'ESPRESSO'

"I'm working late 'cause I'm a singer". I am not, Sabrina Carpenter is and she is to be blamed for this madness! It is like the entire world has been Ratatouille'd, and instead of a rodent, it is a blonde 4'11 popstar making everyone repeat the phrase that does not even grammatically make sense, "That's that me espresso." The singer has officially dropped the song of the summer and people clearly prefer her espresso more than anything! What do the lyrics actually mean? Well, it is very Sabrina and her unconventional way of telling us she is so hot that men are completely obsessed with her. When you first hear the song, it is silly and fun, just like how bubblegum pop should be and maybe that is the reason the song is an absolute earworm.

BTS' RM Releases New Concept Photos For 'Right Place, Wrong Person'

BTS' RM is increasing the heat in the summer for his fans. The artist has unveiled new concept pictures for his upcoming solo album 'Right Place, Wrong Person'.

Renowned K-Pop sensation, BTS' RM, also known as Kim Nam-joon continues to captivate millions of hearts of his fans with the newly released concept photos.

His second solo album 'Right Place, Wrong Person' is a few weeks away, but the singer-rapper is giving his fans a sneak peek into the visual concept of the album, pretty ahead of time.

The BTS rapper recently shared a bunch of concept photos on May 2nd, Tuesday which teased the aesthetics of the star's upcoming solo LP. The 11-track project drops on May 24. In the unveiling of the second set of concept photos, RM showcased his raw charisma and charm through the candid snapshots.

The snaps have a resemblance to images that are taken on a disposable camera the BTS star is seen posing in several locations in Tokyo, in his natural, charming, and casual form.

The candid snapshots that are captured in diverse settings help build further excitement among his devoted fans. These pictures included locations like in front of a tree, a parking lot, staring at the camera, in a swing set of a playground, and occasionally smiling Kim Nam-joon.

The latest concept photos share a glimpse into the artistic vision of the global icon and his newest work of art. These set the stage for what the star promised would be a musical journey like never seen before.

In the pictures, RM leans back in a desk chair in what seems to be a colorful yet messy office room. In another picture, RM holds his shoes while standing at night in the ocean, where the bottom of his jeans is soaked in water.

According to a release, the recently released artwork is meant to capture the artist as an "ordinary individual in relatable, everyday settings, enjoying moments of freedom — a departure from the glamorous persona he embodies on stage."

The concept holds true as the material on his upcoming album 'Right Place Wrong Person'.

The album is said to be about Nam Joon being an outsider. The album will be about the inner feelings of the singer-songwriter of "being an outsider who doesn't fit in," according to the album announcement on Weverse last month.

The new concept photos were taken by Takahiro Mizushima and were released two days after RM premiered the album's first set of concept images, taken by Wing Shya.

Fans can now expect a third set of concept photos which will be released on May 17th, right before the LP arrives on May 24.

Psychedelic Music: The Mystery Behind Music That Makes Everyone Intoxicated

Are you fond of Psychedelic Music? This music genre has been captivating music lovers since its inception. Let's find out more about this genre that envelops all. Psychedelic music is loved by music lovers around the globe yet it is often stigmatized as most people consider that the music genre has something to do with drugs and hallucinogens.

Yet, psychedelic music has always thrived through the music industry and later on gave birth to many other cross genres like Psychedelic Rock, Psychedelic Folk, and many others.

However, what is most profound in the industry is nothing but psychedelic rock which spread its wings wide and far. Thanks to bands like Pink Floyd, Jefferson Airplane, and many others who not only pioneered the genre but also popularized it among the mass listeners. Psychedelic Music contains a variety of elements and qualities of psychedelia which makes it highly captivating for everyone.

The genre is much faster than explored till now and its roots can be found back in the 1950s. However, it became most popular in the '60s and '70s, especially in California, America as well as many other parts of Britain.

Later on, many of the psychedelic rock bands were labeled as progressive rock as they added more ethereal and lengthy instrumental improvisation to music. Although this genre is one of the most popular music genres around the world, it can have different meanings to different people as the connotation can become very dynamic and subjective. So, the biggest question is;

What makes Psychedelic music Psychedelic?

According to music experts, it is fairly difficult to describe the genre as there is no powerful or particular sonic element that makes it psychedelic. It is more about the feelings that are created or expressed through the song that channelizes through listeners like musical transcendence, a musical composition that can create a cerebral sensation.

With a fair amount of rock influence in psychedelia, a lot of people think it is a subgenre of rock. Many bands that are labeled other rock n roll have produced songs that can be identified as psychedelic since those elements are used in psyche music later.

A fair example would be The Beatles as the band has offered some of the most intriguing psyche tracks such as 'Within You, Without You'. They only used a sitar for the composition and made some improvisation in their singing style which offered the psyche essence.

However, they also used sitar in 'Norwegian Woods' but it does not offer a psyche essence. Evidently, it is not easy to clearly define a track as psyche music since it is more about the feelings that the song produces rather than the elements.

It is not just music composition but psyche music can also offer a philosophical musical approach which makes it more engagingly poetic and abstract sometimes.

And for music, not only rock but music enthusiasts can also find ample folkly essence in it. Therefore, defining this genre can appear a bit disorienting sometimes.

There are many styles and elements that music artists have used all these years to create a psychedelic essence such as phaser and flange effects, not-so-typical time signatures, surreal lyrics, different organs and mellotrons, and the list goes on.

However, if seen chronologically, these elements were more used in classic psyche rock rather than neo-psyche as they are more into reverb and autotunes.

Therefore, it is fairly impossible to say what makes psychedelic music psychedelic. However, it is more like innovation rather than any cliched element.

Is Psychedelic Music Related to Drugs?

This is where the stigmas and stereotypes arrive as many people consider Psychedelic Music to be the music for drug addicts. Let's break the typical myth! A song does not become psychedelic because the artist or the listener is on acid.

It comes from the heart and deeper emotions based on how the song makes you feel. There is a sense of elevation and transcendence, like something very comforting and mind-blowing at the same time.

There are fair reasons why people associate psychedelic music with drugs as the genre was most popularized in the mid-'60s and '70s when San Francisco, California was a hub for hippies and other people influenced by LSD or Acid as well as recreational substances such as marijuana.

For the musicians of that time, drugs were nothing but a daily dose of optimism that helped them create artistic anomalies. They are not afraid to experiment and they are unapologetic of their creations.

The conflicting ideas and shattered norms can be found in their music as well. Starting from Jimi Hendrix, Jim Morrison, Syd Barrett, Brian Wilson, Grace Slick, and many others; the influence of drugs was quite high among the rock stars of the industry.

Not just the artists but many concertgoers used to take doses just to feel an otherworldly musical experience. However, that has nothing to do with psychedelics.

Is psychedelic music made in the modern era?

No matter how bizarre and filled with oddities, psychedelic music has been successfully made through all these years since people just love it!

Even though the era has passed, you can still find people grooving with psychedelic music from the past. Whether it is Jefferson Airplane's "White Rabbit" or Pink Floyd's "Time"; these psychedelic songs are timeless.

As mentioned before, neo-psyche bands have maintained their spot with new musical creations. Let's find out some of the best psychedelic bands and artists in 2024.

Adele Says 'Espresso' As "My Jam": Sabrina Carpenter Reaction

After Adele mentioned Sabrina Carpenter's 'Espresso' is her latest concert, Sabrina said, "All I read was Adele thinks about me in bed <3", mentioning the incident.

In one of the recent gigs, Adele mentioned Sabrina's mega-hit 'Espresso' as "My Jam". The 'The Rolling in the Deep' singer praised Carpenter for her latest release while she was performing at the Colosseum at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas.

The show was a part of her 'Weekends with Adele' residency which took place on the 19th of May on Sunday. In that show, Adele shared a story of almost facing a wetting accident due to her body getting accustomed to the time difference in Las Vegas.

The incident that she mentioned on stage started when she took a break and she was on her vocal rest. She said, "I nearly [wet] myself because my whole body clock was out of sync."

She continued, "So being on stage at 11:30, I was desperate for a pee. But I'm always, you know, [going] back to the hotel, in the hotel, whatever, by, sort of like, 11:10 at the latest. And then I have to warm my voice down, then I have a steam shower and things like that."

She also added, "As I got into bed last night — cause that's a very late night for me, normally I'm in bed by 9 pm— I found myself singing, 'I'm working late, 'cause I'm a singer, that Sabrina Carpenter song! 'I can't relate to desperation.' That song is my jam!' referring to Sabrina's 'Espresso'.

The Halo singer went on to say that she was sad as she was unable to sing along with this number as she was on her vocal rest. Then she added, "It came out and I couldn't talk!" "It came out when I couldn't talk or sing, so since my voice has come back, all last night and this morning that's what I've been singing," she shared.

After Carpenter learned about how Adele has praised this number she re-shared a social media post about the comment made by Adele. Captioning her share with "All I read was Adele thinks about me in bed <3."

The 'Nonsense' singer also shared a clip where Adele is seen saying these aforesaid words in her latest show.

Boston Calling Music Festival Faced "Unsafe" Crowd Condition To Handle

Boston Calling Music Festival is one of the most happening events that offers the best lineup for music artists. But 2024 showed a bad situation for the overcrowded fest. Boston Calling Music Festival has just taken place and the authority has responded to the feedback of the last three days that an unprecedented crowd condition was getting "unsafe". The festival cares for its fans in Allston and shared a statement in order to "acknowledge feedback from Sunday."

The festival shared, "We deeply appreciate the audience, staff, and performers who make Boston Calling Festival possible, and want to acknowledge feedback from Sunday".

They further added, "While the attendee count was several thousand below the official capacity rating of the site, we never want anyone to feel uncomfortable or unsafe at the show."

They ensured safety by adding, "We will continue to work with public officials and our operations team to improve the experience, layout and ultimately create a better environment for everyone."

The Sunday lineup for the Boston Calling Music Festival included The Killers and Hozier which created a major buzz among the concertgoers. Other performances included Megan Thee Stallion, The Revivalists, Chappell Roan, and others.

Sunday offered some of the best performances and a drone video shows that there was a huge sea of crowd at the festival which took place at the Harvard Athletic Complex.

The video was shared on social media and it received comments like, "I thought I was going to be trampled to death in this crowd," and "Unsafe and too crowded for this area."

One of the attendees from the fest, Margot Lee said, "There was no getting through like as an individual or as a group."

She has attended the festival thrice now and she knows that people come here to mainly enjoy the four headliners that took place back-to-back on side-by-side stages. She also said that there was more space on the other side of the festival.

Lee explained the problem saying, "That was the problem was that you had probably about 40,000 people stuck in one area instead of it being spread out throughout the complex like they were hoping."

During the set of Hozier set, the crowd became "dangerous" and there was no space to leave even if someone felt sick in the crowd. Lee added, "Someone near us got sick and the whole crowd began to rush and press into each other to get away and give the girl space the problem is there was nowhere to go." Clearly, Boston Calling made a good curation of artists but their crowd management was not the best.

'Enough Is Enough': Bobby Shmurda Lashes Out On Diddy After Assault Video Gets Leaked

American rapper Bobby Shmurda told loud and clear that he has 'No Time For Sleep' anymore. He seems to have joined the long list of celebrities who are banding together to support Cassie Ventura. In his own characteristically unique way, he fired back at Sean 'Diddy' Combs after CNN obtained and released the heart-wrenching video of him assaulting his then-girlfriend Ventura.

Although the rapper did not literally name-drop Diddy, his heated online video made waves in the industry, right after everyone's attention was caught by the assault video leak. The surveillance footage showcases P. Diddy savagely attacking his then-girlfriend in a hotel hallway, which dates back to 2016.

Rightfully so, this video evidence has upset Shmurda for which he unleashed his disappointment and fury on social media platforms. He posted an idiosyncratic lesson for men who choose to abuse women.

He dropped his rant on Instagram on May 17th, throwing shade and an indirect response to the disturbing video evidence of Ventura getting assaulted by Diddy. He weighed on the footage and opened verbal fire while sharing why a man should not let a woman make him lose control.

His opening message shot out: "On God, you gotta stop beating the b*tches up, y'allod'ing... Can't no b*tch make a n*gga go crazy." His rapid delivery of criticism continued, "Why would you put your hands on a female bro, especially when you are a multimillionaire?" without even breaking a sweat. Shmurda then resumed his rant in his post's caption as he dropped his fiery '#ShmurdaPhilosophy'.

He captioned, "y'allOdEeeeing. nahyallNiccass is moving dusty this shit gotta stop ain't no female worth yah freedom and ladies it should be no amount of money worth your respect [emoji]. I seen one of my fav celebrities do some straight dayroom shit smh(Prevention Before Cure). #PBC young bulls These been day room a real one won't ever you don't see us in those positions smh leave the [cat emoji] before you beat the [cat emoji]."

The message got instant approval from his followers on Instagram as reflected in his comment section. One user wrote, "These are the reactions I want to hear from men!"

While another one said, "The delivery is different, but the message is loud and clear!!!" Someone else also broke down Shmurda's philosophy and commented, "I got y'all I speak shmurda translation- control your self no matter what don't hit a girl."

CNN recently posted an exposé which is supposedly buried footage of the alleged attack that Diddy made on his then girlfriend back in 2016. The surveillance video catches Combs with a towel around his torso as he violently approaches his then-girlfriend, Cassie Ventura in a hotel hallway.

When Diddy catches up with her, he grabs Ventura by her hoodie and brutally shoves her to the ground. Then the footage shows the Bad Boy Records founder kicking her repeatedly before dragging her down the lobby as she remains on the floor.

Ventura moved ahead and filed a lawsuit against Diddy in November 2023 where she cited complaints addressing an abusive incident.

Her words in the lawsuit uncannily reflected in the vicious attack caught on camera. This is now obtained and released by CNN, 8 long years after the violent altercation happened.

On Sunday, May 17th, Diddy maintained his claims of innocence, and in an online statement he outrightly declared that he "did not do any of the awful things being alleged."

Yet, days after the emergence of the 2016 video, he uploaded an apology video seemingly that targets the public more than it asks for forgiveness from Cassie.

Severe Weather Issues In Las Vegas Put A Stop On Lovers & Friends Festival 2024

Organizers of Lovers & Friends Festival 2024 have shared with a heavy heart that this year's festival is canceled due to severe wind and weather conditions in Las Vegas.

The Lovers & Friends Festival in Las Vegas is one of the prime attractions for music lovers. However, this year's festival got canceled due to the severe weather conditions. The organizers have announced the cancellation of the show with a heavy heart.

shared by the National Weather Service and the safety of the concert-hoppers needed to be assured.

The organizers wrote in the message, "The National Weather Service has now issued a High Wind Warning, including dangerous 30-35 mph sustained winds with gusts potentially more than 60 mph."

They further added, "Following advice from the National Weather Service and in consultation with local public officials, we must make the safest decision for our fans, artists, and staff, and cancel tomorrow's Lovers & Friends Festival."

It is evident that the organizers are truly apologetic for the situation but perhaps this is the best decision to ensure everyone's safety and well-being.

They further added, "This was an incredibly heartbreaking decision to make as we are aware that fans have traveled from all over the world to enjoy this incredible lineup of superstars and have been looking forward to this event for several months."

They also expressed, "We've worked hard to create an amazing event for you, and we are just as disappointed as you are." The organizers also assured that all the tickets will be refunded within 30 days.

Fans are also currently heavy-hearted as the list of artists was quite dynamic and enthralling for many. Starting from Lil Wayne, Snoop Dogg, Usher to Nas, Alicia Keys, Gwen Stefani, and many others would have performed in the fest.

It is more special for Usher as he was about to celebrate the 20th anniversary of his hit album project, 'Confessions'.

The Biebers Are Having A Baby, Baby, Baby, Ohhhh.....

Hailey Bieber is pregnant, and expecting her first child with her husband Justin Bieber. The couple took to Instagram on May 9th to share the amazing news with their fans.

Congratulations are in order for the Biebers. Hailey and Justin Bieber are expecting their first child together. The Rhode founder and 'Peaches' singer took to Instagram to announce this delightful news on Thursday, May 9th.

Both the couple shared a series of pictures and videos from a film shoot. They did the shoot among a wide meadow, where Hailey is seen wearing a skin-light lace gown, cradling her beautiful baby bump, and Justin is seen snapping pictures of his wife.

In one of the clips, the couple was standing in front of their pastor, which seems to be a renewal of their marriage vows, though neither was confirmed anywhere.

There is no caption in either of the posts, all the couple did was tag each other. But the message is loud and clear, they are expecting, and over the moon about the news. In the video clip, Justin is seen smooching Hailey after what appeared to be a vow renewal. In other pictures, Justin turned the photographer for Hailey's pregnancy shoot. She showed off her bump in the pictures, which seems that she might be a little over six months pregnant, according to sources. This means Hailey is soon entering the third trimester and we might finally have baby Bieber by late summer!!!

"[Motherhood] is something that I look forward to," Hailey Bieber told GQ in an interview in October amid the rumors of her being pregnant. "It's also such a private, intimate thing. It's something that's going to come when it comes. And it's just, honestly, at the end of the day, so hilarious how much people f—king care. Let me do what I want to do with my body and you guys can do what you want to do with your body—and let's just let it be that," she said.

The couple has always been open about having kids someday. Hailey also talked about starting a family back in 2021.

In an interview with ELLE, the Rhode founder said, "We always knew that we were aligned on" what we wanted in our future."

"We had talked about wanting to be married young and having a family young and building a life. Even before we knew we wanted to be with each other," she explained.

In December 2020, Justin appeared on Ellen DeGeneres where the host asked him openly about having kids of his own as well.

Upon asking, "How many kids are you going to have and when?" the singer replied, "I am going to have as many as Hailey is wishing to push out." "I'd love to have myself a little tribe. But, yeah, it's her body and whatever she wants to do...I think she wants to have a few."

Justin then added "Hailey still has some things she wants to accomplish as a woman, and I think...she's just not ready yet. And that's okay."

Regarding the recent announcement, the couple's comment section is already filled with congratulatory messages from their famous friends including Kendall Jenner, Kid Laroi, Chrissy Teigen, Tate McRae, and many more.

Nicki Minaj Confirmed The Rescheduled Manchester Concert Date

Nicki Minaj has recently announced the rescheduled date of her Manchester concert.

The show got postponed at the last minute as she got arrested in Amsterdam. The concert is going to take place at the Co-Op Live. At the very first hour on 28th May, the artist tweeted regarding the date of the show. The concert is going to take place on 3rd June, which was about to happen on 25th May.

Nicki tweeted, which says ‘OK guys, I was JUST RE-ADVISED that we actually CAN NOT do any other date for the make up #gagcityMANCHESTER date besides JUNE 3rd,’ she wrote on Twitter/X. So JUNE 3rd is the new official date for all ticket holders who originally had tickets to the MAY 25th #Manchester show. I apologize for all the inconvenience this has caused.

I really hope you can make the #JUNE3rd show. It’ll be really special. Ticketmaster will contact you to advise officially. #GAGCITY’. At the end, she said ‘Love you’ and concluded her post.

Currently, Nicki is on her ‘Pink Friday 2’ tour. And the Manchester show was one of the grand ones of her European tour.

But earlier that day, Nicki got arrested in Amsterdam. For that reason, she had to stay in jail for 5-6 hours. According to reports, it came to know that the artist was ‘carrying drugs’ and that is why she got arrested by the Dutch police. Right after the arrest, there wasn’t any update given to the audience. People from all around the world were waiting to see her perform through live streams.

From 7 pm to 9:30 pm audiences waited for the artist and later they got the update of her getting arrested.

On 26th May Nicki made a post and apologized to all her fans. The artist said ‘Thank you to everyone who prayed for me today. May God cover you & all that is connected to you.

May you be blessed beyond your imagination’. She also wrote ‘They knew I’d still find a way to perform even if it came down to my last 90 mins in the building which would have been until 1130pm.

The building was willing to go past 11pm. So grateful to them for that’.

“I’m working late ‘cause I’m a singer”. I am not, Sabrina Carpenter is and she is to be blamed for this madness! It is like the entire world has been Ratatouille’d, and instead of a rodent, it is a blonde 4’11 popstar making everyone repeat the phrase that does not even grammatically make sense, “That’s that me espresso.” The singer has officially dropped the song of the summer and people clearly prefer her espresso more than anything! What do the lyrics actually mean? Well, it is very Sabrina and her unconventional way of telling us she is so hot that men are completely obsessed with her.

When you first hear the song, it is silly and fun, just like how bubblegum pop should be and maybe that is the reason the song is an absolute earworm. The repetition of the word “that” is there to include a sense of mischievousness and to catch the attention. The entire track lyrics have also been crafted using rhyme schemes along with the number of syllables, making every word fall into place. Then there is a metaphor as well like Sabrina is not actually espresso, but surely is as addictive and powerful as the drink is. When you listen to the track it gives you a sense of power that the singer conveys that she is attracting men and wrapping them around her finger. However, the lyrics might go deeper than we originally thought. When you listen to the track it gives you a sense of power that the singer conveys that she is attracting men and wrapping them around her finger. However, the lyrics might go deeper than we originally thought.

One line that has been tattooed in your, my, and everyone else’s brain is “I’m working late ‘cause I’m a singer”. This showcases that Sabrina has an untraditional women’s role.

She is actually a singer, not just a subject to the domestic world of the household. This conveys a greater power so people are finding it relatable even though not everyone is a global pop star. When you listen to the song you might think that it is not that deep considering the fact that her finger. Sabrina is a blonde, conventionally attractive woman.

But when you look at the lyrics from a linguistic perspective, you will notice that there are social ideologies behind the words and Sabrina is the one holding the power here. Maybe this is the reason the song is absolutely smashing both the charts and the people's minds.

The massive success of "Espresso" is an absolute disservice to the singer and how hard she has worked over the years. The former Disney star has been working in the industry for the past decade and for the last few years she has carefully crafted an on-the-joke and silly persona. She has also been putting a lot of work to be seen by being booked for the MTV VMAs pre-show, BBC radio, etc. Crafting her naughty jingles for "Nonsense" on stage definitely helped her career, and gave her the perfect opportunity to drop this single, which might be the biggest song of her career yet. "Espresso" buzzes to No. 1 on the Billboard Global Excl. U.S. chart which marks Sabrina earning her first no.1 in her career.

Late Music Legend K.K's Last Gift for his Fans 'SAVI: Vada Humse Karo' Has Released

Indian music Industry and especially Bollywood music would have been incomplete without the precious contributions of everyone's favorite K.K. His last playback singing for the movie 'SAVI' was a successful project and now, fans are sobbing over the track 'Vada Humse Karo' which has just been released from the movie. This is perhaps the last gift from K.K. for his fans. Music composer Piyush Shankar has also done a great job in crafting the musical arrangement that churns out a romantic melody, filled with both happiness and poignancy. Rashmi Virag's lyrical prowess is also reflected in this song which is currently buzzing among the fans. K.K.'s magical voice is once again heard by the fans after the artist passed away in 2022. Clearly, the song is making everyone nostalgic, sad as well as happy at the same time.

'SAVI' is an upcoming Bollywood film that is all set to release on May 31st, starring Divya Khosla, Harshvardhan Rane, and Anil Kapoor. Directed by Abhinay Deo the movie is all set to release under the banners of Vishesh Films and T-Series. The film is produced by Bhushan Kumar, Krishan Kumar, and Mukesh Bhatt. Just like K.K.'s singing; the film is also creating a sensation as a romantic thriller. The song 'Vada Humse Karo' plays an integral role in the story line and the narrative of the movie.

It goes without saying that K.K. is one of the greatest playback singers in India who has shown his versatile skills in various regional languages including Hindi. His singing prowess and amazing vocal skills mesmerized everyone regardless of the age of the listeners. Unfortunately, the industry lost the singer on 31 May 2022 at the age of 53 years. He was in Kolkata during a performance and fell sick while performing for the event.

He was taken to the hospital immediately, however, he could not make it.

The tragic loss of the singer is now replenished by this last track 'Vada Humse Karo' which is the last playback project by K.K. This new song came after a long time when fans had already accepted the fact that there would be no songs by K.K. anymore.

This is the best musical treat that K.K. fans can get.

'Highly Unprofessional': Netizens Have Made Such Comments After Arijit Singh Cut His Nails On Stage

Arijit Singh recently went to Dubai to perform in a concert but it is gaining huge attention from all and not for his singing. A video from the concert was posted by a fan, where the singer was seen trimming his nails on the stage.

In the video, everyone got to see that Arijit was singing his recent song 'Vida Karo'. At that time, he took out a nail cutter and cut his nails. This kind of casual behavior of the artist has surprised everyone. Many netizens have said that is a 'highly unprofessional' act.

The video of Arijit Singh wearing a grey shirt with an orange cloth tied on his head and cutting his nails has gone viral on social media platforms. No one has seen this kind of behavior of him while performing and this has created a buzz among everyone. As the video has gone viral, many have commented that it is 'Highly unprofessional'. On the other hand, one has said 'He should have done it before the concert, highly unprofessional, and who gets nail cutters to concerts? Crazy stuff'.

Another user commented 'Go backstage, do it come back! This is so not cool!' One has said 'He should have thought about it before going on stage. So unprepared to play the guitar'.

He has received many negative comments after doing the act. However, on the other hand, people have also defended him in the comment section.

A person made a comment saying 'This happened at the Dubai concert recently and I was there! He had difficulties with playing the guitar and hence had to cut his nails'. Another person said 'He did that so that he could tap through his guitars a lil better I think'.

Just like this, many people have commented in defense of the artist.

Camila Cabello Has Just Announced A Brand New Album C, XOXO

It is a time to enjoy more and new Cabello tracks as the artist has just announced the release date for her upcoming fourth studio album, titled 'C, XOXO'. It will be released in June.

A major buzz among the fans of Cabello is noticeable as the artist has just announced the release of her upcoming album. Yes, that is right! Camila Cabello is all set to drop her fourth studio album titled 'C, XOXO'. The release date is scheduled for June 28 and the anticipation is high among all.

Evidently, this anticipation is not only about an upcoming release but what the singer has expressed through this music project. Fans are more likely to know whether there is any song dedicated to Shawn Mendes. However, the artist is flamboyantly handling things and seems to be pretty positive about this upcoming project.

Cabello said, "Certain things in our human realm do make me feel like I'm in outer space, and the very rare few times where I've had incredible chemistry with someone is one of them. Part of that cocktail is also the emotional drama between you and that person, and the chaos and butterflies and nerves and passion. It's unsustainable and not peaceful and exhausting, but also, I LUV IT."

Not to mention, the artist dropped her latest single 'I LUV IT' in March which already created a sensation among her fans. Featuring Playboi Carti, this song is also appearing in the upcoming album and offers a fair tease. Previously in 2022, the 'Shameless' singer dropped her third studio album 'Familia' which offered listeners hit singles like 'Bam Bam', and 'Don't Go Yet', etc to name some. This album helped her earn a Grammy Nomination for Best Pop Duo/Group Performance.

Not only just music but it seems like Cabello is exploring her creative aura in every field. She is also appearing in an Indie drama named 'Rob Peace' that is all set to premiere at the Sundance Film Festival. The movie comes with an intriguing plot and Cabello plays a role of a girlfriend in the movie. Working against Jay Will, the character is forced to sell drugs in order to help his father's legal issues.

In an interview, the singer-actor was found saying, "I felt a story like this needed to be told." talking about the movie, Cabello further said, "People have told stories like this in an overly simplistic way... people coming from difficult circumstances; binary ways of looking at success and failure. In reality, it's more complex than that." Truly, Camila Cabello is on a whole new level right now!

The artist is releasing her fourth collaboration with Atlantic Records. This full-length album will be out this summer, making her fans excited for this release.

Last month, Kehlani returned with a new single 'After Hours'. Now she has announced a full-length album released this summer. This is going to be another Atlantic release; 'Crash' is going to drop on the 21st of June. The neo-futuristic album cover looks magnetic and people are already invested in the surprises she has planned for this upcoming month.

And for the next act, Eminem presents his new single! The rapper posted a joint Instagram video with magician David Blaine on May 28, Tuesday, to announce the details, name, and the release date of his upcoming new single. 'Houdini' will be arriving on March 31st, Friday. The rapper got the magician on board to make a surprise little video where he rings up Blaine on FaceTime to ask for his help. "Yo, listen, I need your help with something," the 'Mockingbird' rapper says.

"Yeah, whatever you need," Blaine replies. "Well first of all, I just want you to know you're the greatest to ever do it," Eminem says, to which the magician responds: "We should do something together one time."

"What I was wondering is, how far can we go with this magic? Can we do a stunt or something?" Eminem asks. The world-renowned magician then grabs a full glass of red wine from the nearest cafe and proceeds to drink the wine before biting into the glass itself! This elicited gasps from the people around as the glass shattered into his mouth.

"Well for my last trick," the rapper says in response, "I'm gonna make my career disappear." "Wait, what?" Blaine says with shards of glass still in his mouth before the screen goes black. The viewers then see the message "'Houdini' 5.31.24" on the black screen. The song 'Houdini' will be the lead single from the 'Rap God' rapper's already-announced album. The most impressive track from the album was 'Godzilla' featuring the beloved dead rapper, Juice Wrld, which peaked at number 3 on the Billboard Hot 100.

Eminem released a trailer on social media on April 25th, announcing his 11th studio album. The clip showed a crime reporter discussing the death of Slim Shady, the rapper's alter ego. "Through his complex and oft-criticized, tongue-twisting rhymes, the anti-hero known as Slim Shady has had no shortage of enemies," he says in the clip. After some time, Eminem made an appearance in the clip, stating, "I knew it was only a matter of time for Slim."

Notably, this is the second major single named 'Hourdini' to be released. In the past year, DuaLipa also paid tribute to the magician with her single of the same title.

This album was an exploration of what we do best."
