BLACKPINK IS RENEWING ITS CONTRACT WITH YG ENTERTAINMENT

The K-pop girl band Blackpink is renewing their contracts with YG Entertainment once again. The entertainment company has said ‘The board has completed a resolution about renewing the contracts with Blackpink’s four members’. Previously, this girl group announced that they were planning to go on a world tour and drop a new album.

On that note, YG Entertainment has said ‘We are pleased to continue our relationship with Blackpink’. They have also added ‘Blackpink will continue to do its best to shine even brighter in the global music market as an artist representing not only our company but also K-pop. [...] And we send our unwavering support and faith to [fans]’.

This news was filed by the company on Wednesday and for that reason, the KOSDAQ-listed share has grown by nearly 26% to KRW60,700 by the midday. The contract of the company with Blackpink expired in August this year. Therefore, after numerous thoughts, the company is renewing its contract with the girl group.

This group has been formed in 2016 under YG Entertainment. Since then, they have received global recognition and much growth. This seven-year deal has been very much useful for the band. This deal played a major part in achieving all kinds of success. For that reason, they are renewing the contract for several years.

Right now, the girl group has decided to do 66 performances in 34 cities. As of now, the number of viewers is expected to be 2.1 million people. This girl group has become one of the most successful K-pop bands currently.

Their exceptional performances have helped them to achieve recognition from the global audiences. Now all of their fans are eagerly waiting for the world tour. They went for the world tour in 2022 and after a whole year, they are again preparing to go for another. Therefore, their fans can’t wait much to see them performing in front of their eyes.

This band has also performed at Coachella, which is a huge achievement for the group. About their performance, one of the media companies said ‘It’s clear from the stellar show that the group is not only fully formed and confident, it’s totally owning topline placement.’

The four members of Blackpink — Jennie , Kim, Lisa, Rose and Jisoo — along with a cadre of dancers and a crack band, blasted through songs like ‘How You Like That’ and ‘Tally’ (from 2022’s chart-topping ‘Born Pink’) with choreography meticulously timed to make the most of the stage’s massive video screens, and routines and references that called to mind past pop heroines like Lady Gaga and Janet Jackson’.

Taylor Swift Opens Up About Friendship With Beyoncé and Slams the Tour Comparisons

Taylor Swift is this year's TIME "Person of the Year" and in that interview, she has opened up about a lot, starting from her career, her romantic life, and the treatment of the media. It is in this interview that she also opened up about the comparisons between her and Beyoncé's tour. On Wednesday, on the cover story of Time Magazine, the 33-year-old "Anti-Hero" singer talked about her years-long friendship with Queen Bey. "She's the most precious gem of a person — warm and open and funny," Taylor said of the "Drunk in Love" star. "And she's such a great disrupter of music-industry norms. She taught every artist how to flip the table and challenge archaic business practices," Swift continued.

The global pop star went ahead and addressed one of the most recurring themes in this year's pop culture conversations. Both the "Karma" singer and "Single Ladies" musician went on tour this year: Swift embarked on her infamous "Eras Tour" and Beyoncé joined the road with her Renaissance World Tour. Now both tours have been extremely successful, in terms of revenues and critical acclaim; however, there is still an ongoing debate among fans and the media about which tour is better than the other, or which one is more successful than the other.

Addressing this unnecessary debate that has been going on online since the start of both tours, Swift seemed to appear angry and disappointed. In the interview, she said, "There were so many stadium tours this summer, but the only ones that were compared were me and Beyoncé." "Clearly it's very lucrative for the media and stan culture to pit two women against each other, even when those two artists in question refuse to participate in that discussion," she continued.

It is not just the fact that two of the world's biggest pop stars went on tour in the same year, both Swift and Bey also had their concert films out this year, both distributed through AMC Theaters.

However, to show their immense support for each other, Bey attended the Los Angeles premiere of Eras first and then Swift returned the favor by being present at the London premiere of Renaissance. "I'm so glad. I'll never know what my life would've been like without Beyoncé's influence," Taylor wrote on Instagram after the Eras premier. "Her generosity of spirit. Her resilience and versatility. She's been a guiding light throughout my career and the fact that she showed up tonight was like an actual fairy tale," she continued while showing her gratitude toward Beyoncé.

Ariana Grande has Signed with a New Management Firm

Ariana Grande has decided to make a change as she has signed with a newly-launched Good World Management firm by Brandon Creed. The popstar has split with longtime manager Scooter Braun's SB Projects and it happened earlier this year. Clearly, she was looking for a new management after working with the company since 2013. It has been a decade since she dropped her debut album 'Yours Truly'.

Brandon Creed's previous clients include Bruno Mars as well as Lizzo. Creed announced the launch of his firm back in July and it was joined by Charli XCX, Troye Sivan, and Mark Ronson. Ariana Grande is his third major signing after Normani and Demi Lovato who has been Scooter Braun's clients.

It goes without saying that Ariana is one of the most successful pop stars who has six albums in the Top 10 of the Billboard 200. Her latest musical project 'Positions' is one of the greatest hits which has debuted at the top of the chart in 2020 and spent two weeks at No. 1. On the Hot 100 singles chart. She has a total of twenty top 10 tracks and seven among them are at No. 1.

Braun gained more notoriety after finding Justine Bieber on YouTube in 2007. he also infamously purchased Taylor Swift's Masters (her first six albums) in 2019 which he sold to Shamrock Capital for $300 million in 2020. After this incident, Taylor Swift wrote on Tumblr, "This is my worst case scenario. This is what happens when you sign a deal at fifteen to someone for whom the term 'loyalty' is clearly just a contractual concept," and eventually all the other artists got aware of whom they are dealing with.

It was reported that Adriana Grande "took meetings with at least one management firm before deciding to build her own team, with her mother Joan in a strong position." Good World Management is perhaps a good choice for Grande which consists of a large roster of artists like Charlotte Lawrence, Emile Haynie, Orville Peck, Jake Wesley Rogers, Brett McLaughlin, Tame Impala, and the list goes Ariana has also recently shared photos on Instagram from the studio where she is working on her seventh studio album. The singer has also starred in The Good Witch, Universal's adaptation of the Broadway musical Wicked, as the lead role of Glinda.

During this time that I'm taking to assimilate everything, there have been false public allegations, and because of the respect I have for her, our families, and all we ever lived, I couldn't stay quiet and continue to see how they try to destroy the most real love story God has ever allowed me to live. With nothing more to add, to my fans that I love so much, thank you for being there."

Cardi B Made her Runway Debut for Balenciaga in a Dramatic Faux Fur Coat

Cardi B is always studied for her fashion choices and she stirred up many conversations for her fashion look. She is also known for bringing several runway looks to the red carpets. However, on Saturday, she surprised everyone as she made her runway debut for Balenciaga at the brand's 2024 pre-fall runway show in Los Angeles. The "Bongos" rapper modeled a Cobalt blue, floor-sweeping faux-fur coat as she walked during the outdoor fashion. She paired her coat with diamond jewelry - a BB logo choker along with a full-finger ring that made her look nothing short of something straight out of a Haute couture reality. With the blue faux-fur coat, Cardi wore black stiletto booties that gave it an edgier and complete look.

When it comes to her makeup for the event, she went in for an eye-grabbing look including a heavily-lined red lipstick, barely visible eyebrows, and her infamous Monroe piercing. Looking an extra edge, the 31-year-old rapper wore her hair in a sleek, long ponytail. The glittering list of attendees in Balenciaga's 2024 pre-fall runway show included big names like Kim Kardashian, Tinashe, Sexy Red, Tracee Ellis Ross, Lil Wayne, Keith Powers, Storm Reid, Teyana Taylor, Flo Milli, 2 Chainz, Kaytranada, Luka Sabbat, Tyler James Williams, and more.

Following her modeling debut on the runway, the artist took to Instagram to share the excitement as well as her gratitude for the given opportunity. She uploaded a series of photos from the event, wearing the same dress and makeup along with her other makeup looks from the event. She paired the photo series with the caption, "Yesterday was a dream! I had too much fun storming your runway! Thank you to @Balenciaga @Demnagram @johanfleury and the entire team, you all are always so amazing to work with! Thank you to my team @kollincarter_ @tokyostylez @erikalapearl @juanmarioortiz_ . DARE TO BE DIFFERENT ??❤️"

Her comment section of the post is as usual filled with praises both for her bold looks and modeling debut. Lola Brooke commented, "Mean [fire emoji]" while her husband, American Rapper Offset commented a ton of heart-eye emojis. A follower also quoted Cardi's lyrics from "I Like It" where she shouts out the brand's name saying, "BALENCIAGA MOMMMMAAAA KNOW YOU HEARD ABOUT HA." However, these positive comments did not overshadow others bringing up Balenciaga's controversial past. One such comment from a user read, "Love you Cardi but I thought we canceled them for that foul kid sh*t?!". Another user wrote, "But didn't Balance post a weird campaign sexualizing kids?" while another comment read, "I thought Balenciaga was canceled ... and you got kids Cardi smh." Despite such controversy, Cardi B is not the first celebrity to openly support the brand after its 2022 scandal as celebrities like Kim Kardashian and Nicole Kidman appeared on various advertisements for Balenciaga.

Jessi And Jay Park Shut Down Their Contract Speculating Rumors

On the 6th of December Afternoon, various media outlets were informed that Jessi was losing all her knots with her agency, Jay Park's music label MORE VISION. According to this news, Jessi was showing intentions to terminate their exclusive contract and they both are discussing the matter. To which, later that day, MORE VISION made a brief comment, "We're checking [the facts]." The 6th of December was an extremely hard day for their fans. There are no solid proofs of what might have ignited this false rumor. But according to this speculation, they both were reflecting on this matter and once again Jessi is ready to leave another label. They both promptly silenced all the speculation there was about Jessi leaving the label. They both took their time to dispel the concerns about their alleged conflict.

On the 7th of December, Jay Park posted on Instagram a photo where he and Jessi are standing back to back and he captioned the photo, writing, "Me and Jessi [are] good. No need to worry. There is no such thing as discord." Jessi also addressed this rumor with a post on her Instagram stories, she wrote, "Just arrived in NY... and woke up to this Nonsense... Y'all need to get a life for real. We all good over here. Happy Holidays Guys!" Last year in July, Jessi ended her agreement with her former agency, P NATION, after three years of working together. After working on her own without any agencies, until April of this year, she joined Jay Park's label MORE VISION.'

On October 2023, Jessi unveiled her latest digital single 'Gum' across various music-streaming platforms. This was the first song the rapper released under this label. The dynamics of this number were completely managed by Jay Park's label company MORE VISION. The song is very lively and upbeat and has managed to skillfully draw parallels between Jessi's distinctive qualities and various flavors of gum. The witty, clever, and catchy lyrics of the song have stayed with the audience for a long time.

This song has generated significant anticipation amongst fans and it was marked as Jessi's return also. After she released her massive hit 'Zoom'. 'Zoom' has also made a global appeal due to its corny narrative and compelling styles.

Selena Gomez Says She is Dating Benny Blanco From the Last Six Months on Instagram

American singer-songwriter and actress Selena Gomez recently made shocking revelations on social media. She seemingly confirmed her relationship with music producer Benny Blanco on Instagram, but that is not all, as she continued sharing details about her new relationship. The 'Only Murders in the Building' actress revealed her relationship's timeline as she left several comments on a fan page's Instagram post claiming that she is indeed dating Blanco. This post speculated this relationship between these two musical stars which she confirmed by commenting on one word, "Facts." She continued, "He is my absolute everything in my heart."

In response to a statement that predicted she might have been "mad" at her fans and followers following their reaction to her seemingly new relationship, the 31-year-old musician commented,

"Not mad. It's been 6 months bb. I will always defend my friends, family, and fans till the day I die." This admiration and adoration for Blanco seemed to continue as the pop star kept making several comments. On another fan page's post, she said that this might have been the best relationship she has ever had. She commented, "He's still better than anyone I've ever been with. Facts."

In another comment, Selena expressed to her followers and fans that Blanco "has treated me better than any human being on this planet." Her revelations about her new beau continued as she stated in another comment that he is "the best thing that's ever happened to me." Earlier the actress was romantically linked with another singer, One Direction's famed Zayn Ma. The two were reportedly making out when the duo was spotted at dinner in New York City in March. Before that in January, she was also linked to The Chainsmokers' Drew Taggart. Gomez's romantic life has always been in the spotlight following her on-and-off relationship with now-married singer-songwriter Justin Bieber for several years.

This is not the first time that Selena Gomez went on a comment spree online, however, this time she commented on several topics. One was a candid statement that she made revealing her history with cosmetic procedures. She replied, "Hahahaha I've had Botox bb girl" to a fan comment that now has been deleted. This marked the first time Selena admitted that she had had any cosmetic procedure done.

In the same post, Gomez also teased the release of her forthcoming album. When one fan asked her about "good music", she replied, "Omg I'm so excited it's coming" and when she was asked when, she stated that it is coming "way before my birthday," which is in July.

Dove Cameron's Debut Album 'Alchemical: Volume 1' Explores About Her 'Personhood'

Dove Cameron's fresh release is taking over every pop music lover. The dark charm that she has cast on her audience with her Debut Album 'Alchemical: Volume 1' might be upholding her skill for a prolonged period. This 27-year-old pop star initially started off her career with Disney and that pretty blond twin was more than just a cute face who can sing. Her debut album is sharing the anecdotes of her exploring 'Personhood'. This is one of the most rigorous transformations that one has to go through to find who are really are and how they perceive themselves.

'Alchemical: Volume 1' is a highly intriguing and reflective release, and this franchise will have another part. And if you think that this part is wild, dark, and extremely sensuous then according to the pop star, the concluding part will be darker and more seductive. In her recent interview with Rania Aniftos, she explained, "I felt like I was writing the two halves in such different headspaces. The first half was really about the ending of something, and an entire year of my life, and the processing of that. There was a very stark sonic page turn when it came to the next musical phase that I stepped into."

As she warns that the next part is going to be more "Sexy", she discloses that the next part will have some interesting collaborations as well. However, she also reveals that it was very important that she conveys her inner vulnerability through her craft in her debut album, with songs like 'Sand'. She said, "I always said that I never wanted to release any sad music or ballads, because I was really avoidant for a long time, like, 'Everything's happy! Everything's so amazing!' But I was not happy," Then she adds, "I decided if I was going to be a person, right? Your personhood and your life has to come before everything. If I was ever going to become the person I was going to be — and music is so important to me — I had to integrate what has happened so far and I have to write for me first and foremost." She also talks about her time with Disney and how that experience impacted her career and well-being.

Now, her father, Dukagjin Lipa posted additional pictures from their trip to India, showing them staying and visiting New Delhi. The global pop star and her family went exploring the city and posed for pictures in front of Humayun Tomb and Bangla Sahib Gurudwara in New Delhi.

"Best family," another user commented on the pictures on Instagram. One of the users also requested Mr. Lipa to visit Mumbai with his family. Celebrate this Christmas with the nostalgic hit 'All I Want for Christmas is You' by Mariah Carey who has just broken another record for most streams in a single day on Spotify.

According to Forbes, it is not just about a song that makes everyone nostalgic but there is a business aspect to it as well. The Economist estimated that Mariah Carey earned around $2.5 - $3 million dollar every year from this song. Since 1994, she has gathered more than $60 million till now. It means the singer has earned $20 million every 10 years, or $10 million every five years. With every year passing and breaking more records; the song has been doing good business for years now. In the earlier couple weeks of December was dominated by Brenda Lee's "Rockin' Around the Christmas Tree" as it took the top spot on the Billboard Hot 100. And now it is time for 'All I Want for Christmas is You're to take over.

"All I Want for Christmas Is You" has accumulated more than 1 billion streams and the number is only increasing with each day. Previously, the singer said in an interview, "It's an amazing thing, and I'm very thankful. I can't believe this song I wrote so long ago when I first started." BEYONCÉ ACCUSED OF IMITATING A JAPANESE DESIGNER FOR HER 'RENAISSANCE' TOUR

Beyoncé has been accused of imitating Japanese artist Hajime Sorayama's robot designs for her 'Renaissance' tour. Hajime Sorayama is a renowned illustrator known for his detailed erotic and hyper-feminine robots.

The designer said that he would have worked with the 'Say My Name' artist on her spectacular accessory that he has compared to his work for the Weekend's Shows, featuring a massive version of one of his femme robotic dolls.

The comment section is pouring with mixed opinions, many of them claiming the artist may have been inspired by Fritz Lang's 'Metropolis', a 1927 film.

Besides the hitmaker's robot headpiece and his styles on Instagram, wrote, "Yo @beyonce... You should have asked me 'officially' so that I could make much better work for you as like my man @theweeknd."

The singer recently dropped her 'Renaissance' tour concert film, featuring the latest track 'MY HOUSE' in the end.

In the meantime, Tina Knowles highlighted by calling out the 'stupid, ignorant, hating racist statements' after her daughter was accused of lightening her skin tone.

The mother of the 'Crazy in Love' singer was left furious that a video was created talking about the 42-year-old Grammy winner trying to make her skin tone light at a premiere of her movie 'Renaissance', said those who made fun of her daughter are just jealous.

She also chose a lengthy response, saying, "Came across this today and decided to post it after seeing all of the stupid ignorant self, hating racist statements about her, lightening her skin, and wearing platinum hair wanting to be white. She does a film, called the renaissance, where the whole theme is silver with silver hair, a silver carpet, and suggested silver attire and you bozos decide that she's trying to be a white woman and is bleaching her skin?"

Furthermore, she said, "What's really most disappointing is that some Black people yes you bozos that's on social media. Lying and faking and acting like you're so ignorant that you don't understand That black women have worn platinum hair since the Etta James days.

I just went and looked at all the beautiful talented black celebrities who have worn platinum hair and it has been just about every one of them at one time or another. Are they all trying to be white? (sic)"

Recently, Taylor Swift sheds light on her relationship with Beyoncé and also responded to the ongoing comparisons between the 'Eras' tour' and 'Renaissance', sharing, "There were so many stadium tours this summer, but the only ones that were compared were me and Beyoncé," She continued saying, "Clearly it's very lucrative for the media and stan culture to pit two women against each other, even when those two artists in question refuse to participate in that discussion."

Michael Jackson's Estate Lawyers Pull Allegedly Stolen Studio Recordings From Auction

Lawyers for Michael Jackson's estate threatened quietly to sue a pop culture collectibles website this week over the plan to auction all the unreleased studio recordings of Jackson that the estate claimed were 'unquestionably [allegedly] stolen', being withdrawn from sale.

The Jackson tapes released for sale as part of GHRR's 'Rock & Roll Pop Culture Winter Auction 2023,' cover 25 recordings that also include 'Sexy Love', 'Oh Love', 'Doing What My Heart', 'New Jelly' and several others. The platform estimated that each recording which it said was 'an artifact ONLY with no copyright' with re-recording 'STRICTLY prohibited' would sell from $2,000 to $4,000.

Jonathan Steinsapir, Jackson's estate attorney warned that the tapes were stolen and demanded that the Gotta Have Rock and Roll not only 'cease from any efforts to further auction these tapes,' he moreover added, "Neither Michael Jackson nor his record company, Sony Music Entertainment, ever sold or gave away master tapes from his recording sessions at The Hit Factory (or anywhere else),' continued stating, "These tapes were unquestionably stolen or otherwise taken without authorization. Accordingly, they are the property of the Jackson Estate."

The estate contacted the Gotta Have Rock and Roll again, represented by Alex Spiro this time, and said, "We write to notify you that we intend to seek a temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction tomorrow (December 13) in New York Supreme Court," continued, "Please feel free to contact me should you have any questions."

The company's attorney responded to Spiro along with an email, saying, "There is no contact information on your email. What is the best phone number to reach you?" on Tuesday.

The tapes had been removed from the Gotta Have Rock and Roll site by Wednesday. The site still adds plenty of Jackson's items as part of their sale like a 'Michael Jackson Circa 1984 Owned & Worn Red Military Style Jacket' that they calculate will sell for over $10,000. However, the tapes and the particular numbers they occupied are no longer available.

The auction house did not respond to particular questions like how the auction house came into authority of the tapes and whether or not they had been returned to the estate.

Well, this is not the first time the Jackson estate is suing over materials that were allegedly stolen from the late legend. Back in 2022, the estate sued Jeffré Phillips, who was engaged to Michel's sister La Toya Jackson, for allegations that he stole multiple materials from the singer's Carolwood estate. Later in October, the estate stated that the case was 'amicably resolved' after Phillips 'voluntarily returned Michael Jackson's property to the Estate.'

'Animal' Wins the Hearts of the Audience with the Soundtrack

Ranbir Kapoor and Rashmika Mandanna starring 'Animal' are already at the top of buzz with the mixed reactions from the audiences. Undoubtedly, the film has become a commercial success in the Bollywood Industry and now it is setting another example with its amazing soundtrack that won the hearts of many.

The Soundtrack of the film is specially curated by director Sandeep Reddy Vanga himself without any interference from producer Bhushan Kumar. Just like Vanga's previous film 'Kabir Singh' in 2019; this movie also offers a diverse soundtrack filled with energetic and romantic tracks.

'Hua Main' is perhaps the most loved track from the movie which was composed by JAM8 & Pritam Chakraborty and sung by Raghav Chaitanya. With Manoj Muntashir's amazing songwriting skills, this song has garnered a lot of attention from the audience. This song offers a romantic description of an intimate romantic relationship between Ranvijay Singh and Geetanjali, played by Ranbir and Mandanna respectively. The track is quite passionate and can captivate all kinds of music lovers.

Next, there is 'Satranga', the heartfelt second single which is sung by Arijit Singh and Shreyas Puranik. This soulful track was released back on 27 October 2023. The track perfectly depicted the bonding of a married couple and the drift of it. Written by Siddharth and Garima, this song is played on the day of Karva Chauth to make sure it goes perfectly with the theme and the mood of the track.

Thirdly, there is another track named "Papa Meri Jaan" which is perhaps the most unique song from the whole soundtrack which depicts the beautiful bong between a father and his son. While Ranbir Kapoor and Anil Kapoor perfectly portray the father-son bonding in the film, this song expresses the deeper emotions that are often not talked about. Anil Kapoor shared the song on social media with the caption, "A bond that knows no bounds".

Another latest track that creates a major buzz among listeners is 'Arjan Vailly'. The song is composed by Manan Bhardwaj who is immensely talented and well-known for his creative psyche reflected through his compositions. Sung by Bhupinder Babbal, this song is played when Ranvijay Singh is ready for the beat goes to a pulp, and the song perfectly captures the bloody avatar of him when he goes on a killing streak or unleashes that 'Animal' inside. 'Animal' has already collected a major amount of success in the industry and the soundtrack is only increasing it.

Anita Baker Asked Her Fans to Turn Off Their Cameras

Recently in a show, the singer Anita Baker said that she wants her audience to be present in her show. She had a show in Houston, Texas on 15th December. And during the performance, many people recorded the show on their phones. In the middle of the show, these kinds of gestures were disturbing her to perform. And that time, Anita asked them to stop the recording and be more present on the show. This video of her went viral on TikTok.

While singing the song 'Feel the Need', the artist sang 'Early in the morning! Late in the evening, baby' and later that even sang 'Turn off the camera, baby, I don't know who you are, move back!'. She also said 'Get on back, I don't know who that is'. She asked the fans to do so because it was disturbing her performance.

After that, Anita asked the security to remove some fans from the front row who were recording her during the performance. Whenever an artist performs, they try to look at their audience, build a connection, and do the performance. But if the artist is only looking at phone cameras, then it becomes quite difficult for them to perform. For that reason, she asked people to stop recording and enjoy the live performance by putting all their concentration.

Previously in June, Anita made a post on social media platforms and said 'After Silently, Enduring Cyber Bulling/Verbal Abuse & Threats of Violence from the Fan Base, of Our Special Guest/Support Act. In the Interest of Personal Safety. I will continue, The Songstress Tour, alone. Appropriate refunds will be made.

Blessings'. She shared this message regarding the tour on social media platform but didn't mention the name of her former opener, which was quite shocking for all.

Babyface used to do the opening for her show and when Anita removed his name, it 'saddened' him immensely. And on that topic, he later said 'It's unfortunate and disheartening to see how things have played out via social media... While I was looking forward to the rest of the dates, I have nothing but love and respect for Anita and I wish her the best for the remainder of her tour'.

She has also added 'I told them, 'I will only take this job if you promise to help me in my music career one day. I want to be a pop star. I do not want to do this forever'.

The Rolling Stone has officially shared the music video of their latest single 'Mess It Up' starring none other than Nicholas Hoult. The song is going to be a part of the band's newest album 'Hackney Diamonds'. This is the band's 24th and most recent studio album which was released in 2023 October and so far has received remarkable responses from listeners and impressive reviews from critics. The music video stars 'Skins' actor Nicholas Hoult in the role of a distraught lover who engages in a couple of joyful and daring adventures before returning to his life partner to mend and repair their relationship issue.

'Hackney Diamonds', the 24th studio album was released in October as the legendary band's first original musical work since 2005 when they released 'A Bigger Bang'.

It was also the first time that the British rock stars were releasing anything after their beloved bandmate, Charlie Watts, who was the drummer of The Rolling Stones died back in 2021. Since the release of the album, the remaining band has also performed with Lady Gaga, who appears on a different record of the album, 'Sweet Sounds of Heaven'.

The music video for 'Mess It Up' was released on December 19, 2023, and features British actor Nicholas Hoult who is known for his roles in Skins, Renfield, the X-Men films, The Favourite, and more. The clips were filmed in the U.S. and were directed by Grammy-winning director Calmatic who is known for his work with Kendrick Lamar and Anderson Paak.

Last Friday December 15th, Mick Jagger and his legendary bandmates shared a special live edition of 'Hackney Diamonds' containing various new performances from the launch event of the album in New York. the band is now all set to embark on their new journey, their newly announced North American Headline Tour in 2024.

This trek will have Jagger, Ronnie Wood, and Keith Richards visit various stadiums all across the United States of America and Canada.

While giving an interview to NME in October, Woods shared his plans on hitting the road again and how he "must" return to Glastonbury again in the near future. He explained, "We could play the whole ['Hackney Diamonds'] album, you know what I mean?" "But [Mick and Keith] will go, 'Oh no Ron, that's so ambitious'.

We're not gonna forget the back catalogue" he further said. Wood continued: "There are certain songs, 'Paint It, Black' and '(I Can't Get No) Satisfaction', that have got to be played. We're only making room for, say, three or five songs."

'Me Saying F-CkStan Twitter' Was the Inspiration of 'F-ck The Girls' Said Doja Cat

The excellent pop artist Doja Cat has said her 'F-ck The Girls' from 'Scarlet' was inspired by 'me saying f-ck Stan Twitter'. In a recent interview on a radio channel, she has said it is the disdain that has become the inspiration for the song.

She has stated 'There's that obsessiveness behind it, all the malice towards women in Stan culture. The condescending-ness of people being like, 'mother, oh my god, queen, mother.,' and expecting them to give and deliver and serve for the purpose of serving and not just expressing themselves. And in the same breath they'll insult that person as well as call them 'Mother.' None of that shit is real, that's where 'F*ck The Girls' comes from'.

Previously this year, it came to see that the artist has some not-so-amiable conversations with some of her fans regarding the parasocial relationship amid the artists and their fanbase. Later she also said 'I don't even know y'all'. Once the artist also said 'You'll never see a direct quote of me saying, 'I hate my fans.' Not once...But it's a really big misquoted thing where everybody is saying, 'She hates her fans''.

In October, Doja got a few negative reviews for wearing a t-shirt with an image of comic Sam Hyde. And she said that she was unaware of the fact of how problematic it could be. Hyde was the co-writer of Adult Swim's 'Million Dollar Extreme Presents: World Peace'. Only one season of it was telecasted due to inappropriate messages.

After this incident, she stated 'You can't know everything. Me wearing a t-shirt of someone who I thought was funny is an attack on people. It's not, it's not an attack. It didn't affect the world in a way where we now have to look behind our backs'. In addition to that she also added 'I also think I'm way too fucking famous...There's some fans I have who know I don't put any effort or involvement into whatever the f*ck that negative ass shit was. I don't need to explain myself. I don't need to prove myself to bunch of people who are just going to project no matter what I say. There's people who are incredibly dogmatic, it doesn't matter what the f*ck you do'.

Drake and Morgan Wallen join together for the latest music video of 'You Broke My Heart'

Country star Morgan Wallen and Drake were seen hanging out in the new music video of 'You Broke My Heart'. The OMV is directed by Theo Skudra who did a great job in creating a satisfying visual.

The video begins with Drake and Morgan talking about women over drinks. When the music artists leave the restaurant and get in their car, it gets blown up by two women, starring Grace Matthews and Taylor Morris. They proceed to create havoc on the streets and it is enough to captivate the audience. This video for For All the Dogs Scary Hours Edition is truly creating buzz in the scene and perhaps it is not only about Drake.

Country singer Morgan Wallen has been trying to rehabilitate his music career since he was found using a racist and anti-Black slur in a video in 2021. After the video went viral, he was suspended for an indefinite period of time by his label. After that, Wallen returned in March with a brand new album, named 'One Thing at a Time'. Recently, in an interview, the singer was found saying that there is "no excuse" for using any kind of slur.

The music video for 'You Broke My Heart' is gaining more attention as fans are wondering whether Drake is dropping into country music or otherwise. Just like the title suggests, it is a breakup song and the musicians could be seen trash-talking their exes while sharing a swanky meal. When Grace and Taylor gleefully celebrate the death of these two men; it offers a catchy climax that no one expected. With a clock time of around 6 minutes; this music video is truly another treat for the fans.

Not to mention, Drake and Morgan both made albums that became Spotify's most-streamed this year. However, in this video, Wallen is only hanging out with Drake and does not musically contribute to the track. So, it is not really a musical collaboration but a guest feature in the video by a co-artist.

The probability of these two fine music artists collaborating is high as Wallen has previously joined forces with Chicago's Lil Durk for "Broadway Girls" in 2021. He has also sampled "Lifestyle" in 2015 by Young Thug and Rich Homie Quan for his track "180 (Lifestyle)."

Arijit Singh Says A.R. Rahman Introduced Auto-tune In Indian Music Industry

The Indian music industry has come a long way; the revolution of Indian music has a lot to do with A.R. Rahman's ways of making music. Yet, a fact is a fact, and Arijit Singh is stating some facts about him. Auto-tune is something that is considered a tool that can make non-singers sing appealingly. According to Arijit, many composers were against auto-tune; but A.R. Rahman still used it to make his songs more engaging for his audience. Recently, Arijit Singh became a part of 'The Music Podcast' where he has stated these; well he also mentioned that Rahman doesn't use it anymore.

In his chat with The Music Podcast, he said, "Auto-tune can't turn a non-singer into a singer. It's not like you sing anything, apply auto-tune and it will sound like it's in tune. It's not possible." He added, "When people really liked to listen to Rahman's songs, it was him actually who started using auto-tune in a very subtle way, that's how a lot of singers started sounding beautiful."

He also mentioned how subtle Rahman was while using auto-tune in his songs, he said, "When people really liked to listen to Rahman's songs, it was him actually who started using auto-tune in a very subtle way," he also added, "That's how a lot of singers started sounding beautiful."

He also added more on auto-tune, "Some music composers don't like it at all like Mithoon Sharma, and Vishal Bhardwaj. AR Rahman also doesn't do it anymore, earlier he used to. Now he goes with whatever voice is there. Pritam's music always has auto-tune, to make it sound better." He explained how leading music composers don't prefer to use auto-tune as it might detangle the complex emotion a song must portray. And while mentioning about emotions of a song he extolled on Sonu Nigam's artistry.

He mentioned, "When a singer sings, they sing with emotion. And when they sing with emotion, it isUY never perfect, they go away from the sur (tune) a little bit, most singers except Sonu Nigam, he can't go out of tune I feel," appreciating his precision of minute notes and melodies. Arijit Singh is one of the leading singers of the Indian Music Industry also known for his humble nature and humanitarian works.

TAYLOR SWIFT'S 34TH BIRTHDAY IS GETTING SPECIAL WITH TRAVIS KELCE'S EXCLUSIVE PLANS

Taylor Swift, the pop queen of the industry has turned 34 this year and this birthday is going to be an exclusive one if everything goes according to the plan. Taylor Swift or Taylor Alison Swift was born in 1989 on December 13th. This American singer-songwriter started her musical journey at the age of 14 years and now she has a total of 10 studio albums along with four re-recorded albums known as Taylor's Version. With the singer turning 34, the whole world of Swifties seems to celebrate it together.

More Romance and An Exclusive Birthday

Travis Kelce, her current boyfriend has special plans to celebrate Swift's birthday in a big fat way. Kelce wants Swift's "close friends" to join the party and enjoy the most since "Money is not an object," in this case. According to the source, the Birthday Bash is about to take place in New York City, which opposes Kelce's home turf in Kansas City. The dating rumors of the couple started back in September when Swift could be noticed cheering for Kelce as well as his team Kansas City Chiefs at Arrowhead Stadium. Two months back, Kelce also revealed through a podcast called 'New Heights' that he wanted to give a special friendship bracelet to Swift when attended her Eras Tour in the same stadium this summer. While the couple did not get the chance to meet each other in person, Taylor swiftly added a little more about their romance through her TIME 2023 Person of the Year interview. She said, "This all started when Travis very adorably put me on blast on his podcast, which I thought was metal as hell," and further remarked that they "started hanging out right after that."

By the time the singer attended her first Chiefs game, their bond had already deepened. Swift said, "We actually had a significant amount of time that no one knew, which I'm grateful for because we got to get to know each other. ... I think some people think that they saw our first date at that game?" She further added, "We would never be psychotic enough to hard launch a first date." Swift has supported Kelce through many games all over the season. She was also present at the Chiefs vs. Buffalo Bills game on Sunday, December 10. There she received an early gift from the Chiefs owner Clark Hunt's family which was gifted by Hunt's daughter Ava. However, the singer could be noticed leaving Arrowhead with her disappointed boyfriend as his team lost to a 20 -17 game. Both of the lovebirds left the venue, hand in hand. During Sunday's Broadcast, she was also referred to as Kelce's wife once but the singer seems to be cool with the heightened attention on their love story.

She further told in the interview, "When you say a relationship is public, that means I'm going to see him do what he loves, we're showing up for each other, other people are there and we don't care," and she further added, "The opposite of that is you have to go to an extreme amount of effort to make sure no one knows that you're seeing someone. And we're just proud of each other." Despite their busy schedule, the pair have always made time for each other by spending as much downtime together as possible. When the Kansas City Chiefs lost the match to the Denver Broncos in October, Taylor Swift rescheduled her dates just to see Kelce sooner. Though the couple has been keeping a low profile on their dating, they were spotted at a holiday party with Patrick and Brittany Mahomes at the pop-up bar Miracle on Main Street. The couple was also wearing similar sweaters to embrace each other. Truly, this birthday is going to get more special for Swift.

Clubbing with Bestie while Skipping Time Gala

Well, it goes without saying that Selena Gomez is one of the closest friends of Swift and spending a birthday without her sounds quite awful. The 'Karma' singer did not miss the chance to embark on a pre-birthday hangout with her friends. She spent the evening with her BFF Selena Gomez, as well as actor Miles Teller and his wife Keleigh Sperry. On Tuesday Night, the singer decided to skip on Time Gala event and spend time with her friends despite being named Person of the Year. She decided to join her pals instead of appearing in the ceremony.

The singer could be seen effortlessly blending the styles of casual and chic which looks quite amazing along with a Leather Trench Coat. They visited the members-only club, Zero Bond. After spending time with NFL star Kelce, Taylor arrived in the Big Apple. However, her decision to skip the Time Gala was quite shocking for many as they assumed that the singer had already flown back to New York City on Tuesday to attend the ceremony. But Swift made sure, that loyalty to her squad was much more important than anything; especially when it is her birthday!
