Heart' is a beautiful piece of art that makes the entire room groove along. I was enthralled by the fact that the artist is just 18 years old and at this age, she is able to convey her feelings and emotions through breathtaking lyricism.

On top of that, her vocal tunes and singing ability with her belting voice are absolutely enrapturing in the track. The more you listen to it, the more you would want to place it on repeat.

There are songs like, 'Kindness For Weakness', 'My Story', 'Blue Sky', on her debut EP, 'Silverlining' and singles like, 'Makes You Feel Better' that are standing proof of Lizzie's immense talent.

Now that the artist has officially started her second EP by releasing 'Fool of My Heart' which is keeping me and the audience on edge and eager. It is now available on YouTube, Spotify, and Apple Music.

You can also follow her for more updates on Instagram, and Facebook.

After Getting The 'Permission To Dance', Boston Dynamics' Robot Spot Grooves Along Popular BTS Track In New Video

The internet rejoiced when they saw the Boston Dynamics' robot Spotto dancing again. This time, the phenomena happened at BTS's concert that was held in Busan, South Korea where Spot was seen to be dancing at the band's viral hit song, 'Permission To Dance'. The new video already had the netizens of the internet go crazy and the video of the robot dog Spot dancing went viral as well. People are praising the robot's dancing skills and cute poses.

The robots of Boston Dynamics are technologically extremely advanced. Thor activities have progressed over the past few years and now these robots can do multiple tasks at once. They can do dances, running, and gymnastics, and are even capable of taking part in daily life activities; such as lifting objects, opening doors, etc. With each video performance, people are seeing more innovation and entertainment than the previous ones which is becoming awe-striking for them.

Boston Dynamics have uploaded on its site that the ultimate goal of developing these dog-like robots is to use them as useful tools that will help people do chores and upgrade their livelihood of people. With the help of these robots, people will be able to lead safe life. In the meantime, the robots are showing their ability to move quickly, easily, and in sync in these new dancing videos which are made for entertainment purposes. In the video, a sign of optimism and buoyancy is shown throughout the entire video where people could see the words, "The greatest moment is yet to come".

Spot, the robot dog from Boston Dynamics made its first appearance back in 2016.

It is the smaller prototype of the company's larger dog robot, BigDog. After its first appearance in 2019, it was made available to purchase for common people a year later. The company has been open about facing difficulties while making these videos featuring robots with engineering which is becoming easier and less complicated over years.

This new video was a collaboration between Boston Dynamics, BTS, and HyundaiMotor where the seven members were also present. The company's human-like robot, Atlas, also made a special appearance. It was for BTS's 'Yet To Come', a free concert that was held to support South Korea's bid to hold the World Expo in 2030.

The K-Fication Of India: Indian People Are Now Getting Married In The Korean Way

Korean culture and its impact are now impossible to ignore. The entire world is swept away by the cultural cyclone that South Korea provided. There is not one person of Gen-Z or Millennial that does not know what K-Pop sounds like or did not ever watch a K-drama scene and in India, a country adapting to all cultures, the madness over Korean culture is very prominent.

The latest reflection was seen at the Korean cultural festival, 'Rang De Dhaba' in Delhi on Saturday. The fandom of Korean music and entertainment just had its first Korean wedding at the festival. A couple, who has been married for 20 years renewed their wedding vows in Korean wedding style at the festival.

Jyoti and Vishal Gupta, the couple who have daughters who are die-hard fans of Korean culture, had pushed them to do it in the Korean way.

Although the rituals were performed by an Indian man. The entire ceremony was over in just 30 minutes and was extremely simple as if someone oversimplified the "big fat Indian wedding" and a simpler, shorter version of it came out.

Talking about the experience, Visal Gupta, the groom said, "At first we were reluctant. It was a work day. But we were surprised at how much we enjoyed the whole experience", The 45 years old telecom engineer further commented that their wedding was the shortened version of the original "all-day" Korean wedding.

The attire also followed the Korean traditional wedding style where the groom wore blue and the bride wore red silk.

'Rang De Korea' is a two-day affair that is the biggest Korean cultural festival in India. The wedding happened at the DLF mall in Delhi where the wedding watchers were mainly young Indians. The festival is hosted by Korean Cultural Center India (KCCI), marking its 10th anniversary this year. The event was a display of Korea's soft cultural seed spreading in the society of India.

The entire fest was all about Korean attire, calligraphy, and not to mention K-Pop, K-Food, and a display of the Korean martial art, taekwondo.

The wedding was a highlight of this two-day event. It also gave inspiration to Amratha Kong and Hyunbin Kong, the inter-racial couple who met through a language exchange app and was married in Kerala following the Hindu rituals in January of this year to wed for the second time in Korean style.
