KENDRICK LAMAR

Kendrick Lamar is back on the music scene and has already secured his third No. 1 on the Billboard Hot 100. Future, Metro Boomin, Kendrick Lamar's 'Like That' took the top spot on the Billboard Hot 100 chart. The song was featured on Future and Metro Boomin's new album, 'We Don't Trust You', which also claimed the top spot on the Billboard 200 albums chart. Now this song has caused the start of a whole rap beef that the industry had not seen in a long time. In the track, it seemed like Lamar was aiming for Drake and J. Cole in his verse. In the track, Kendrick rejected the very famous idea of Drake, the idea of the "big three," stating it is just "big me." 'Like That' is the rapper-singer's third no 1 song, following 2017's 'Humble.' and 2015's 'Bad Blood.' But this is not all that is going on with Lamar. After his recent release of 'Mr. Morale & The Big Steppers' in May 2022, he is now teaming up for a live-action comedy movie. "South Park" co-creators Trey Parker and Matt Stone will be teaming up with Lamar and Dave Free for a new live-action comedy flick, slated to open on July 4, 2025. The film will be released just in time for the nation's birthday and is set to have some serious competition in the market. Set to be distributed by Paramount Pictures, it will face some stiff competition with "Jurassic World 4", planned to be released on July 2nd, and James Gunn's "Superman" a few days later on July 11.

According To Courtney Love Taylor Swift Is 'Not Interesting As An Artist'

In a recent interview, The Hole frontwoman vocalized about her music preferences which led to the reveal that shook the internet. According to Love, she is not much of a Swiftie or a big Madonna or Del Rey fan; instead, she likes the works of artists like Patti Smith, Nina Simone, PJ Harvey, and Debbie Harry. She has always been a person advocating for women in music, but, her reluctant approach to the leading ladies of this industry has ruffled some feathers. And her statement where she said that Swift is not an interesting artist, she might have indicated her decision to re-release.

Love said, “Taylor is not important. She might be a safe space for girls, and she’s probably the Madonna of now, but she’s not interesting as an artist.” She also said about 2024

Coachella headliner Lana Del Rey, “I haven’t liked Lana since she covered a John Denver song, and I think she should take seven years off,” she said. She was clear that her enthusiasm for Lana started waning once she covered a John Denver song, ‘Take Me Home Country Roads’. She added, “Up until ‘Take Me Home Country Roads’ I thought she was great. When I was recording my new album, I had to stop listening to her as she was influencing me too much.”

Love continued to showcase her lack of enthusiasm for artists like Madonna as well. For her, she said, “I don’t like her and she doesn’t like me. I loved Desperately Seeking Susan but for the city of New York as much as her.” Lana Del Rey, Madonna, and Taylor Swift all of them are extremely female popular musicians of this age. Hence, Love has always been vocal about her preferences and she also has been advocating for women in the music industry.

In 2023 March, Courtney Love wrote an op-ed, addressing the gender disparity of the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame, to the Guardian. She titled this piece, “Why Are Women So Marginalized by the Rock & Roll Hall of Fame?”

“Taylor is not important. She might be a safe space for girls, and she’s probably the Madonna of now, but she’s not interesting as an artist.”

Love also mentioned that the nominations of 2023 were a ranging reminder of “just how extraordinary a woman must be to make it into the old boys club.”

She said that in 2023 more women were nominated than any other year in the history of the last 40 years. Love concluded with, “If the Rock Hall is not willing to look at the ways it is replicating the violence of structural racism and sexism that artists face in the music industry if it cannot properly honor what visionary women artists have created, innovated, revolutionized and contributed to popular music – well, then let it go to hell in a handbag.”

The Top 4 Most Popular African Music Genres

African music is one of the most popular genres in the world which has recently taken over the world. Some of the most popular African musical pieces that have dominated both the charts and people's playlists in 2024 include 'Water' by Tyla, 'Rush' by Ayra Starr, 'City Boys' by Burna Boy, etc. Part of the reason why African music is becoming more and more mainstream with every passing year is because it is culturally rich and ancient. It has a distinctive way of expressing all aspects of life through sound and its various mediums.

Whether it is a festival, social rituals, or even religious ceremonies, music has been a big part of everyone's life in Africa and now it is rapidly taking over the world. If you look for the technicalities, most African music pieces use melodies that are simple and short.

The uncomplicated compositions make it easier to understand and enjoy. The continent has a daunting population of over 1.4 billion people, so it does not come as a surprise that it produces a wide range of musical styles and genres.

As African music continues to dominate the world music industry, let's look over to the top 4 most popular music genres from Africa!

1. Mbalax: One of the most noted musical genres in African music is Mbalax. Not just music, it is also popular as a dance form across the entire continent. This type of dance music is most popular in Senegal and the Gambia, in West Africa. It has its origin in the 1970s when the musical genre emerged as an idiosyncratic sound of postcolonial Senegal.

History: As to popular beliefs, the traditional form of mbalax originated from the sabar. Sabar is known as the Wolof genre that historically fused cultural and musical practices. It was practiced in different ethnic groups of Africa including a Serer music tradition of Njuup.

Like other francophone countries in West Africa, the Senegalese music scene was partially influenced by blues, soul, jazz, R&B, etc. from the United States, Congolese rumba, Latin pop, etc.

Musical instruments: The music tradition of Senegal is quite different from other parts of the world. The songs are usually unwritten and certain types of musical styles and instruments are limited for specified genders and age groups. Following this rule, Mbalax is also different from most African music forms.

In this genre, musical instruments include synths, keyboards, and other electronic production and composition instruments. However, the distinctive usage of drums can be widely seen in this special music genre. Mbalax's unique sound includes the Sabar, known as the rhythm drum, the Nder, known as the lead drum, and the Tama, known as the talking drum percussion.

Popular artists: This style is worldwide popularized by bands such as RaamDaan -starring ThioneSeck, Etoile de Dakar -starring YoussouN'Dour and El Hadji Faye, Super Diamono, and Xalam II. OYoussouN'Dour is often known as one of the best-known representatives of mbalax pop. He was also the one who is considered the one who popularized the Mbalax music genre internationally.

2. Afrobeats: If you look at the current scenario in the international charts and industry, you would find most Afrobeats songs to be making a massive wave, both in sales and chart numbers. In just a span of a few months, the industry has its new Afrobeats music that the world has become obsessed with.

However, when we are talking about Afrobeats music, it is better not to confuse it with Afrobeat which is a more instrumental sound made known by legendary musician FelaKuti in the 1970s. Afrobeats music can be informally characterized as a fusion of electronic dance music and hip-hop beats with Nigerian and Ghanaian high-life rhythms.

History: The style of music that largely makes Afrobeats today started around the late 90s to mid-2000s. When MTV Base Africa was launched in 2005 in West Africa, artists were given a huge platform where they could show their talents and grow.

Then came Choice FM's NewAfrobeats Radio Show' where the genre gained worldwide recognition and was trending for the first time. The Guardian named this show's host DJ Abrantee the sole creditor of coining this particular name of the genre. This London-based DJ had credit for making the genre as famous as it is today.

Musical instruments: Afrobeats tend to include a wide range of instruments in their compositions. Some of them include conga, gbedu, akuba, shekere, and claves, along with Western instruments like modern-day saxophone, drums, guitar, trumpets, trombone, and even organ.

One of the most common elements that you would find in Afrobeats music is that it has massive instrumental solos or big bands.

You would also find complex jazz compositions in some of the most popular Afrobeats songs. The tracks are usually very preppy, and digitally produced. If you talk about the language, most Afrobeats music is written and sung in English as well as West African languages, and even pidgin languages.

Popular artists: Some of the most popular artists in this genre who continue to rule over charts, magazine covers, airwaves, and social media feeds are Burna Boy, Tems, Davido, Wizkid, Rema, Arya Starr, etc.

3. Soukous: This is another dance music that was inspired by a legit dance form, Rumba. This form of dance music originated in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, formerly known as Zaire.

The late Congolese musician Franco Luambo and his band OK Jazz performed this for 30 years. This music style fuses contemporary instruments with traditional Congolese rhythms.

History: Soukous' origins can be traced back to the early 20th century, to the urban residents of the Democratic Republic of the Congo and the Republic of the Congo. They are the ones who fused Liberian guitar techniques with the intertribal Congolese maringa dance music.

Then in the 1980s, the music genre became really popular in Paris and London. It was also the only sub-Saharan African genre that was universally embraced in Belgium and France.

Musical instruments: Soukous music is enjoyed in bands where the basic lineup includes drums, brass, and three to four guitars, along with a bass guitar and vocals. Apart from that, the music style also features quite a lot variety of instruments such as guitars, trumpets, maracas, and guiro which is a gourd-shaped percussion instrument creating a scratching sound, saxophones, flutes, and clarinets.

Popular artists: Franco Luambo was a significant person in Congolese music in the 20th century and was one of the most important people to popularize this genre of music.

He was also known as the “sorcerer of the guitar.” later on, this genre was also made internationally popular by Papa Wembe. The modern-day Soukous is made worldwide known by artists like Koffi Olomide, Awilo Longomba, Werrason, Fally Ipupa, etc.

4. Electro Shaabi: Shaabi is a popular Egyptian musical genre that was infused with modern-day technology and became a well-known African music genre, now trending all over the world.

This musical genre fuses blues-folk with electronic music and Arab pop. ‘Shaabi’ means “of the people,” as this musical genre has its roots in popular working-class Egyptian music, also known as Egyptian street music.

History: Shaabi originated back in Cairo in the 1920s. As it originated from working-class people of Egypt by the working class people, it is very dear to the hearts of local people and is now creating waves in the international music industry.

Because of the genre's rousing, and energetic tempo, Electro Shaabi is often used in Egyptian festivals as background music. If you ever pay a visit to this African country, you will certainly hear the sounds in buses, advertising, and most certainly in the movies.

Musical instruments: This music genre of Africa is the perfect blend of traditional and modern-day musical instruments. It is most known for its ability to create urban sounds from its rural roots. Some of the instruments that are used in Electro Shaabi are the violin, nai, riq, oud, tabla, large cymbals, and kanun.

Popular artists: Ahmad Adawiya was an Egyptian singer who first popularized this kind of music in the world. Adawiya was from a working-class neighborhood and frequently spoke against governmental policies along with social inequalities and incorporated that spirit into the music. Later on, Hakeem, Shaaban Abdel Reheem, and Abo El-Leef helped popularize the genre. In modern-day industry, massive musical stars like Filo, Oka Wi Ortega, and Islam Fanta, have helped a lot in making the sound heard by international music lovers.

7 Musicians Who Have Performed With Their Children On Stage

The life of a musician is wild and satisfactory. It becomes even more satisfactory and exciting when they get to include their children in artistic journeys. Imagine your favorite musician on stage and absolutely killing the performance. Now imagine a mini version of that artist coming on stage and doubling down the power! So here are the 7 music artists whose kids have joined them on stage to deliver a very special, and power-packed performance for their audiences.

1. Beyoncé and Blue Ivy: Beyoncé is the undefeated Queen of the music industry and when she shared the news of being pregnant with her fans, they could not keep calm. Little did they know that the first-born of Queen Bey would continue to bless our eyes with her thorough presence throughout her life, not just personal, but musical as well. The music artist has been making music with her eldest daughter since she was a child, so much so that she won a Grammy at the age of just 9 years old! In 2021, Blue Ivy Carter won a Grammy for her writing credit on the track 'Brown Skin Girl'. So when we see her joining her mama on stage, it only makes sense.

In early 2023, the mother-daughter duo got the chance to perform 'Brown Skin Girl', from the "The Lion King" companion album in a private concert in Dubai. But this was not the only time the world saw Blue Ivy on stage. Just a year later, Beyoncé kicked off her Renaissance World Tour, Blue joined her mother again. This time, to showed her amazing and energetic dance moves that shocked the whole world. During the 'Single Ladies' singer's show in London and Paris, her daughter joined the dancers on stage for their choreographed routine of 'My Power' and 'Black Parade'. "My beautiful first born I'm so proud and thankful to be your mama. You bring us so much joy, my sweet angel," the proud singer wrote on Instagram after Blue's performance.

2. Billy Ray Cyrus and Miley Cyrus: If the world now knows Miley Cyrus as a pop/rock singer, she has her dad to thank for it. Miley Cyrus first gained worldwide fame and recognition during her show 'Hannah Montana' on Disney. But she is not the only famous musician in her family. Before her, it was Billy Ray Cyrus, her dad who rocked the stage, and people's hearts. Since musical genes run in the family, and the country star has never shied away from taking his daughter to the spotlight, Miley has joined her dad several times on stage. This ritual started not just on the set of 'Hannah Montana' but since she was very young. Apparently, it was going to the shows with her dad that connected Miley with music more. Among the various occasions when the father-daughter duo rocked the stage, singing 'Holding On To A Dream' together during a televised performance might be one of the most special ones.

After being cast on the biggest Disney show, Miley and Billy performed various duets like 'Butterfly Fly Away' and 'Ready, Set, Don't Go.' After the 'Wrecking Ball' singer decided to go solo on her music career, the pair reunited on stage when Billy Ray joined her at Glastonbury to perform the classic hit 'Old Town Road' in 2019. While talking about this performance later, proud dad Billy said, "She's a giver. She believes that we're all put here for a reason, and that's to give back to our fellow man, I'm real proud of her".

3. Pink and Willow: Pink is one of the artists who is known for their amazing vocal range and stage presence, especially her aerial dance routines on stage. Now it seems like her daughter Willow is sharing the same talent with her mother. When we talk about talents, we are not only talking about the singing talents of Pink, but her dancing as well. In 2021, Pink and Willow shocked the world when they released their first duet song 'Cover Me in Sunshine'. The song became an instant hit, gaining millions of views on YouTube. But that is not all, Willow also got a chance to show off her dancing skills alongside her mother on stage.

Since 'Cover Me in Sunshine' became a huge hit, Pink performed it on stage live at the Billboard Music Awards, and to everyone's surprise, Willow joined the stage alongside her mother. Not only did she sing the song with utmost grace, but she also joined Pink in performing an incredible aerial routine. Pink later gushed about her daughter's performance while receiving an award on the night, saying, "Willow nailed it!"

4. Alicia Keys & Egypt: Alicia Keys is one of the very few musicians who excel at playing an instrument, especially a piano. Looks like her son Egypt has taken after his talented mom and now is a successful Pianist himself. The mother-son duo made their debut on stage in 2019 when Egypt accompanied Alicia on stage for the performance of 'Raise a Man'. The performance was a success and the world got a glimpse of Egypt as an incredibly talented pianist. Looking back, now Alicia admits that she was extremely nervous about her son joining her on stage, so much so that she forgot to practice herself.

"That moment was the first time that he performed with me on stage, and I remember being completely so wrapped up in him being okay because I asked him to do it...I was so nervous for him that I remember at midnight the night before the show, I realized I hadn't even practiced. I remember all of this and I'm sitting there watching it with him and just...how I feel about him and seeing his growth and watching him go on stage and just completely own -- it just hit me like a ton of bricks," the 'Girl On Fire' singer explained in an interview.

5. Jennifer Lopez and Emme: We are all aware of the many talents of our very own 'Jenny from the Block'. However, the talent of a pop superstar ran down the gene and got Jennifer Lopez's daughter as well. Emme, Jennifer's daughter, made her debut on stage in a grander way. When the singer was on 'It's My Party Tour' in 2019, her daughter joined the stage to duet "Limitless" in front of thousands of audiences. However, this was not the only time the mother-daughter duo rocked the stage together.

Later when Jennifer took to the stage of the Super Bowl, Emme joined as well and helped her mother belt out 'Let's Get Loud'. They also took the stage most recently at a gala where the 'On The Floor' singer gave them a sweet introduction. "The last time we performed together was in a big stadium like this and I ask them to sing with me all the time, and they won't. So this is a very special occasion. They are very, very busy. Booked. And pricey," Jennifer said on stage at the gala. "They cost me when they come out. But they're worth every single penny because they're my favorite duet partner of all time," she added.

6. Mariah Carey and Monroe: If the world had known vocal powerhouses, Mariah Carey would be at the top of the list. Apart from being an absolutely gorgeous singer of all time, Mariah loves spending time singing with her twins, Moroccan and Monroe. A glimpse of their sessions can be found on the social media platforms of the 'All I Want For Christmas Is You' singer. However, in 2022, Maroah finally got her chance to make Monroe make her live performance debut with her.

At a Holiday concert, the two took the stage together and performed 'Away in a Manger'. Later Mariah seemed to be extremely proud of her daughter and could not stop gushing about it. "This is my baby girl, here. Eleven years ago, I got the greatest gift. You know what, I don't have birthdays, but the birthing day was the greatest gift ever when I had my twins Roc and Roe," Mariah said on stage. "This is our first duet. Alright, this is a beautiful, beautiful hymn called 'Away in a Manger.' We've been working on this one for a minute," she continued.

7. Chris Martin Apple and Moses: Coldplay and Chris Martin will go down in history for bringing such heartwarming and entertaining songs to us. Apple and Moses, the children of Chris, seemed to have gotten their musical talents right from their dad. They even performed with their dad on a few occasions.

One such incident occurred back in 2016 when both Apple and Moses joined their dad and his band on stage during a charity event in Malibu. The two children each got their own spotlight while Chris backed them up like a proud father. Later that year, both the children got the chance again to perform with their dad on stage during Coldplay's set at Glastonbury. Here they sang " with the band.

Jamaican Music: The Rich History Of Ska, Reggae And Dancehall

Through all these years, Jamaican music has greatly influenced American and global music cultures with its intoxicating Caribbean flavors. Starting from Ska and reggae to Dancehall; Jamaican music has diversified genres and each of them carries a distinctively different flavor than another. While some music genres can be more popular than others; there is no doubt that all of them together have helped to create this nation's rich musical history.

Starting from the contemporary styles of bashment and ragga soca to the traditional roots of mento and nyabinghi, Jamaican music comes with rich diversity and creative essence. Let's explore some of the musical genres and styles.

Reggae: The Root of Jamaican Music: Reggae is a vibrant and empowering music genre of Jamaica that possesses distinctive flavors and traditional roots. It is embedded in the culture and history of Jamaica which is stretched for many years. It mainly consists of uplifting lyricism, captivating rhythms, and a soulful essence that has won the hearts of millions. Reggae is a Jamaica-born music but its influence has spread over the world pretty quickly as soon as it got popularized among global music lovers. When it comes to the origin of reggae, the key lies in Parallelism. The utilization of syncopation in popular songs helped create this genre which is a laid down form of Ska.

With the help of rock, it was possible to perfect the technique with smoother grooves and slower tempos. The fine blend of these two genres also gave birth to dub which is an experimental form of the production technique. It incorporates heft bass lines along with psychedelic effects which makes it even more captivating. All three styles are often combined to create authentic reggae flavors. Reggae is an expression of freedom; it is a declaration against oppression, corruption, injustice, inequality, and war. It exemplifies hope and unity among people which makes it captivating for the people even beyond the borders of Jamaica. Starting from Africa to North America to Europe and other places, Reggae has become a voice of protest, a powerful symbol of resilience that fears no one, whether it is a system of Government or the goons of the society.

Ska: A Unique Jamaican Music Genre: Popular Jamaican musical style Ska is best known for its uniqueness and sass. The sultry in the compositions has made the audiophile fall in love with the bright horns. The global phenomenon that started back in the 1950s soon spread over the world due to its high-octane energy that channels through the listeners. Some of its distinctive features are,

1. Enthralling up-tempo beats
2. Layered instrumental music arrangement
3. Catchy melodies on repeat to create a major hook

One of the most recognizable features of Ska is the offbeat guitar chords that allow adding immersive moments of improvisation while adding complexity to steady rhythms. The upbeat vibe and joyous atmosphere make listeners join the dance floor or bob their heads to the beats. The sound of Ska is also a part of Jamaica's independence movement which embodies the spirit of freedom. Ska evolved from mento and finally turned into reggae but it was the voice for protest in the oppressive regimes. The global influence of Ska is still celebrated to this date through festivals like London's annual "One Love" event which is arranged in summer every year. It allows music lovers to enjoy this influential music genre with first-hand experience.

Dub: An Important Element of the Reggae Movement: Jamaican music is incomplete without its integral part the Dub Music. It is directly linked with the Jamaican heritage and has an ample influence on the reggae culture. This music genre emerged back in the 1960s when there was a heavy influence of Ska. This musical genre is basically a stripped-down version of traditional reggae music that mainly focuses on rhythm and bass rather than its lyrical approach. This musical genre quickly gained popularity due to the infectious beats and grooves along with a hefty dose of instrumentation. Legendary artists like Lee “Scratch” Perry, King Tubby, and many others helped to pioneer this genre while paving the way for future generations to enjoy the authentic taste of Dub. It has currently become the epitome of Jamaican Music with a major influence on other music genres as well.

Dancehall: A Globally Popular Jamaican Music

Genre: Like an exploding new musical sensation, dancehall has gained much popularity in the last few years. It is a highly invigorating mixture of hip-hop and reggae music that entices music enthusiasts. Its signature styles of thumping beats and heavy bass lines can surely increase the pulse rate of the listeners who love it. With sharp lyrical deliverance and powerful sound design, this music genre is a pure flow of adrenaline and emotions. Many popular dancehall artists have helped to pioneer this genre in the global music industry such as Buju Banton, Bounty Killer, Shabba Ranks, Beenie Man, and the list goes on.

The golden era of dancehall music is considered from 1989 to 1995 when this genre reached its peak while pushing the boundaries of creativity. In recent years, new creative waves have emerged in Jamaican music through the creative inputs of artists like Vybz Kartel, Popcaan, Mavado, and many others. The artist has merged the classic dancehall flavors with new-age rap which sounds engaging and intriguing as well. It is more of a sub-genre that helps music lovers find a new taste that is previously not heard. Therefore an untapped demographic or potential listeners. With the advancement of the music industry and its constant flux of change, many other sub-genres have emerged in the industry such as progressive dancehall, afrodancehall as well as EDM influences are also visible. Even in modern-day rappers, a greater influence of dancehall can be witnessed.

Lovers Rock: A New Genre for Lovers: Lovers rock is like a lush green musical landscape, based on reggae. Its presence offers a blend of tranquility and peace with beautiful lyricism and musical arrangement. Lovers rock is a genre that bridged the gap between traditional reggae and other modern variants. There is a soothing and soft essence in this genre that can offer listeners solace through music. Although it all started back in 1970, it mainly developed in the UK-based reggae sound system culture. Soon it spread across the world and became one of the most popular music to play at parties, clubs, and other occasions. Revolving around the universal themes of love, hope, and loss; this music genre remains one of the most loved music genres from Jamaica that offers warmth with music and softly spoken verses.

Chronology of Jamaican Music Evolution

Starting from its humble beginnings, Jamaican music has survived for a long time and kept evolving with time and global influences. It all started with Ska which developed from the traditional mento and calypso rhythms, back in the 1950s. Ska also combined the elements of American jazz and R&B as well as Caribbean folk which makes it sound so unique and ethereal. With its upbeat notes, this genre later turned into rocksteady in the 1960s. As a result, there was a huge shift from the fast tempo; it became slower and more graceful.

Shortly after that, Reggae emerged in the industry in 1968-1969. Reggae involves the elements of both, rocksteady as well as ska. The off-bit flavors of “skank” are what helped to produce those authentic flavors. Bob Marley & The Wailers made reggae popular to the whole world. Then came Dub in the industry which was quickly followed by dancehall. With a blend of pop culture, modern trends, and traditional roots; Jamaican music is the most dynamic example of creativity.

Final Thoughts

There is no doubt that Jamaican Music has a far-fetched and long-lasting influence in the music industry which has helped to grow other musical genres as well. Each Jamaican music genre has different flavors yet each of them is able to catch the attention with pure music.

directly to the earth, leaving a fiery explosion behind.

The trailer also features a tiara of spiders from 'You Should See Me In a Crown' and paranormal levitations from 'Bury a Friend' music videos where the singer makes her way to the digital stage, jumping and moving around singing the track 'All the Good Girls Go to Hell'.

The video's caption reads, "you should see her in a crown," referencing her hit 'When We All Fall Asleep, Where Do We Go?' track. "@billieeilish has arrived as our featured artist for Fortnite Festival Season 3, live now!"

Fortnite players will be able to unlock the new Billie Eilish-themed outfits, Jam tracks, and even instruments which will be available in the game till June 13.

Eilish's performance in Fortnite Festivals follows Lady Gaga's performance in season two and The Weeknd's performance in season one. Of course, more details are soon to be out yet, but for now, it is predicted that the players will be able to play her music along with her neon green character skin to appear in the in-game shop, maybe with a Lego variant. Eilish's collaboration with the game follows the likes of Ariana Grande, Lady Gaga, and Eminem. The game also recently had its annual collaboration with the Coachella festival.

Midway through this exciting feature on Fortnite, the singer will be releasing her third studio album, 'Hit Me Hard and Soft', on May 17. Just last week, the two-time Oscar winner shared the tracklist of her newest project, featuring song titles like "Skinny," "Lunch," "L'Amour De Ma Vie," "Blue," "Wildflower", and more. "We kind of made the album that if somebody had said, 'I want you to make an album and no one is going to hear it.

You don't have to worry about anyone's ears or opinions or anything at all. It's in your contract to make an album but no one can hear it.' We pretty much made that album. We made that album without much thought of other people," she said in a recent Apple Music 1 interview.

The song resonated quickly with the audience and the group never looked back ever since! Both Asa Makowski and his father Eric Makowski have been musicians since their childhood.

They loved making music and it had given them a sense of solace, and peace, kind of an escape plan from the harsh realities. This passion grew as they grew older and the son proved that true talent does run in the genes. Now both of them are living the career of their dreams, making music and gaining impressive success.

The latest release of Mak Daddy Revue has proved again why deciding to write and record their music was right. 'I Wanna Believe' was the first WOA release that debuted at #1 on the Official iTunes UK Blues Charts and simultaneously hit #2 on the iTunes US charts, making one of the biggest hits of their careers.

Lizzo Clarifies: 'I Quit' Was A Pun Meant To Debunk 'Negative Energy'

Recently, Lizzo posted 'I Quit' on an Instagram post, Melissa Viviane Jefferson clarified she was punning and this is not the end of her journey in the music industry.

Right after the day after she appeared at a Democratic campaign event for Joe Biden, she posted a post on Instagram stating, "All I want is to make music and make people happy and help the world be a little better than how I found it."

On the other hand, she opened up about feeling unwelcome, she stated, "But I'm starting to feel like the world doesn't want me in it. I'm constantly up against lies being told about me for clout & views ... being the butt of the joke every single time because of how I look."

She further discussed the trolling and how public scrutiny has impacted her, she said her character has been "picked apart by people who don't know me and [are] disrespecting my name." This statement has led to her empathetic conclusion, she added, "I didn't sign up for this st — I QUIT 🙌?."

Right after this post, people started to speculate she might be leaving her music career.

But later in a video, she clarified that she is "getting tired of putting up with being dragged by everyone in my life and on the internet."

She clarified on her Instagram video, "I want to make this video because I just need to clarify — when I say I quit, I mean I quit giving any negative energy attention."

She also added, "What I'm not going to quit is the joy of my life which is making music, which is connecting with people because I know I'm not alone."

In the video, she continued, "If I can just give one person the inspiration or the motivation to stand up for themselves and say they quit letting negative people win, negative comments win, then I've done even more than I could've hoped for."

She also added, "The love that I've received means more than you know".

This statement woke the legal battle where Lizzo sought to dismiss a sexual lawsuit filed by three of her backup dancers against Lizzo.

The three dancers, Arianna Davis, Crystal Williams, and Noelle Rodriguez filed a lawsuit last August alleging abuse, harassment, and discrimination.

They mentioned that Lizzo has been violating various workplace infringements while these three background dancers have been working for her.

Netizens Are Worrying About Newjeans's Come Back Plans After The HYBE And ADOR Spat

NewJeans is continuing with her comeback plans despite her spat between HYBE and ADOR. A reliable source said these companies must continue the plan.

According to a reliable source, the K-pop girl group NewJeans will move on with their comeback plans. And they are going to come back with their forthcoming release in the next month. While the ongoing spat between ADOR and HYBE continues.

This news came shortly after HYBE and ADOR CEO Min Hee-jin was in a power struggle over this K-pop agency. Min Hee-jin is the person behind the formation of NewJeans.

According to a recent report they have talked with a source who has the “knowledge in the matter” disclosed about this.

“NewJeans will make a comeback in Korea with a new single in May, whether or not ADOR CEO Min Hee-jin cooperates with HYBE,” the source also shared, “It is her duty to push ahead according to the schedule, as well as the duty of HYBE.”

Last month NewJeans announced their several upcoming releases followed by a world tour in 2025. The first two releases are ‘How Sweet’ and ‘Bubble Gum’, which will release within a month. Amid of everything the spat between HYBE and ADOR continues.

But Min Hee Jin said, “I don’t want to dilute the main issue here with unnecessary comments. There are very important schedules ahead for NewJeans, so we are discussing what is the best course of action.”

While some showed their worry about whether or not the NewJeans will make a comeback in the scheduled time or not, while others were speculating on this topic.

One of the fans wrote on Twitter (X), “if newjeans is gonna be involved in massive scandals every time a comeback is near then I think im fine with getting a comeback once every 9 months.”

Another wrote on the same thread, “See now I can’t help but think HYBE is hiding something even bigger bc why are you being silly lying about documents and titling them “Keep us untouchable from Hybe” & “Final Escape”, the person also added, “Instead of handling it privately, they went public to use this situation as a distraction.”

She further continued, “There’s something really wrong at Hybe for them to go out and try to damage newjeans’ reputation ahead of their comeback cause this could’ve easily been a private meeting and I hope everything comes to light cause this was a sick move on their part.”

Keeping the speculations alive, their remerge will surely going to be a blast.

Kanye West Is Planning To Venture Into The Porn Industry: Report Says

Famous American rapper Kanye West is venturing into a new business, the porn industry. According to reports he is in advanced talks to start up Yeezy Porn Studio.

American rapper Kanye West, known as Ye is now looking to get into a new form of entertainment industry, the pornography industry. Reports state that the singer-songwriter is in 'advanced talks' with his partners to start up Yeezy Porn Studio.

A new report by TMZ states, "Ye's been kicking around the idea of launching his own pornography studio and brand for a while -- and now, we're told he seems dead set on doing it ... 'cause he and his partners are in advanced talks to actually get something up and running."

"We're told Kanye and co. have been talking about building an entire Yeezy Porn studio -- which would be part of a broader adult entertainment division at the parent Yeezy company," it added. The report also reads that Ye is discussing this new project venture with adult star Stormy Daniels' ex Mike Voz, who has had some experience in the same industry.

Ye has recently made a post on his X (formerly Twitter) account, a six-second video that came with the phrase "Yeezy Porn Is Cumming." Now this new talk about business ventures comes after the rapper speaking multiple times about his love and hate relationship with pornography.

In 2019, Kanye West revealed that he was exposed to porn from a very young age and he was addicted to sex after his mother died in 2007. In an interview on Apple Music Beats 1 show with Zane Lowe the 'Runaway' rapper opened up about his sex and pornography addiction.

"Playboy was my gateway into full-blown pornography addiction. My dad had a Playboy left out at age 5, and it's affected almost every choice I made for the rest of my life. From age 5, to now having to kick the habit. And it just presents itself in the open, like it's OK. And I stand up and say, you know, it's not OK," Ye said.

He also shared that religion has helped him a lot in this journey of beating the addiction. "With God, I've been able to beat things that had a full control of me. That Playboy that I found when I was 5 years old was written all over the moment that I was at the MTV Awards with the Timberlands, the Balmain jeans - before people were rocking Balmain jeans - and the Hennessy bottle," he commented, referencing to the 2009 MTV Video Music Awards incident.

On one hand, audiences get the silky and smooth R&B rhythms of French sensation Tayc, and on the other, the song has India's most adored female singer with the most soulful vocals, Shreya Ghoshal.

Following the massive success of the global hit "Guli Matta," which gathered around 300 million views on YouTube, 'Yimmy Yimmy' is gearing up to surpass its predecessor's triumph. The song serves as a cross-cultural collaboration and its dream-like celebration. According to Anshul Garg, Play DMF's visionary, 'Yimmy Yimmy' is an absolute testament to the unlimited creativity and connectivity within the community of international music. This project is enthusiastically backed up by Virgin Music Group. This also showcases the group's dedication to push forward Indian music to the global stage.

Not just the vocals, 'YimmyYimmy' also transcends borders with its lyrics. Penned down by the genius duo of Nyadjiko and RajatNagpal, with great lyrical contributions from both Tayc and Rana Sotal, the track offers an entire musical journey to English, French, and Hindi music listeners. At the same time, the video is visually stunning, featuring the dance queen of Bollywood, Jacqueline Fernandez.

Directed and choreographed by Piyush-Shazia, Jacqueline has showcased her signature irresistible charm that is so hard to ignore! All the collective effort behind 'YimmyYimmy' is on its way to making this the next global dance hit. Garg has expressed his excitement for this latest collaboration, saying, "With 'YimmyYimmy,' we're not just creating music; we're forging a cultural movement resonating worldwide. This project celebrates the incredible talent emerging from India and the power of international collaboration." Aligning with the same enthusiasm and feelings, Virgin Music Group's Country Manager for India & South Asia, Amit Sharma also underscored the importance of such collaborations, especially showcasing the potential of Indi-pop on the world stage.

'Yimmy Yimmy' features Jacqueline Fernandez and her dancing skills that have taken the internet by storm. After working with Anshul Garg, she has given the media the statement that this is like a dream come true moment for her.

Jacqueline said, "Songs have played a huge part in my career, and teaming up with Anshul for 'YimmyYimmy' is another tick mark on my list. He has such a keen sense of music, and it was such an entertaining ride shooting for the song. The vibe of this song is so refreshing and energetic, and I am sure that the audience will love the song too."

'Dost Banke' Is Currently The Comfort Anthem For All Emotional Music Lovers

Music can sometimes paint poignancy through its words and music that does not feel harsh, but rather warmly painful. The latest hit and an emotional anthem for the Indians, 'Dost Banke' is the greatest example of that and it goes without saying that Rahat Fateh Ali Khan has done a great job along with Gurnazar.

Currently extending the sob hours for all, 'Dost Banke' has received an overwhelming response from the fans and continuing to gain more success and views as well. It gained more than 11 million views within a few days after the release of the project. Another driving factor behind this success can be considered social media as the song has inspired more than 100,000 reels.

Rahat Fateh Ali Khan is one of the legends of classical and there is no doubt that he has made many Indians feel emotional with his intriguing singing styles. However, Gurnazar deserves special mention as this artist has showcased his versatile skills through this project. He is not only the lead actor in the music video but also the lyricist behind this song which is making a lot of listeners sob.

In the music video for 'Dost Banke', Gurnazar could be seen performing with the very talented Priyanka Chahar Chaudhary who perfectly portrayed the emotive essence of the track. It is safe to say that the three artists have touched millions of hearts through their single project. It was revealed that the crew also had teary eyes while filming the final sequence of the track.

Director Abhaynoor Singh is also being praised for his creative contributions which made the music video even more cinematic. He was found saying, "Through 'Dost Banke', I wanted to highlight how, knowingly and unknowingly, people hurt others for momentary and worldly pleasures.

It was an attempt to touch on the lasting impression that such behaviors leave on an individual's persona, leading to traumas that can be devastating sometimes, as in this music video."

Expressing his vision further, the director said, "I wished to leave the audience with a moment of reflection to ponder over these deep themes. The video has touched the right chord, which is fulfilling as a director."

There is no doubt that 'Dost Banke' and its music video are setting new standards for music videos in the Indian Music Industry.

While fans have been waiting patiently for Rihanna to come back and release her next studio album, the pop global star revealed that the new songs she has been working on are really 'Diamonds'!

In one event in honor of the release of her new Fenty x Puma Creeper Phatty Earth Tone sneaker in London on Wednesday, Rihanna was asked about her plan to come back on the red carpet. The 'Work' singer opened up in an interview with Entertainment Tonight about the new music that she has been working on.

While she did not give away many details on the process or the material, the pop superstar did hint that the wait would be worth it because the songs on this highly anticipated album are "so good".

Riri first spoke about her upcoming project when in the interview with ET, a reporter asked her about her two sons and their music plan. The reporter asked the singer about her two sons 23 months-old RZA and 8 months-old Riot that she had with her beau A$AP Rocky might be music artists one day or have any plans of appearing in her upcoming music. She responded, "I mean, it's up to them."

"I already got stuff that I feel like I can make hits out of," the 'Umbrella' singer continued. "Really."

It was in this conversation that Rihanna teased that the new song material that she has been working on for this project is "so good" that rap superstar partner, Rocky has discussed rapping over them for himself.

"Me and Rocky are really trying to figure out who is going to use what," Rihanna said. She also admitted that at this moment she

"Maybe the visual ideas are leading me to the songs that I need to make."

Dua Lipa Announces New Single 'Illusion' And Shares A Snippet

Dua Lipa is dropping her next single from the upcoming album. She recently shared a snippet of the next single 'Illusion' that got the fans excited!! The pop star shared the news via a post on X, formerly Twitter on Thursday, April 4th along with a photo of the project's artwork.

The artwork features the 'Dance the Night Away' singer in a white bikini top and shawl, looking coruscating. The post also came with a teaser video where Dua was seen in the same outfit dancing along to a snippet of the upcoming single. From the snippet in the video, the fans noticed that it is going to be another Dua classic, a pulsing and high-beat, dancefloor-ready track. "I could do this dance all night," Dua sings in the sneak peek. "Ooh, what you doing? Don't know who you think that you're confusing." The singer captioned the post, "ILLUSION 11TH APRIL ~ YOU READY?," along with three water-droplet emojis on social media platforms.

The 'Levitating' singer announced the news of her upcoming album 'Radical Optimism' in March, along with the album's cover picture and tracklist details. 'Illusion', the upcoming single, is the seventh title on the record, residing between French Exit', and 'Falling Forever'. One day before Dua shared the latest news, the singer posted a reel containing behind-the-scenes footage from her working on the album. The video also included pieces and bits of the upcoming music. "It's the beauty of the chaos and trying to stay calm through it," Dua said in a voiceover in the reel.

"Listening over and over and feeling like, 'How do I want to tell this story?'" "I always go for the most upbeat ones to introduce people to the record," she added. "I can just keep on dancing and keep people dancing. "We're trying to create a world in a different way, and sonically it was about experimenting. DUALIPA - 'ILLUSION' REVIEW - THE UPBEAT DANCE BANGER CHANGES THINGS FOR BETTER

DuaLipa has finally released her upbeat third single 'Illusion' from the upcoming third studio album 'Radical Optimism'. The album comes out on May 3rd.

DuaLipa reminds her audience who she is as she finally released the psychedelic-dance single 'Illusion' after teasing the single for far too long!

This is the third single from her upcoming third studio album 'Radical Optimism', released on 3rd May. Like the album's two previous singles 'Houdini', and 'Training Season', 'Illusion' is also a big and bold dance track yet with a very especially House-inspired theme.

This newest single taps into several rave and psychedelic influences that seem to have inspired her latest body of work.

On the soundscape, Dua makes it clear that she knows what is real and what appears to be an illusion. "Ooh, what you doin'/?/Don't know who you think that you're confusing/I be like, 'Ooh, it's amusing'/You think I'm gonna fall for an illusion," the artist sings on the very catchy and groovy hook of the track.

Sonically, 'Illusion'

borrowed heavily from the dance-pop era we witnessed with the Noughties Waltzers music. Listening to the latest single from Dua will remind you of several club hits like 'Lady (Hear Me Tonight)' by the French house duo Modjo, Daft Punk spin-off project 'Stardust', etc.

The single polishes up the edges with the help of co-producers Danny L Harle and Tame Impala's Kevin Parker. However, you could still hear the heavy influence of French House music through and through in the track.

A TanuMuino-directed music video has also accompanied the single that features Dua alongside her dancers, swimmers, and high divers at the Piscina Municipal de Montjuïc in Barcelona, Spain.

Amusingly, this is also the same location where Kylie Minogue shot her iconic 'Slow' music video. On the other hand, the single seems to have impressed the fans who were begging the singer for something new, something with a little variation in her signature disco-pop sound. The first two singles, 'Houdini', and 'Training Season' left the listeners quite disappointed with the repetitive and monotone sound.

'Illusion' has changed the game for DuaLipa, and for the better. The composition goes straight into a 2000s disco/dance-pop theme influenced by French House, giving the album track a complete makeover.

The song is still the signature DuaLipa sound, yet found its way toward a refreshing and unique twist. 'Illusion' is punchy, grabs right at your throat, and is rich, kind of reminding you of Kylie Minogue's music. The sleek and shimmering beat of the track gets its perfect complement from DuaLipa's sleek vocals, ideally capturing the song's energy. You can watch the video on YouTube and follow Dua on social media for further updates.

TAYLOR SWIFT AND POST MALONE RELEASES THEIR LATEST SINGLE 'FORTNIGHT'

Taylor Swift has released the first single from her latest album 'The Tortured Poets Department', 'Fortnight' featuring very dear Post Malone. Catch the review here.

Taylor Swift is currently the number one artist in the global music industry with the release of her eleventh studio album 'The Tortured Poets Department'. With this record-smashing studio album came to her newest single 'Fortnight'.

The song is as usual an Antonoff production and features an unexpected guest artist, Post Malone. If you think about Taylor Swift and all her eras starting from the upbeat country Taylor, pop perfection, Taylor, to evermore Taylor, collaborating with a rapper like Malone, you would not expect the track to be this.

However, the song maintains the status of Swift in the industry, by debuting at No. 1 both the Billboard Global 200 and Billboard Global Excl. U.S. charts.

When it comes to the song's production, it offers nothing new, a typical Antonoff composition. However, at the same time, it will not bore you as it reflects the musicality and sound of the synths that will give you a feel of the late 1970s/early 1980s. I will admit that the song doesn't progress anywhere musically. But when you give it a couple of listens, you will understand that the mood that Swift was going for would not have worked better if the song made some musical progress or went anywhere during its runtime.

4.9/5

By Daily Music Roll

The composition is catchy and on the first run, you would definitely question whether this song really needed a feature. However, after a couple of times, you would realize it would not have worked as well if it did not have Post Malone.

Even if you don't find Taylor's music amusing, you would not be able to deny that she sounded amazing on the track. Jack Antonoff runs his magic again as Post's voice melds so well with Taylor's in the song. Thinking about why Taylor Swift is called one of the great writers of this generation, lyrically the song is also well made and perfectly reflects the vibe that the artist originally intended to go for. The song seems to be from a person who has been in a romantic relationship which unfortunately ended badly. But even then, the author seems to be conflicted about her feelings regarding the past relationship.

Taylor Swift herself opened up about the lyrics of her dark single that helped her listeners understand her point of view better. "Fortnight" is a song that exhibits a lot of the common themes that run throughout this album. One of which being fatalism - longing, pining away, lost dreams," Taylor explained in the Amazon Music voice note to her fans.

However, despite giving her fans multiple projects in just a short period, fans are asking for something new and different. This army might be supporting the artist's every record, helping her create an unforgettable run in the industry, but at the same time, they also need some musical growth which everyone knows Taylor is capable of.
