Pushing Boundaries of R&B Music, Coco Jones Is Here with New Album 'Why Not More?'

‘WHY NOT MORE?’

After working hard for years, Coco Jones is finally getting the spotlight she deserves. She is asinger, songwriter, and actress who has been on a roll since her breakout EP ‘What I Didn’t TellYou’ took off. Her song ‘ICU’ from the EP even won her a Grammy for Best R&B Performance in2022. The world got to see her strong vocals and honest, bold lyrics. Now, Coco’s not slowingdown - she is just getting started. She is ready to open up more and show even deeper sides ofwho she is through her music and creative work. It is officially her time to shine.Coco Jones is dropping her debut album ‘Why Not More?’ on April 25 through HighStandardz/Def Jam Recordings. The project is bold and mixes different music styles. She calls itmagnetic, real, and honest - showing off her growth and giving fans a deeper look into who shereally is. “I’m really trying to push the boundaries of what R&B can be,” Jones says in aninterview with Billboard. “Because I have so many influences — I have what my mom taught meas a kid, Disney Channel influences, and then I have me as a young adult — I feel like I blendgenres naturally as a personality. I wanted to match that energy with the album and continue toshow the versatility of R&B.”

THE REASON WHY GEN Z IS OBSESSED WITH NONCHALANT POP MUSIC

Tate McRae's new single 'Sports Car' takes a fun ride back to the early 2000s, leaving behind her old and moody bedroom pop style. This track feels like a shiny throwback to the days of hip-hop infused pop, sparkly flip phones, Juicy Couture tracksuits, and dancefloor anthems. From the very first beat, it gives off major nostalgic vibes. This is something that you will not notice in just Tate's musical release, but through the entire industry.

With soft, whispery vocals and the sounds of a car engine in the background, Tate hints at romance but keeps things light and playful. Unlike the bold and edgy moves from pop icons like Britney's 'I'm a Slave 4 U' or Christina's 'Dirrty', this song is not trying to shock or make a big statement. 'Sports Car' is simple, fun, and a little bit safe - just a chill pop tune that makes you want to dance.

Why does 'Sports Car' feel so nostalgic?

Right after Tate McRae dropped 'Sports Car', fans and critics started comparing it to The Pussycat Dolls, especially their 2006 hit 'Buttons'. People even began making mashups of the two songs, thanks to the similar smooth beats. One fan commented under Tate's video, which shows her dancing at a prep show, saying, "Nasty pop girls are back and I'm here for it." Back in the day, songs like 'Buttons' were called shallow or all style with no meaning. But now, Gen Z is giving that era another look and seeing it for what it really was - pure fun and easy escape.

Connection with Gen Z -

Maybe that is the whole idea. Gen Z - people born from the late '90s to early 2010s, are bringing back pop music that used to be seen as "guilty pleasure" and letting go of the guilt. Singers like Hilary Duff, Paris Hilton, Lindsay Lohan, and Heidi Montag, who were once seen as fake or cheesy pop stars, are now being praised for their fun and nostalgic sound. Gen Z is also appreciative of their looks, something that feels comforting in 2025. Tate McRae is one of the Gen Z artists taking on that early 2010s style and giving it a fresh twist. Pop critic Michael Cragg says it best: it makes sense that the kids who grew up loving those acts are now making music themselves and using the same style. 'Sports Car' sounds so much like 'Buttons' that it is clearly on purpose.

Is there a shift in pop music?

Cragg also says there has been a big change in how people think about pop music. Back in the mid-to-late 2000s, a movement called "poptimism" began. It was all about taking pop music seriously, just like rock. A younger group of music writers, who grew up listening to pure pop in the late '90s, started looking at music differently than the older critics did. Streaming stats from Deezer show that 75% of Addison Rae's fans and 69% of Tate McRae's fans are between 26 and 35 years old. This means older Gen Z and younger millennials are connecting with music that reminds them of when they were kids. But what is interesting is that a lot of Gen Z listeners were not even born yet when early 2000s pop was big. That is where "anemoia" comes in - a word that means feeling nostalgic for a time you did not actually experience.

Why does Gen Z feel connected to the past they were not a part of?

Existential psychotherapist Eloise Skinner explains that Gen Z can still feel connected to the past through the internet and digital culture. They scroll through old videos, music, and fashion online, building emotional ties to an era they missed but still feel drawn to. It was only a matter of time before Gen Z turned to fun, flashy pop music. According to Anna Pompilio, a cultural strategist who sits between Gen Z and millennials, today's world constantly pulls from the past. We have access to huge digital archives in every industry, all the time. On top of that, we are constantly moving through fast-changing "micro-trends." This mix can feel overwhelming, so nostalgia becomes something familiar and comforting, a way to feel grounded.

Even Tate McRae embraces the comparisons to Britney Spears, saying they are both “flattering and scary.” Pompilio points out that new pop stars like McRae and Addison Rae are not trying to be totally original - they are more focused on being “the next” version of classic pop icons. Songs like Rae’s “Diet Pepsi” and “Aquamarine” are filled with references to past pop styles and looks, creating a feeling of tribute rather than something brand new.

Is nostalgia risky?

There is a risk in leaning too hard on the past. Branding expert James Kirkham warns that always reusing old styles, something called “hauntology,” a term by theorist Mark Fisher, can water down creativity. And with 100,000 new songs uploaded to Spotify every day, standing out with fresh ideas is harder than ever. “Today’s Y2K revival isn’t just referencing the 2000s,” he says. “It’s referencing a TikTok interpretation of the 2000s – already twice removed from the source. We’re entering an era where nostalgia feeds on nostalgia, creating a Russian doll of references increasingly distanced from their source material.”

Nostalgia is not a new trend. Cultural sociologist Dr. Richard Courtney explained that we tend to look back fondly on pop culture from about 20 years ago. For example, in 2003, the year when Tate McRae was born - many young people became obsessed with cheesy synth sounds from the 1980s. Courtney grew up in the 80s and remembers when songs like ‘You Spin Me Round (Like a Record)’ by Dead or Alive and hits from Spandau Ballet suddenly felt cool again. That wave of appreciation came from older millennials. As he puts it, “Nostalgia is like walking into the future while staring at the past.”

How have streaming services changed acceptability?

Today, streaming services have changed everything. They have made it easier for people to listen to whatever they want without shame. The lines between “real” and “fake” music are more blurred now. Cultural strategist Anna Pompilio said that young people can freely enjoy Depeche Mode and The Pussycat Dolls at the same time. There is no longer a need to pick one over the other or feel embarrassed in society. James Kirkham agrees that Gen Z cares more about the “vibe” of music than old-school ideas of what makes something “good art”. They were not around when people argued whether The Pussycat Dolls were empowering or just overly sexualized. Instead, Gen Z listens without overthinking every little aspect. They blend both deep and silly emotions. To them, being serious and being playful can exist side by side. That is why early 2000s pop feels so refreshing right now. In a world full of stress, debates, and constant horrible news, the fun and carefree energy of bubblegum pop becomes a way to let go.

Kesha Teams Up With Scissors Sisters For Her Upcoming 'T!TS OUT TOUR'

Kesha is ready to go big as she is definitely not going home! The pop star is making an iconic comeback in the music industry after fighting against Dr. Luke for abusing and exploiting her. She is more powerful than ever right now and no one can stop her from performing for her fans.

The 'Tik Tok' singer has just announced the dates for her upcoming tour and the fans are going wild. The name of the tour is pretty wild too as it is called 'T!TS OUT TOUR' which will be supporting her forthcoming new album and she will be joined by queer pop group Scissors Sisters. The tour is all set to start on July 1st and the singer will receive additional support and performances from Slayyyter and Rose Gray. The show will start in West Valley City, Utah, and will conclude in Tampa, Florida, on August 10. The full list of dates is already revealed and fans can secure their tickets early through pre-register.

Kesha has launched her own label, Kesha Records, and released two new versions of "Yippee-Ki-Yay," one featuring T-Pain. Her upcoming album will also include last year's singles, "Joyride" and "Delusional." Meanwhile, Scissor Sisters are making a comeback with the Tits Out Tour—their first U.S. show in years—as they gear up for a European reunion tour celebrating the 20th anniversary of their debut album.

Jimin Achieved the UK Silver Certificate for 'Like Crazy'

BTS's Jimin has got a silver certificate for the second time for his solo soundtrack 'Like Crazy'. British Phonographic Industry recently announced the recognition.

Jimin has got the United Kingdom silver certification for the second time as a solo music artist. His solo debut soundtrack, 'Like Crazy' has gotten the official BRIT certificate, which is a huge matter of excitement. The British Phonographic Industry (BPI) has recently announced this achievement by the BTS singer.

A silver certificate is given to an artist when 200000 units are sold of a single and 60000 units are sold of an album. Now, Jimin has crossed the milestone and he has achieved the silver certificate. This has created a huge sensation among his fans.

This artist dropped this single in 2023 to explore his solo music career even more. At such an early stage, he has earned such big recognition, which truly deserves appreciation. With this big recognition, Jimin is making a global impact and showcasing his creative talent. 'Like Crazy' helped him to get to this milestone for the second time. And that is what made this an even bigger achievement.

As a solo music artist, Jimin is growing at a large scale. he has offered some diverse music creations in his solo music career. And that is what led him to gain more audiences. Now it is coming to see that Jimin is growing even more as a soloist than BTS. In the Westernmusic industry, Jimin has made a huge influence that is unavoidable. The song 'Like Crazy' was released as the title track of the solo album 'FACE'.

In a brief time, this track got a huge recognition from all the music enthusiasts. With this album, he has offered captivating lyricism and blended it with soothing music. And that has made it even more interesting. With the track, the artist has addressed emotions like loneliness and escapism. This relatable approach has made his work even more brilliant.

Jimin is now growing at a large scale with his solo music creations. All the BTS members are right now serving in the mandatory military duties. However, all of them are continuing to represent the group on the global stage.

As Jimin has recently achieved this big recognition, all of his fans are now anticipating more from this artist. As of now, he hasn't made any announcement of his upcoming creations and everyone is eagerly waiting for it now.

Dua Lipa Made A Surprise Cover Of The Lorde's 'Royals' At Radical Optimism Tour

Popstar Dua Lipa is becoming the queen of the music industry with her Radical Optimism Tour which is buzzing gloriously.

At her recent concert in Auckland, New Zealand, the singer paid tribute to Lorde by singing a surprise version of the track 'Royals'.

Fans at the show were almost 'Levitating' when the singer appeared in her glamorous lacy black bodysuit complemented by a fuzzy cream shawl. She was completely in command at the Spark Arena, and the crowd followed her.

She sings, "We're bigger than we ever dreamed, and I'm in love with being queen," along with backup vocals which offered a grandiose musical experience through lush harmonies. As the lyrics go further with the lines like "And we'll never be royals/ It don't run in our blood/ That kind of luxe just ain't for us/

We crave a different kind of buzz", and Dua held a hand-crown over her head.

As Dua continued with "Let me be your ruler/ You can call me queen bee," the crowd was already in a dance vibe and the singer joined them. They started singing along with Dua and that is what was described, "And baby, I'll rule/ Let me live that fantasy."

This special cover of "Royals" is a musical treat from Dua for the fans in Auckland who attended her Radical Optimism Tour.

It was the second sold-out night for the artist and the arena was packed. Well, they definitely deserved this sweet gesture from the artist.

The song 'Royals' was released back in 2013 and it was a massive hit for Lorde back then. It was only her debut single which became a breakout smash and spent a total of nine weeks at the no.1 on the Billboard Hot 100. The song appeared on Lorde's first studio album called 'Pure Heroine' which ranked at No. 3 on the Billboard 200. Lorde has not released any album project since her last work in 2021, called 'Solar Power'. It is not certain when Lorde's next album will come but she is often found in her studio. She made a guest appearance for Charlie XCX's "girl, so confusing" last year.

Jennifer Lopez will Host the 2025 American Music Awards

Jennifer Lopez is going to be the host of the 2025 American Music Awards.

Dick Clark Productions is going to produce the award show and they have recently announced the news. As of now, it is coming to know that the show is going to be aired on Memorial Day on CBS. Previously, in 2015, JLo first hosted the show. And it is going to be her second time hosting AMA.

Before the announcement, Lopez gave a hint that she is coming back to host the show once again. She was seen at the American Music Award's 50th anniversary, which took place six months ago.

JLo is quite excited to be back on the AMAs. However, her fans are even excited as she is going to host this year. The CEO of Dick Clark Productions, Jay Penske said 'We are thrilled to welcome Jennifer Lopez back to host the American Music Awards'. He also added 'Jennifer's incredible talent and incomparable stage presence make her the ideal host of the show. We know she will bring her one-of-a-kind energy to the official kick-off celebration of summer'. Jennifer Lopez and the American Music Awards share a special bond. This might be her second time hosting the show, but she has performed at it more than 10 times.

Thus, without JLo, AMA seems a little incomplete. As she is coming back to the show once again, it is generating a huge buzz among everyone. The show is going to be broadcast on Memorial Day, which is the 26th of May. The production company said before that it 'pay special tribute to our U.S. troops and veterans through authentic performances and unforgettable moments'.

This time, the AMA will be broadcast through Paramount+. And it will also be shown on CBS for everyone. It will be streamed at 8 p.m. ET/5 PT.

Before this, AMA was always streamed on ABC. However, they ended the long-term contract and shifted to CBS. It is now coming to know that, when the AMA's 'American Music Awards 50th Anniversary Special' was shown on CBS, it reached out to more audiences compared to the previous time.

That is why they have made this shift this time. With this particular initiative, the AMAs will reach out to more audiences in a brief time, which is going to be helpful in many ways.

Ed Sheeran Witnessed Trouble Writing Lyrics In The Latest Music Video 'Azizam'

Ed Sheeran dropped his brand new music video, 'Azizam', where he has seen exploring the Persian culture. The music video for this track has been directed by the Iranian-American director, Saman Kesh.

At the beginning of the video, Ed is seen struggling to write lyrics. And then he thrust into a Persian wedding.

As he entered the Persian wedding, everyone ran and jumped towards him and then started planting kisses on the cheeks of the artist. The music video kickstarts in a whole different way that makes audiences hooked to it.

After that, he hits the dance floor wearing a turquoise colored bomber jacket. He danced among the Persian wedding guests and witnessed the particular culture of Persian weddings. He then goes back to the music studio, where the Iranian singer, Googoosh is seen and tells Ed to 'write a hit song'. The whole presentation of the soundtrack is quite innovative. And that is what helped him to gain more attention from the music enthusiasts.

In less than 15 hours, the video has gotten more than 800k views on the video. With each passing time, the video is reaching out to more audiences and influencing them to the core.

For 'Azizam', Ed has come up with an enthusiastic song. The upbeat music along with the mind-blowing lyrics have made the song even more brilliant in every aspect.

He dropped the song earlier this month and now he has offered the music video of it too. The title of the track translates to 'my beloved' or 'my dear'. On an Instagram post, he has 'I wrote Azizam after Ilya suggested trying out making music inspired by his Persian heritage and culture,' Sheeran wrote on Instagram when the song was released'.

He even added 'It was like opening a door to a completely new and exciting world. I loved how a lot of rhythms, scales, melodies and instruments were different but similar to the Irish trad music I had grown up with'.

Regarding the music video, Ed asked the producer, Ilya Salmanzadeh who said 'you gotta do it as a Persian wedding, that's the best way to showcase all of the culture in a video'. He even shared 'I found it was so similar in ways to the Irish weddings I grew up going to, but obviously so different in other ways,' Sheeran wrote, adding, "Much like the rhythms and instrumentation of the song, I find our two cultures have so much intertwined similarities. But underneath it all is love and pride'.

Lola Young Gets a Majority of Nominations in Prestigious Songwriting Awards

Pop singer and songwriter Lola Young is becoming the true lyricist of the industry and gaining recognition with multiple nominations. She is leading the categories for this year's Ivor Novello Awards which is highly prestigious. It is one of the most celebrated awards in the UK music industry that embraces songwriting over anything.

She has received a total of three nominations for Best Song Musically and Best Song Lyrically her breakout hit single 'Messy'. The song spent a total of one month at the top position on the UK chart and it created a huge buzz among pop lovers.

The artist is also shortlisted for the best album category where she will be facing some tough competition against 'Brat' by Charlie XCX which has almost become a pop phenomenon in last summer. The other nominations are acquired by rapper Ghetts, Charlie, and singer Raye who have gained two nominations each.

On the other hand, there is Jade who has been nominated for the best contemporary song due to her magical creation of 'Angel of My Dreams'. Guess what? Even after 40 years, Wham! has been nominated for their all-time hit Christmas track 'Last Christmas' for the prize for most performed work based on airplay and public demand.

The winners from the nominations list will be announced soon on 22 May at a London ceremony and the judges have already announced that U2 will named as Academy Fellows which is perhaps the highest honorary accolade at the event.

The Rise Continues: Ginga C Drops 'The Next Chapter'

Independent musicians are craving their own names in the industry with much more passion and hard work now.

One such artist is Ginga C, who has carved his own path through the UK music scene with relentless passion and authenticity. Born in Canterbury and raised with a fire to express real stories, the musician started his journey in 2013 and quickly caught the streets' attention with his raw delivery and heartfelt lyrics. His 2019 debut mixtape 'Modern Day Hippie' shot to the top of Link Up TV's hottest mixtapes chart. This set the tone for a career driven by truth, energy, and originality. Now, in 2025, he is back with a new message, a new chapter.

The artist has just released 'The Next Chapter' with fellow producer Lankz Beats, and it is already making waves in the industry for its artistic creativity, raw emotions, and musical versatility.

This new album is more than just a name for the artist, it is his declaration. Created in full collaboration with producer Lankz Beats, the EP showcases Ginga's evolution as both a rapper and a storyteller. It is a tighter and more refined version of his signature sound that blends street wisdom with moments of reflection and grit. Lankz's beats lay the perfect foundation for the album - moody, melodic, and occasionally trippy. This liberation allowed the musician to float between hard-hitting bars and soulful hooks. The entire EP is a leap forward without losing the roots, a new coat of paint on a real and rugged story.

Each track on 'The Next Chapter' brings something different to the table. From anthems that echo his laid-back vibes to emotionally charged street tales that highlight the struggle behind the scenes, Ginga C holds nothing back. His lyrics hit the audience like a journal entry that is personal, unfiltered, and brutally honest.

Whether he is spitting about past pain, future dreams, or just vibing at the moment, the artist's presence on the EP commands attention. It is music for the heads, for the streets, and for anyone who has ever felt stuck between survival and success.

With this release under his independent movement Modern Day Hippie Music, the musician is proving that control and creativity go hand-in-hand. He is no longer just a name in the scene. He is building a legacy with more releases, and the recent EP just proved that he is here for the long term. 'The Next Chapter' is truly more than music, and for the artist, this is just the beginning of what is next. Some of the songs from the EP that caught listeners' attention are 'Money For Real - Remix', 'Working', 'Bently', etc. Listen to him on Spotify, SoundCloud, Apple Music, and YouTube. For more updates - follow him on Instagram.

Latin Grammys Ceremony Is Returning to Las Vegas for 2025

After 2022, the Latin Grammy Awards will be returning to Las Vegas in 2025.

This will be the 15th time that the award ceremony is taking place in Las Vegas. The Annual Latin Grammys are returning to Las Vegas for 2025. It was announced today that the 26th iteration of the Spanish-language show will take place at the MGM Grand Garden Arena in Las Vegas on November 13th, by the Latin Grammy Awards. The show previously moved from Spain to Miami in 2024.

Now, the show will return to the resort city in 2025, for the 15th time. This will be the first time the show will take place in Las Vegas since 2022.

The Latin Grammys have been held in different cities since they started in 2000, but most shows took place in Las Vegas, mainly at the MGM Grand Garden Arena or the Michelob Ultra Arena. After 11 years in Vegas, the awards moved to Miami in 2020. They returned to Vegas in 2021 and 2022. In 2023, the Latin Grammys were held in Spain for the first and only time outside the U.S. The following year, in 2024, the show went back to Miami. Over the years, the Latin Grammys have switched locations but often return to familiar cities like Vegas and Miami. Manuel Abud, CEO of the Latin Recording Academy, said, "We are proud to once again bring the passion and creativity of Latin music to Las Vegas," about returning to Las Vegas. "The city has welcomed the Latin Grammys over the years, and we look forward to another great Latin Grammy Week celebrating Latin music and its creators."

Like always, the Latin Recording Academy will host several Latin Grammy events around the city before the big show. These include the Special Awards Ceremony, Leading Ladies of Entertainment, Latin Grammy In The Schools, a party for the nominees, a showcase for Best New Artist, the Person of the Year Gala, and the Premiere Ceremony.

More info about these events will be shared in the next few months by the official account.

TelevisaUnivision will produce the three-hour telecast on November 13th and will broadcast across TelevisaUnivision's U.S.-based platforms.

"As the home of Latin music, we are excited to deliver unparalleled coverage of the 26th Annual Latin Grammy Awards to our audience," said the president of Univision Networks Group at TelevisaUnivision, Ignacio Meyer. "This iconic night will showcase the extraordinary talent in Latin music, while shining a spotlight on the visionary artists, creators, and stories that are shaping culture in the U.S. and around the globe." The first round of voting for the 2025 Latin Grammy Awards will start on July 28 and end on August 8th. The nominations for this year will be announced on 17th September. The final round of voting will begin on 1st October and end on 13th October.

Post Malone Closes Coachella with Ed Sheeran and Jelly Roll

Post Malone closed the Coachella Music Festival 2025 in style. The headliner brought out Ed Sheeran and Jelly Roll on stage during his closing performance. Post Malone was the closing artist on the second and final weekend of Coachella 2025, and he brought out some pretty exciting surprise guests on stage. Ed Sheeran and Jelly Roll joined the artist as he closed the music festival this year. This is the second time that Malone was a headliner at the Coachella Valley Music and Arts Festival. He performed the headlining set on Sunday, April 20th, the last weekend of this year's festival. On stage, Malone delivered a career-spanning set involving the artist playing his biggest musical hits along with the newer songs. The main attraction, however, was the country-tinged mixes in his final set.

Malone closed the 2025 edition of the Californian festival with the help of Ed Sheeran. The 'Perfect' singer joined Malone on stage to perform his hit 'Sunflower'. Sheeran joined in the place of Swaa Lee, the original collaborator of the track. Sheeran came on stage and played acoustic guitar. Malone got surprised and reacted with "Holy fuck," as he walked around on the stage. He further added, "I didn't even know he was here tonight." The video quickly went viral on social media, where fans from all around the world came to appreciate this unexpected live collaboration. One of the X users said, "Two of the greatest", while another commented, "Ed x Posty in one fraaaameeahhhhhhckkkkkk". Another comment on the post read, "Who listens to this and says great vocals?". One user posted on X, "I NEVER KNEW I NEEDED ED SHEERAN TO SING SUNFLOWER WITH POST MALONE TILL RIGHT NOW".

Later during Malone's closing set, Jelly Roll also joined the 'I Had Some Help' singer to perform another hit, 'Losers'. This song was taken from Malone's EP F-1 Trillion, which he released in 2024.

Malone also took this opportunity to promote his upcoming stadium tour. His tour kicks off on April 29 and features Jelly Roll as an opening act. "I'm so fucking grateful to be able to have the fucking opportunity to be able to go on tour with the kindest soul such as yourself," Malone told Roll. "I knew from the first moment that I fucking hugged you that you had the biggest heart in the fucking universe, and I can only say thank you so very much, and thank you for coming out tonight and I love you and I can't wait to kick some fucking ass. You are the greatest motherfucker in the world."

Fans were expecting Morgan Wallen to be brought out as a surprise guest but were left disappointed. Especially for the fact that Malone collaborated with Wallen on his latest single 'I Ain't Coming Back', which was released on April 18. The rapper confirmed that he has "made probably 35 songs" for a new record, and it was now "a matter of which one's rock, and which one's sock". He also added that he would "absolutely not" debut any new song at his two headlining sets at the Coachella Music Festival.

MTV VMA will be Broadcast on CBS for the Very First Time

MTV Video Music Award is going to be broadcast on CBS this year. The new change has surprised all its audiences and generating a huge sensation among all.

MTV Video Music Awards are going to take place soon and there is a major shift this year. For the very first time, in 2025, the MTV VMA will be broadcast on CBS.

Previously, it was only broadcast on MTV and other partnered cable channels. However, there is this new change, which was quite surprising. On the 3rd of April, the authority announced and gave this new update. MTV VMA has officially made this switch.

In 2024, the VMA was broadcast on a total of 13 channels. That includes Comedy Central, VH1, CMT, BET, and various other channels. However, CBS was never a platform where VMA was broadcast before. This change has surprised the audiences. MTV Video Music Award has been one of the most anticipated awards shows that everyone eagerly waits for.

According to the data from last year, it came to know that the broadcast accumulated more than 66.7 million social interactions. Along with that, 4.08 million viewers were garnered with its original broadcast.

Bruce Gillmer and Den of Thieves co-founder Jesse Ignjatovic is the executive producer of the 2025. Gillmer has said 'With the primary drivers in the award show landscape, and I'll definitely put the VMAs in that category with the Grammys, the BET Awards, the AMAs, you do see an uptick.

But there may be one or two too many award shows. The core award shows are doing well, and they're growing, but there's not room for everybody'.

The award show is five months away from now. And it has started creating a buzz among all with this new update. There isn't any announcement regarding its nominations. Everyone is expecting that the nomination of the show will be announced very soon.

Only then, audiences will be able to understand who has been nominated for the recognition of MTV Video Music Awards.

Along with all these, VMA will also announce the host of this year's ceremony, which is not announced yet. As of now, it is only coming to know that, the MTV VMA will take place on 7th September 2025 at the USB Arena, Elmond, New York. It will start at 8 p.m. and continue till 11 p.m. It is a big night in the music industry that is creating a buzz among all.

The awards of the Webbys will be announced on 22nd April and it will be recognized on the ceremony of 12th May. Thus, everyone needs to wait for another month to find out the winners.

‘Hope On The Stage’ LA Concert By J-Hope

BTS member and global popstar j-hope has recently performed in Los Angeles for his ‘Hope On The Stage’ music tour and the first day was a complete blast.

J-Hope is not anymore a South Korean pop music artist but has become a global superstar after embarking on his solo music career. He has recently performed at ‘Hope On The Stage’ which took place in Los Angeles and the fans are delighted by his show.

Although he is making brisk moves in his solo music endeavors, the artist has never forgotten his origin and gave a shoutout to his former band on stage. Before starting his show, he introduced himself to the roaring audience saying “I’m j-hope of BTS.”

The crowd better known as ARMY went crazy and cheered his name together and the loving gesture almost melted j-hope.

He put his hand on his heart and said to the fans, “You guys have a lot of energy,” and asked, “Am I heaven? so many angels here.” It was only the first day of the two-day event at BMO Stadium in Los Angeles and it started with a complete blast. The two concerts are parts of the North American leg of “‘Hope On The Stage’” World Tour.

It has been four years since he last performed in Los Angeles with his former band BTS for the “Permission to Dance On Stage” Tour.

ARMY is best known for showing their complete support to their favorite K-pop boys it was evident through this event too. Many of the fans came into ‘Jack in the Box’ costumes and offered tribute to his studio album project.

A lot of fans came up with handmade bracelets, candy, stickers, as well as photo cards which are highly popular among the K-pop community. The ‘Hope On The Stage’ concert was divided into five parts and each of them was comprised of different themes and moods which reflected a story of his musical journey.

He appeared on stage dressed in black and walked towards boxes with numbers on them. He opens the box with ‘23’ on it which could be a reference to his age when he created ‘Hope World’ and gained more success in his solo career.

He performed many tracks at the show and the setlist included “Arson,” “Stop,” “Pandora’s Box,” and “What If...,” along with references to his other tracks like “Airplane” and “Chicken Noodle Soup”. j-hope is a powerful performer who can sing and dance with the same intensity.

He also performed “i don’t know,” “i wonder,” “lock/unlock,” etc, and showed how versatile he is with dancing skills.

He did some locking, popping, tutting, and house without even skipping a beat. He was also joined by his R&B collaborator Miguel.

His final song for the concert was “Neuron”, a perfect climax for the show. The ARMY will never forget this experience.

Celebrities Attended The 8th Annual REVOLVE Festival

The 8th annual REVOLVE Festival took place last weekend and generated a huge buzz.

Various celebrities came to the event and made it even more memorable. The eighth REVOLVE Festival 2025 takes place on Saturday in Thermal, Calif. There were many invite-only guests like Julia Fox, Dwyane Wade, Emma Roberts, Becky G, Jordan Chiles, Teyana Taylor, Alix Earle, Charlie D'Amelio, and more.

In the headlining act, as the special guest, there were Cardi B, Lil Wayne, and Tyga. In addition to all these, everyone got to witness artists like Hunny Bee, Uncle Waffles and Gelo, Quinn Blake, and DJ Lex. The profound event has been a great attraction for everyone.

In the beginning, it was just an influencer day party. However, now it has become a huge part of the culture that includes a fashion week, music festival, and social media Olympics. This time, the theme of the event was Desert Mirage.

The glamorous event along with various brand activations, and mirrored structure has made the event even more brilliant. In this picturesque event, Cardi B was seen spraying Whipshots into audiences during the middle of her performance. It was quite an energetic moment when everyone was surprised by this act of Cradi.

Along with this, people were also shocked watching Karrueche Tran, Teyana Taylor, and Chris Brown catching up together in the VIP section. The enigmatic moments have made the event even more brilliant.

In REVOLVE, many unexpected cultural crossovers have taken place. The NBA legend, Dwyane Wade was first seen in a golf outing. He was seen with a curated sports group at the Palm Springs.

After that, he traded with clubs for a clean 'fit and then went to the REVOLVE Festival. Then he was seen in the VIP section catching up with Becky G and others.

On Friday afternoon, Kylie Jenner made a surprise appearance at the Sprinter Vodka Soda pool party. It was hosted at the Parker Hotel for the product launch of Sprinter's latest Palm Springs Pack.

There are four new flavors that are Pink Lemonade, Strawberry, Pineapple, and Mango. Kylie was seen with them at the event, which generated a buzz. At this party, there was the DJ set, JoeKay, and Soulection, who made the party even more exceptional. This year, the REVOLVE Festival was an excellent event that offered everything to all the audiences. The profound show was filled with enigmatic performances that everyone enjoyed thoroughly.

Jonas Brothers Release Brand New Music Video for 'Love Me To Heaven'

The Jonas Brothers are bringing a new era for their fans! The group started this New Year with a kick by releasing a brand new single 'Love Me To Heaven'. Now, they have released a music video for the single, too!

The music video for the group's latest single came out on Monday and it is already making a wave in the music industry by bringing something unique to the recording. The video, which premiered on YouTube, captures the brothers singing the single in a recording studio.

The new single arrived on Friday, March 21st, and served as the first release from the Jonas Brothers, Nick Jonas, Joe Jonas, and Kevin Jonas, this year. The single was followed collaboration with Marshmello and Rascal Flatts.

The song also debuted at the JONASCON, the group's inaugural fan convention. This took place on Sunday, March 23rd, at New Jersey's American Dream. The song is also a part of the band's celebration of their 20th anniversary.

It has an upbeat pop tune that sees Joe, Nick, and Kevin leaning into a cheerful romantic euphoria. The group also performed the song first in Toronto, during their anniversary celebration show last month. "Could give me everything, but it ain't enough / You can't put a price on the human touch / I could be down, but you love me to heaven / Turns out the Northern Lights don't impress me much / Guess I'm just a fool for the human touch / I could be down, but you love me to Heaven," the brothers sing in the chorus of the track.

The group had previously hinted that this year would bring so many exciting releases for their fans. This will include a brand new album, solo music, and a holiday soundtrack, along with a Disney+ holiday movie titled Jonas Brothers Christmas Music.

The song is from the group's upcoming album, 'Greetings from Your Hometown,' which will be released on 8th August. The single 'Love Me To Heaven', and its video, the upcoming album 'Greetings from Your Hometown, JONASCON, and the announcement of 'JONAS20: LIVING THE DREAM', the group's new tour, started the band's 20th-anniversary celebrations.'

In a new interview ahead of JONASCON at Good Morning America on March 23, Nick Jonas said, "For us, this really represents going back to the roots."

"We're definitely tapping into Bruce Springsteen inspirations that we had growing up in Jersey. It's got that up-tempo feel and feels more in line with our earlier stuff, which has been so exciting for us to tap back into and work with some incredible collaborators."

Tickets for the upcoming 'JONAS20: LIVING THE DREAM', late this summer are on sale now. The tour will start in East Rutherford, New Jersey, at MetLife Stadium, on August 20.

The tour will make stops at several cities all across the U.S. This will include cities like Chicago, Oregon, Portland, and many more. It will conclude on November 14th in Uncasville, Connecticut.

Lizzo Wears a Throwback Britney Spears T-Shirt in New SNL Promo

This weekend, Lizzo is going to appear on Saturday Night Live as a musical guest and new promos for the show have just dropped. In the new promos, the American singer and rapper was seen paying homage to another iconic artist, Britney Spears.

Saturday Night Live's this week's musical guest, Lizzo, was seen wearing a Britney Spears t-shirt, throwing back to her teen-pop idol days of the pop princess.

This week will mark the American rapper's fourth time appearing on the stage of SNL as a musical guest. In 2022, she hosted the show. On the other hand, Spears did double duty as a music performer and a host twice in 2000 and 2002.

Spears has also been impersonated more than a dozen times on the show. The recent impersonation was done by Chloe Fineman, a regular SNL cast member. Lizzo appeared with Jon Hamm, who is going to be hosting SNL for the fourth time this year.

They appeared alongside other cast members Bowen Yang and Marcello Hernandez. The group found out just how much in common they have with each other when they said their favorite food (mozzarella sticks) in unison.

However, things got really "weird-mazing" when the group recited their shared favorite movie. "Angels in the Outfield, the heartwarming 1994 sports comedy starring Donald Glover and a young Joseph Gordon-Levitt!" the quartet says at once enthusiastically. The audience also learned the surprising real name of Hamm as the group finds out that this is not the first time they have all spent time together.

The promo is out on YouTube, and the comment section seems overwhelming. One comment read, "Angels in the Outfield the heartwarming 1994 sports comedy starring Danny Glover and a young Joseph Gordon Levitt is MY favorite movie too", while another one said, "marcello's delivery on 'hamm HAMM hamm' killed me??" Another comment said, "Somewhere, the Triple H Hamm HammHamm is shaking his head and questioning if he should ask SAG to rename him for Jon Hamm.", while another comment read, "Hamm-bone is back and it's gonna be a blast. Time to medicate myself on laughs - love this lineup?" Lizzo is coming to this weekend's SNL as a musical guest to promote her upcoming fifth studio album, 'Love in Real Life'.

Although her album does not have a release date yet, it has been preceded by the title track and another single 'Still Bad'. Last month the rapper announced that she is releasing another album via Instagram. "ALBUM IS DONE YALL!" Lizzo wrote as a caption on a photo of herself in the studio, struggling to smile.

The expression was explained in the second half of the caption, where she wrote, "ASTROLOGY EXPERTS Do my mercury got micro braids? Cus I got an emergency root canal, announced SNL & finished my album all in one day today." SNL will be airing on NBC at 11:30 p.m. ET/8:30 p.m. PT. Then the show streams on Peacock.

Katy Perry Is A Part Of The Latest Blue Origin Human Space Flight

Jeff Bezos' Blue Origin's very first all-female spaceflight is going to be launched on 14th April. As of now, it is coming to know that the 11th human flight, NS-31 will launch from West Texas at 10 a.m.

Blue Origin has confirmed that there will be a livestream of the launch. The pop singer, Katy Perry is going on this flight also.

Recently, through an Instagram post, the artist shared the news, which has stunned all her fans. It is a space exploration initiative of the company and Perry is going to be a part of it.

All the crew of this flight are going to be women, which has made the event even more special for everyone. Now, it is coming to know that the space will be led by Lauren Sánchez. She is right now engaged to Jeff Bezos and also the vice chair of the Earth Fund.

Along with Katy Perry, there will be many passengers on this 11th human space flight. According to the announcement, it is coming to know that Gayle King from CBS Morning, Amanda Nguyen, the Bioastronautics research scientist, the NASA rocket scientist Aisha Bowe, and Kerianne Flynn, the film producer are going to be on this flight.

It is going to be a whole different experience for all the passengers on this human space flight. Katy Perry is immensely excited to be a part of this initiative.

While announcing the news on Instagram, she shared an animated graphic video. At first, the expedition logo was shown. Then the clip gave details of the spacecraft.

She also added a caption that says 'T-minus 3 days to launch for NS-31 @blueorigin'.

The American Idol judge also said 'If you had told me that I would be part of the first-ever all-female crew in space, I would have believed you ... Nothing was beyond my imagination as a child'.

She continued by saying 'Although we didn't grow up with much, I never stopped looking at the world with hopeful WONDER!'.

Perry stated more that says 'I work hard to live my life that way still, and I am motivated more than ever to be an example for my daughter that women should take up space (pun intended). That's why this opportunity is so incredible — so that I can show all of the youngest & most vulnerable among us to reach for the stars, literally and figuratively'.

Drake Premiered the Official Music Video for 'Nokia'

It has been a long time since Drake did not receive positive limelight after the devastation Kendrick Lamar brought to his musical career with a diss track 'They Not Like Us'.

The rapper has finally managed to come up with an official music video for the track 'Nokia'. The MV features a monochromatic bnw $ome $exy $ongs 4 U clip which is directed by his long-time collaborator Theo $$$kudra.

The music video also features a group of carnival dancers who represent the city of Toronto. Drake made sure to put some NBA references by featuring Canadian point guard Shai Gilgeous-Alexander in the music video.

The collaborative project between Drake and PARTYNEXTDOOR, '$ome $exy $ongs 4 U' was released last month and the album project is not gaining much attention as Drake has hit rock bottom. He has recently filed a federal defamation lawsuit against Universal Music Group.

However, UMG claimed that Drake has deliberately 'provoked' and participated in the feud with rapper Kendrick Lamar which led to the consequence that everybody already knows. He also had to settle his dispute with the iHeartRadio as he previously claimed that they were paid by UMG for promoting the track 'Not Like Us' which exposed the dark and disgusting truth of Drake's personal life.

Since Drake was unable to rise to fame again after his 'Minor' activities, he decided to feature Shai Gilgeous-Alexander out NBA to gather more attention. This Oklahoma City Thunder star has recently come to the spotlight after his wonderful performance at the game. However, this can be also a marketing stunt for the NBA as Drake is also the global ambassador for the Toronto Raptors and an avid basketball fan. This is not the first time but Drake has featured basketball players in his music videos who are the MVPs for the projects. The carnival-themed music video and its IMAX representation of a black and white video appear to be quite cinematic and exciting.

It also features a retro Nokia flip phone and Gilgeous-Alexander could be seen appearing in a stylish Vaffanculo jacket along with his new signature Converse sneakers, the SHAI001. Perhaps, Drake is trying to get more cultural influence by bringing in the basketball players and black personas who have no charges like he does.

Dua Lipa Has Announced the Dates for the Latin American Leg of Radical Optimism Tour 2025

Pop powerhouse Dua Lipa has announced the dates for her Radical Optimism Tour 2025 in the coming days in Latin America. The tour will include all the countries in Chile, Brazil, Peru, Argentina, Mexico, and Colombia.

There are many fans of Lipa living in the Latin American region and they are quite happy with the announcement of the upcoming dates for the aforementioned countries. This is one of the biggest music tours by Dua Lipa, which will feature eight shows in various countries.

The Latin American leg is all set to start on Friday, November 7th in Buenos Aires and the Argentinean fans are very excited about it. The venue is decided to be at Estadio River Plate. Not only in Latin America but Dua's music tour has expanded globally which features a total of 77 shows in every continent including, Asia, Europe, Australia, New Zealand, North America, and of course, the UK.

The singer has decided to end her extended global tour in Mexico City and it will feature back-to-back performances on December 1 and December 2. It will take place at the Estadio GNP Seguros in Mexico.

Dua Lipa's Radical Optimism Tour 2025 seems to be going well as a highly successful project that launched last month in Australia. It kickstarted from Melbourne and put the audiences in awe not only through a powerful performance but also exceptional visual work, stage design, and a dreamy production that offered the perfect mood for each track.

Dua Lipa also made sure to feature guest appearances from various renowned artists to make things even better with a dynamic collaboration. Previously many artists joined her on stage namely Kevin Parker from Tame Impala, Troye Sivan, and Vance Joy.

Each night of the show, the artist has decided to entice her fans by performing cover tracks of the artists from those regions. She offered powerful performances on AC/DC's "Highway to Hell," Kylie Minogue's "Can't Get You Out Of My Head" and also Natalie Imbruglia's "Torn."

This global music tour is designed in support of Lipa's third studio album which is titled 'Radical Optimism' which became the no.1 music project in 12 different countries including the UK.

It is the biggest album from a UK female artist in 2024 which featured at No. 1 on Billboard's Top Album Sales chart as well as on the second position on the Billboard 200 chart.

Pushing Boundaries of R&B Music,
Coco Jones Is Here with New Album

Why Not More?

With her debut album 'Why Not More?' and world tour coming up, Coco Jones talks about how she is embracing her power and changing the R&B scene with bold new choices.

After working hard for years, Coco Jones is finally getting the spotlight she deserves. She is a singer, songwriter, and actress who has been on a roll since her breakout EP 'What I Didn't Tell You' took off. Her song 'ICU' from the EP even won her a Grammy for Best R&B Performance in 2022. The world got to see her strong vocals and honest, bold lyrics. Now, Coco's not slowing down - she is just getting started. She is ready to open up more and show even deeper sides of who she is through her music and creative work. It is officially her time to shine.

Coco Jones is dropping her debut album 'Why Not More?' on April 25 through High Standardz/Def Jam Recordings. The project is bold and mixes different music styles. She calls it magnetic, real, and honest - showing off her growth and giving fans a deeper look into who she really is. "I'm really trying to push the boundaries of what R&B can be," Jones says in an interview with Billboard.

“Because I have so many influences — I have what my mom taught me as a kid, Disney Channel influences, and then I have me as a young adult — I feel like I blend genres naturally as a personality. I wanted to match that energy with the album and continue to show the versatility of R&B.”

Her EP was just the introduction. ‘Why Not More?’ takes things further - it is all about building a deeper connection with her listeners. “I think I have built up a good rapport with my fans,” the artist says. “I’ve learned a lot about them, they’ve learned about me — and I can kind of let my hair down and be riskier.”

That growth shows up not only in the themes but also in who she worked with. Jones explored fresh creative vibes with producers like Stargate and Cirkut, while still teaming up with familiar names like London on da Track and Cardiak. Even so, it is the personal moments that really hit home. On ‘By Myself’, Jones opens up about self-reliance and finding inner peace, sharing what she sees as one of the album’s most powerful and meaningful messages. “It’s really about wanting to be comfortable alone,” she says. “Comfortable without needing validation, without needing to be around people — some boy or girl, whatever. Just comfortable with you. I think that will really resonate with a lot of my listeners.” For Jones, feedback is key in shaping her future direction. “Having any kind of opinion, especially positive ones, is important because music is so subjective,” she explains. “But I always make sure it connects with the listeners.”

Sonu Kakkar Announces Split from Siblings in a New Emotional Post

The sibling trio - Neha Kakkar, Tony Kakkar, and Sonu Kakkar are well-known singers, music producers, and songwriters in the Bollywood industry. They were always known for their sibling love and collective struggle for fame in this industry.

Now, in a new turn of events, SonuKakkar has left the netizens in shock with her announcements regarding her siblings. In a new social media post, the singer-songwriter announced that she no longer has family connections with both her younger siblings, music producer Tony Kakkar and musician Neha Kakkar.

The announcement was made via social media and has left citizens stunned. It also triggered a wave of speculation behind this decision of Sonu, especially since this announcement came shortly after netizens noticed Sonu to be missing from Tony Kakkar's birthday celebrations on April 9th.

This detail has made many people curious, and now, with this post, netizens cannot stop speculating and talking on social media. Sonu made this announcement both on Instagram and Twitter, saying, "Deeply devastated to inform you all that I am no longer a SISTER to the two talented Superstars, Tony Kakkar and Neha Kakkar. This decision of mine comes from a place of deep emotional pain, and I am truly disheartened today. (Folded hands emoticon)."

However, she soon deleted this from her accounts. The announcement, however, went viral quickly on social media and sparked a debate among users, who wondered if this was genuine or just a gimmick. The post quickly made its way to Reddit, where many other users wondered if this was a part of some publicity stunt for their upcoming music release.

This speculation formed after Sonu's words "talented superstars" were used in such revelation. One user commented, "Who calls Tony a Superstar except a sister? You can never guess what is happening with this family. It may as well be a PR stunt for their next music album." Another user said, "This is 100% PR".

A comment read, "Talented Superstar? Anyways, it seems like a publicity stunt." "This is a publicity stunt," agreed another Reddit user. Netizens seemed to poke fun at the post, suggesting that the term "superstar" was a bit of a stretch, even for their family. "Two talented superstars? I wonder who she is referring to — definitely not her siblings.

Tony Kakkar used to sing better before he changed his style," one post said. Another comment echoed the same sentiment: "FAKE as everyone knows Tony is not a superstar — that too, talented?" The Kakkar siblings have a long history of collaborating in the Bollywood industry.

Sonu has worked with both of her younger siblings, Neha and Tony Kakkar. Apart from being a renowned playback singer, Sonu Kakkar has appeared as a judge in Indian singing reality shows and even performed at Coke Studio India. She has sung for songs composed by her brother Tony Kakkar like 'Akhiyan Nu Rehn De', 'Urban Munda', 'Funky Mohabbat', 'Phir Teri Bahon Mein', and 'Booty Shake'. Some of these tracks even had Neha Kakkar singing with her siblings, too.

While the singer's now-deleted post hints at emotional turmoil and a falling out between family members, the exact reason is unclear. Neither Tony nor Neha Kakkar has publicly responded to this announcement. Fans are now deliberately waiting for an official statement from the younger siblings.

Hungama Music is shutting Down Forever

Hungama Music, the Indian music streaming site is shutting down. The company has announced that they will shut down their service on 15th April. By sending a notification to all the users, this music streaming company has made its announcement.

Along with Hungama Music, they previously launched Hungama Digital Media. The services of Hungama Digital Media will also stop on the same day. They gave a clear statement that says 'downloaded music and library content will no longer be available'. Amidst the huge competition, this music streaming site couldn't service anymore and had to shut down. As of now, they haven't made any kind of announcement regarding rebranding or relaunch. Thus, as of now, it is coming to know that the service of this music streaming site will be completely stopped. In the past one and a half years, it is the third Indian music streaming site that has been closed forever. Previously, in 2024, ByteDance's streaming site Resso was shut down. After that, Wynk Music also shut down its service in November 2024. Right now, there are only two Indian music streaming that are still offering their services JioSaavn and Gaana.

These two streaming sites are still standing during this problematic scenario. Hungama Music was launched in the year, 2013. In the beginning, this site made quite a huge impact on the audiences and gained much recognition. It had many users and provided them with a better platform to listen to music. However, in 2023, they started subscription-only assistance to the listeners. So, no one will be able to use this streaming site unless they subscribe to it. And that changed the scenario at a large scale. This platform used to offer many Indian regional music. And that is why it got the chance to reach out to more audiences. However, the subscription-only policy and license deal of the IPRS policy made things quite difficult for everyone.

Other music streaming sites also have subscription plans. However, they are for better experiences. Without the subscription, audiences still get to use the platforms without any hassle. And that is why, they have accumulated more audiences and Hungama Music got a little behind in the race. As of now, it is coming to know that Hungama OTT will remain working.

People would be able to consume web series, movies, podcasts, and audio content on this site.

Sonu Nigam Gets Attacked On Internet By Fans After Virat Kohli's Wicket In IPL 2025

Social media can be a very deceiving place and even celebrities cannot make an escape from it. A recent incident of social media attack on Sonu Nigam showcases the sheer drawbacks of Indian fans.

It happened after a match in IPL 2025 where Virat Kohli was clearly dismissed by the amazing sportsmanship of cricketer Vipraj Nigam.

Indians on the internet who are mostly fans of the IPL team Royal Challengers Bengaluru as well as fans of Virat Kohli started showing their meaningless anger on the singer's account because apparently he shares the same title with the bowler who took the wicket of Virat Kohli.

While a lot will claim that fans have mistaken the singer with the bowler, it is clearly a remark of shallow humor. After leg spinner Vipraj Nigam made Kohli go home for just 22 runs, it took a big toll on the whole team's performance, and as usual, fans were shocked and angry about the wicket.

When it comes to cricket, Mitchell Starc is best known for his amazing dives and he made too an impressive catch on the Thursday match as well.

After the wicket was taken, Sonu Nigam's comment section started flooding with angry and hateful comments from the fans, such as, "Big fan sir, but kohli ko out nhi karna chahiye tha."

Some other user said, "How dare you take Kohli's wicket."

While they are all practicing a demonstration of confusion in this digital age; it is clearly an example of internet harassment done by Indian fans.

This is not the first time but previously, actor Arshad Warsi also faced similar harassment from the netizens of the internet when Gujarat Titans bowler Arshad Khan took Virat Kohli's wicket.

It was a match between Gujarat Titans and Royal Challengers Bengaluru where Arshad took the wicket of Kohli.

Virat fans started trolling Arshad Warsi's comment section because perhaps they were mistaken about the first name.

The actor posted a picture on Instagram with Ajay Devgn and somebody commented, "Kohli ko out kyun kiya".

These clear incidents of harassment on social media are considered quite common among Indian fans.

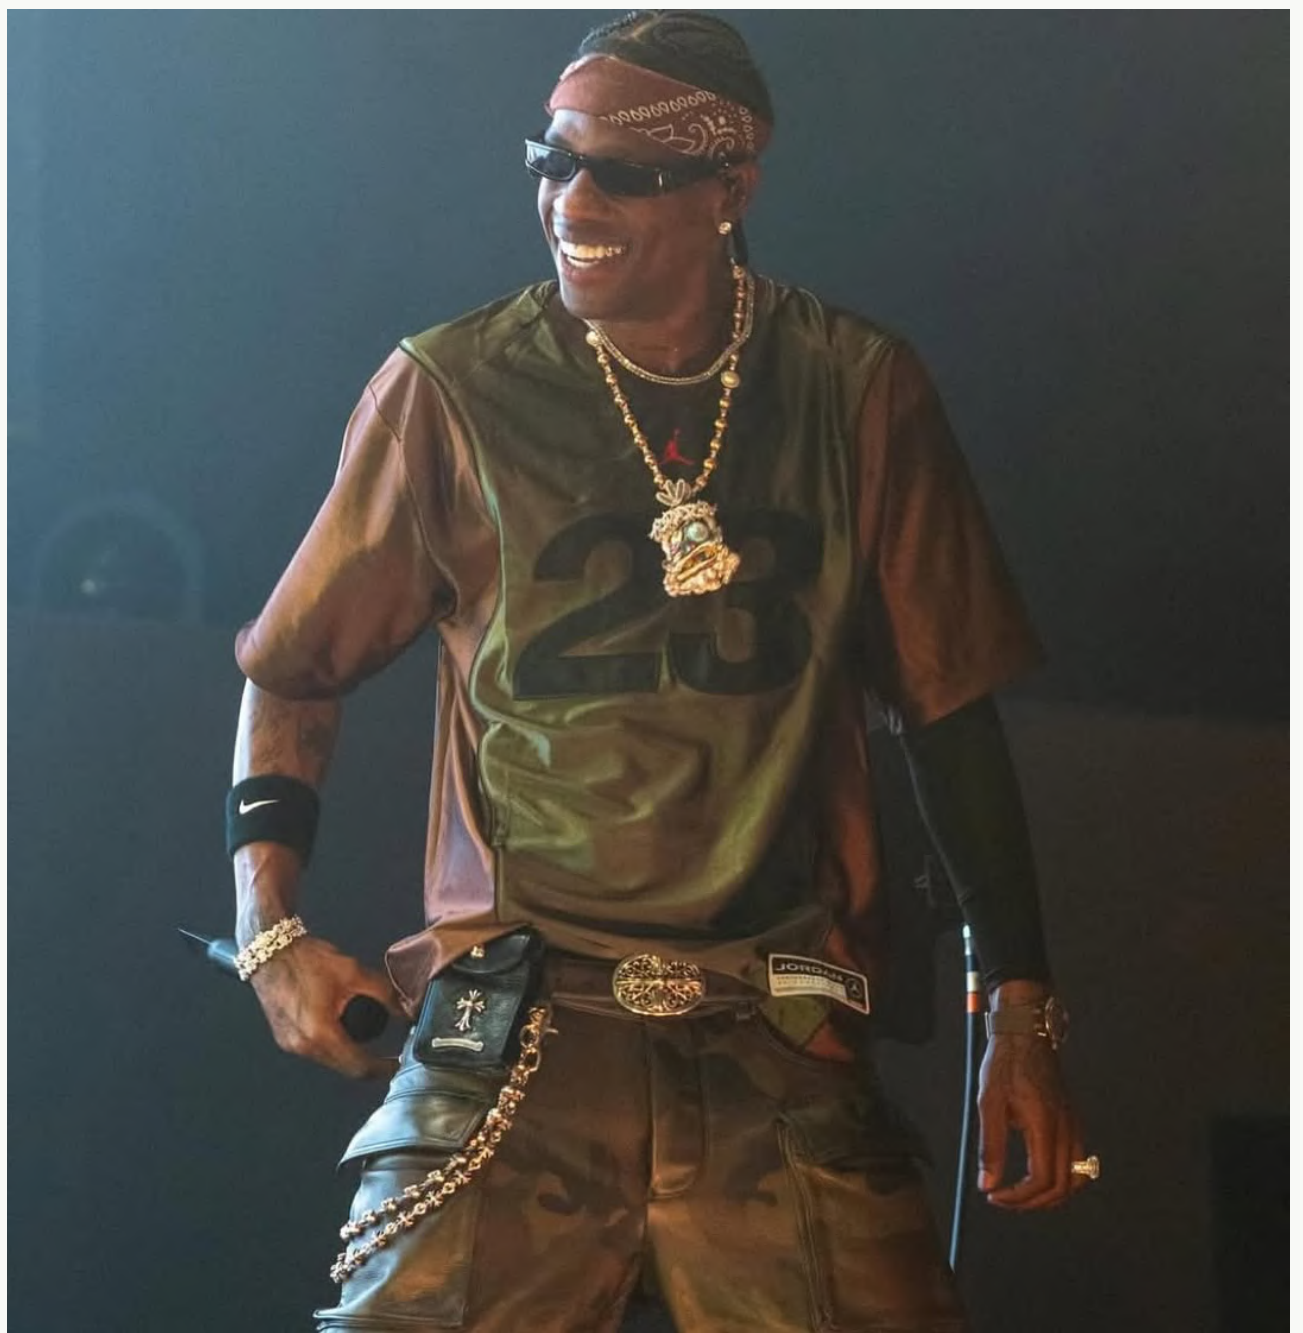

After two consecutive incidents, more celebrities with similar names will likely fall victim to this poor behavior from Kohli fans.

IPL comes with a lot of surprises every year and this is also a part of it.

Travis Scott Prepares to Perform in India as Part of 'Circus Maximus World Tour'

India is currently the World's most populated nation with the highest number of consumers in the global entertainment and music industry. With such a profitable situation, almost every other music artist wants to come and perform live for Indian fans and this time is global hip-hop star Travis Scott. Participating in the booming Indian Live Music Industry, Travis Scott is ready to arrive in India as a part of his 'Circus Maximus World Tour' and due to the astronomical demand for the artist, there will be two shows in India. The rapper has announced the dates for his second concert on April 6 and all the tickets for the show went sold out within three hours of the announcement. The concert is all set to take place at Jawaharlal Nehru Stadium which is situated in Delhi and the dates are decided to be October 18 and October 19.

It goes without saying that the Indian live music industry is growing rapidly and it is showing a projection of Rs 143 billion by 2026. The fans have already witnessed Shawn Mendes, 21 Pilots, and Greenday at the Indian Lollapalooza. And then there was English singer-songwriter Ed Sheeran, everyone's favorite band Coldplay, and many others who came here for their solo tours. Evidently, India has become a central focus for American music artists for live performances and tours since they have the biggest fan base here. And the best part of it is all of their shows are sold out within hours of the announcement.

The platform for online tickets, BookMyShow has recently shared in a statement, "This phenomenal demand is a nod to the passionate Travis Scott fanbase, as it marks a defining moment in India's hip-hop journey, reaffirming the nation's growing presence on the global touring map."

BookMyShow further added, "For India and its live entertainment industry, this moment represents more than just scale — it's a clear reflection of the country's readiness to host the world's biggest artists and an indicator of the growing appetite for diverse, global music experiences.

It underscores the immense potential of the Indian market as a cultural force, powered by an ever-evolving, passionate and genre-fluid fanbase."

Starting from 'Sicko Mode' to 'Goosebumps' to 'Highest In the Room', Travis Scott has offered multiple gold and platinum hits throughout his musical career till now. His fans love him however, a tragic incident of a fan stampede happened in one of his shows and to not let that happen again, he has initiated Project HEAL to address the safety and regulations at concerts.

Miley Cyrus Announces New Single 'End of the World'

Good news for the Miley Cyrus fans. The global pop star has announced another single called 'End Of The World' after previously announcing her new album. Miley Cyrus's new era is here, as the global pop star has announced yet another single!

The Hannah Montana star has previously announced that she will be releasing her highly anticipated new album, Something Beautiful, on May 30, 2025. The album will be released via Columbia Records and Miley Cyrus and Shawn Everett will be the executive producers on the 13-track album.

The star has already revealed the sticking cover art for the album, and earlier this week, she shared the first taste of a bold track 'Prelude'. She then dropped the title track shortly, pouring more curiosity into the fans' minds.

Now, Cyrus has confirmed that she will release 'End Of The World,' the next single, on April 3rd. The 'Flowers' singer introduced the first two singles and visuals, 'Prelude' and 'Something Beautiful,' to her audience, unveiling the start of her new era and upcoming album.

These songs mark the beautiful journey of an exceptionally creative and carefully crafted upcoming album, where each release will follow the sequence of the album and her film. This progression will continue on April 3rd, as Cyrus releases her next single 'End Of The World'.

Miley Cyrus will release a visual film along with her album, releasing in June. The film will be produced by Miley herself, XYZ Films, and PanosCosmatos in collaboration with Sony Music Vision, Columbia Records, and Live Nation. Miley Cyrus will also be taking over the role of the director for this visual film. She is directing this film alongside Jacob Bixenman, and Brendan Walter.

"On April 3, Miley continues the progression of releases with her first single "End of the World" from the new album Something Beautiful. Reinforcing the project's immersive, operatic approach, these songs mark the beginning of a carefully structured journey. Each release following the sequence of the album and the film. "End of the World" will be released on April 3 at 8pm ET / 5pm PT," the message read alongside the preview of the song's official music video, posted on Instagram.

"Let's pretend it's not the end of the world," the artist sings in the song while she lies down in front of a drum kit.

'Prelude,' the first single from this era, finds Cyrus setting up the theme for the upcoming album. The video captured bold shots of an intensifying landscape where shadows danced over flowers.

The pop star lets out her existential thoughts with spoken words. "Like when following an image from a train, your eyes can't keep the passing landscapes from being swallowed into endless distance," she says. "Like when holding a fistful of ashes, your hands can't save the things that have already been dissolved into air."

The video also captures Cyrus wearing the crystal Thierry Mugler headpiece that she also wears on the cover of 'Something Beautiful.' "The beauty one finds alone is a prayer that longs to be shared," the singer tells the viewers as the video proceeds.

Pinkpantheress Shared The Tracklist Of The Mixtape 'Fancy That'

PinkPantheress is coming up with her the mixtape 'Fancy That', which is going to be released on 9th May. The artist has also shared the tracklist of the mixtape.

PinkPantheress is going to drop her upcoming mixtape, 'Fancy That' on 9th May. The artist has recently shared a few details about the release, which is creating a buzz among everyone.

She is about to come up with a mixtape of nine songs, which she has announced recently. And that is making all of her fans even more excited about the release. In addition to that, it is also coming to know that her recent soundtrack 'Tonight' is also going to be featured in the mixtape.

PinkPantheress made her announcement through an Instagram post recently. Now, everyone is eagerly waiting for 9th May, as she is going to release the mixtape on that day. Previously, in April 2024, one of her fans said on X, 'now PinkPantheress has to release Romeo'. Right after that, she replied 'posting da tracklist early just to let you all know that it's track NINE'. In her recent announcement, the artist shared the tracklist of the mixtape. The tracklist is:

Illegal
Girl Like Me
Tonight
Stars
Intermission
Noises
Nice To Know You
Stateside
Romeo

All of her fans are eagerly waiting for the release. And the artist has boosted the sensation even more by releasing 'Tonight' recently. By listening to this track, everyone got a taste of the mixtape. Now, all her audiences get to understand what they are getting with this mixtape. 'Tonight' is a club-focused song, and that is what everyone expects that the rest of the songs will be like this. While talking about this mixtape, the artist said that it is hugely influenced by the music creations of Groove Armada and Fatboy Slim.

She said 'All the music sounds so big and grand and present, and I really wanted to make music where it sounds like a statement is being made with the songs. I feel like that was what appealed to me, and it's something that I wanted to take on board'.

Previously, this artist has also gotten recognition at Billboard Women In Music.

At this ceremony, her journey was discussed, where she said, 'As a woman of color in electronic music, specifically two-step, drum and bass, it's taken a lot for the genre to be recognized on a wider scale'.

Lana Del Rey Drops the First Single 'Henry, Come On' from Upcoming Album

Pop icon Lana Del Rey is best known for her melancholic romantic creations and she is all set to drop her upcoming 10th studio album in May, called "The Right Person Will Stay". Global fans of Lana Del Rey can now enjoy the full version of 'Henry, Come On' with the single released recently.

This single is also teasing her upcoming music project which is going to be her 10th upcoming album. The title of the album is "The Right Person Will Stay" which is scheduled to be released on May 21.

Previously, the 'Summertime Sadness' singer announced this single in January 2024 and a year has passed already. All those hints on Instagram are coming to one place with the artist resharing the album artwork on Thursday. It features a dreamy picture of Lana in a lacy white dress with a clear title "Henry, Come On."

Lana Del Rey has tagged the collaborators for the music project which includes Drew Erickson, Dean Reid, and Luke Laird, along with makeup artist Tyron Machhausen, photographer Neil Krug, and Anna Cofone, the hairstylist.

The 10th studio album, "The Right Person Will Stay" was declared by the singer-songwriter back in November 2024. Lana wrote in an Instagram post, "So grateful that my 13 tracks came together with my beautiful work between Luke, Jack, Zach and Drew Erickson amongst others. Happy for you to hear a few songs coming up before Stagecoach starting with Henry. Love Always."

She is all prepared to perform at Stagecoach on April 25 and the fans are eagerly waiting to see the singer performing live. Then she will start her summer days in various places in Ireland and the United Kingdom.

Previously, fans thought the artist would release her upcoming country album 'Lasso' but it seems like Lana has shifted from that project. Previously in a statement, the singer said to Vogue Italia, "originally, me and the label were excited because the energy of the music of the album was meant to reflect my new life. Now, I'm not so sure, but I'm usually pretty good with my own timing. I might turn it into something more 'Southern gothic,' like it was meant to be from the start, and less country." Perhaps, 'Lasso' is originally a part of "The Right Person Will Stay" only. All the mysteries will be revealed with the grand release of the album on May 21st. Get ready LDR fans!

Morgan Wallen Teams Up With Post Malone For New Single 'I Ain't Comin' Back'

Morgan Wallen and Post Malone are coming with 'I Ain't Comin' Back' this Friday. Both are working on new albums, with Post linking up in Nashville with ERNEST and HARDY. If their last collab did not hit hard enough, Morgan Wallen and Post Malone are giving it another shot with a new duet called 'I Ain't Comin' Back', dropping this Friday.

Morgan Wallen and Post Malone just announced on Instagram that they have got a new song coming out this Friday called 'I Ain't Comin' Back'.

It is their second time teaming up, following the huge success of their first collab, 'I Had Some Help'. Their previous collaboration dropped last May, and the track was released ahead of Post Malone's country-inspired album F-1 Trillion. It went out to become a major hit in both the country and pop worlds. 'I Had Some Help' did not just make waves; it smashed records. When it came out, it broke Spotify's single-day streaming record for a country song and went straight to No. 1 on the Billboard Hot 100.

It also topped Billboard's 20 Songs of the Summer chart, showcasing just how big of a moment it was for both artists. The track's mix of Malone's smooth vocals and Wallen's country charm clearly struck a chord with fans.

Now, with 'I Ain't Comin' Back' on the way, fans are excited to see if lightning will strike twice. Judging by the hype already building online, this next release might be just as massive

Morgan Wallen's new song with Post Malone is dropping just as he gets ready to release his next album. His upcoming album is titled I'm the Problem, coming out on May 16. The album will include songs fans have already heard, like 'Lies Lies Lies', 'Just in Case', and 'Love Somebody', along with a bunch of new tracks. Wallen also teased that one of the songs will be a duet with a female artist, but he is keeping her identity a secret for now.

On the other side, Post Malone has been staying busy, too. While getting ready for his Coachella performance, he told Billboard that he was working on a new project of his own.

He has already made two trips to Nashville to work on it and says he has recorded around 35 songs so far. Malone also joked that now it is just about picking the best ones, saying it is all about figuring out "which ones rock, and which ones sock."

He also mentioned that during his trips to Nashville, he has been spending time with writers and artists like ERNEST, HARDY, and a few others. He said, "We just have fun. We just sit and f—ing talk and make songs. And so I'm pretty excited for the new record already."

4. 'Ordinary' by Alex Warren:

Alex Warren delivered an outstanding song named 'Ordinary' that has gained much appreciation from all. The soul-touching deliverance gained much attention from all music listeners.

3. 'Nokia' by Drake:

Drake is influencing audiences at a rapid scale with his latest soundtrack 'Nokia'. This profound track is leading him to showcase his talent even more.

2. 'Die With A Smile' by Lady Gaga & Bruno Mars:

'Die With A Smile' by Lady Gaga & Bruno Mars is an exceptionally crafted soundtrack. It is the heart-wrenching lyricism, music, and vocal prowess that enhanced the song.

1. 'Luther' by Kendrick Lamar & SZA:

'Luther' by Kendrick Lamar & SZA is gaining huge recognition from all. Lamar has captivated the audience with his melodic voice and flawless delivery. The catchy beat of the track hooked listeners instantly. It is his exceptional deliverance that made this music creation quite amusing. The profound blend of beats and tunes made the track exceptional. Lamar has collaborated with SZA for this track who is renowned for her soulful deliverances. As the singer starts singing, it adds a whole new flavor, which makes the track brilliant. Along with the brilliant composition, it is Lamar's diversity that has churned the song even more. For that reason, Lamar has had a great influence on all music fans.

The video for 'Luther' is finally here. Kendrick Lamar and SZA have dropped their newest music video, 'Luther' and it is bringing in all the feels for the romantics.

Kendrick Lamar surprised fans with a random Friday drop as he released the music video for 'Luther'. Teaming up with SZA, the video blends smooth vibes, romance, and rhythm into a chill visual treat.

Around noon on Friday, April 11, Kendrick Lamar dropped the 'Luther' video out of nowhere with a simple tweet - just the song title and a link to the video. No hype, no countdown, just straight vibes.

The visual of the video brings major nostalgic energy, featuring the smooth sounds of Luther Vandross and Cheryl Lynn's classic "If This World Were Mine."

Kendrick and SZA, the longtime collab legends, are seen vibing with their onscreen lovers. They have created a soft, romantic mood with the video that hits deep.

The sparks between them feel real, and the cozy aesthetic gives the whole thing a timeless feel. It is lowkey the kind of video that makes you believe in love again - or at least makes you text your situationship!

The 'Luther' music video runs for five minutes and feels like a full-on visual experience. It brings everyday spaces and sleek architecture to life with bold colors and dramatic black-and-white shots that create a nostalgic yet fresh vibe. SZA moves through an ivory-toned hallway to meet her man, dripping confidence as she struts across a concrete rooftop.

She sings, "I might even settle down for you..." Her voice blends perfectly with the throwback feel of Luther Vandross' "If This World Were Mine," which plays softly as she enters an elevator. At the same time, Kendrick Lamar steps into his scene with smooth energy.

He dances in front of his classic GNX, wrapped in a red cloth, and casually throws dice in a moody bedroom setup.

The visuals feel soft yet powerful, romantic yet grounded. The chemistry between the scenes, the vibe of the music, and the overall aesthetic make this more than just a video - it is a cinematic moment that hits both the heart and the playlist.

Directed by Karena Evans, the video tells a love story from two angles: Kendrick vibing with his girl and SZA sharing sweet moments with her man. The visuals are all about connection, intimacy, and real chemistry. This matched perfectly with the song's empowering lyrics. As the scenes play out, Kendrick drops some powerful lines that hit both emotionally and spiritually.

K-dot sings, "If this world was mine, I'd take your dreams and make 'em multiply... I'd take your enemies in front of God, introduce 'em to that light, hit them strictly with that fire." The passion in his delivery adds even more heat to the visuals, making this a love anthem that feels deep, bold, and straight from the soul.

Kendrick and SZA are expected to perform 'Luther' on their upcoming Grand National Tour, which kicks off on April 19 in Minneapolis. The tour will run through the U.S. and Europe, wrapping up on August 9 in Sweden.

Are you ready for a sensational Bollywood dance number? RAID 2 Song 'Nasha' will get you hooked with Tamannaah Bhatia's stunning performance and an upbeat soundscape.

Bollywood is best known for its sizzling tracks, sets, and dance performances. Offering a complete package with high-octane energy, the upcoming movie RAID 2 has dropped a new track called under the label of T-series music.

The song is well crafted with a powerful musical arrangement and intoxicating lyrics which mainly make references to getting drunk on love.

The upbeat music and the well-incorporated lyrics offered the perfect dance floor for Tamannaah Bhatia to showcase her sizzling dance moves. With grace and glamour and an ample dose of seductiveness, this banger is currently buzzing among all the Bollywood fans.

RAID 2 is one of the highly awaited films of Bollywood in 2025 featuring Ajay Devgn as the IRS officer Amay Patnaik, the central character of the film.

The buzz is high as he will be facing off against Riteish Deshmukh who will be playing the character of Dada Bhai, the antagonist political character in the movie. The sequel is quite heated and the temperature is rising with the release of the music video for 'Nasha'.

The lyric for the song is written by Jaani and the music is handled by White Noise Collectives. The song is performed by Jasmine Sandlas, Sachet Tandon, Divya Kumar, and Sumontho Mukherjee. It offers a hooky melody that can captivate everyone.

While Tamannaah performs for this track, she brings back the energy from the past by performing the hook step from 'Aaj Ki Raat' to keep the sensation high.

It is safe to say that the song perfectly teases the movie in a way that increases the anticipation. In recent years, Tamannaah has performed in multiple dance numbers in Bollywood, and sure each track becomes a hit in the market.

RAID 2 was directed by Raj Kumar Gupta and produced by Bhushan Kumar as well as Krishan Kumar.

The movie is all set to release on 1st May 2025 which is mainly based on the themes of systemic corruption as the power of investigating among the Indian officers.

The cast will also include Vaani Kapoor who will be the key supporting character in the movie. The story shows the naked truth of the white-collared criminals.

Doechii drops her intense 'Anxiety' music video, blending chaos and tribute to Gotye.

This follows her Grammy win and rising success with Alligator Bites Never Heal. Doechii has just released the music video for 'Anxiety', and it feels like a dream-turned nightmare.

The 'Anxiety' music video was dropped on April 18 and starts off calm and familiar. Doechii is seen working on music in her room, a nod to her old 2019 Coven Music Sessions where the song began.

But things quickly take a wild turn when a S.W.A.T. team suddenly crashes through her windows. From there, everything spirals into chaos.

She dodges creepy intruders, trying to put out a fire in her kitchen, and finally runs outside, only to dance in the middle of the street as a crowd of neighbors slowly surrounds her.

The video turns her anxiety into a full-blown nightmare. Seems like she just cannot catch a break! "Anxiety, keep on trying me/ Feel it quietly, tryna silence me, yeah," the musician sings in the song's hook. "Anxiety, shake it off of me/ Somebody's watching me."

Doechii first shared 'Anxiety' in a YouTube video back in 2019. The song uses a big sample from Gotye's 2011 hit 'Somebody That

I Used to Know'. However, it was not available on streaming platforms for a long time. Fans had to wait until March 2025, when she finally dropped the official version.

Once it was released, the track quickly took off and made it to No. 10 on the Billboard Hot 100 chart. That moment was huge for Doechii - it became her very first song to break into the top 10, marking a major milestone in her music career. In the video for the Swamp Princess, directed by James Mackel, there is a clear tribute to Gotye. At one point, Doechii looks over and sees a man and woman covered in geometric body paint, blending into a wall in the house.

This moment is a direct nod to Gotye's famous 'Somebody That I Used to Know' music video, which features a very similar visual style. It is a creative way for Doechii to honor the original song she sampled, while also adding her own unique twist to it. The scene ties her version of 'Anxiety' back to its musical roots.

The 'Anxiety' music video comes eight months after Doechii dropped her game-changing mixtape Alligator Bites Never Heal. The project quickly climbed to No. 12 on the Billboard 200 and made her only the third woman ever to win Best Rap Album at the Grammys. Since that big win in 2025, things have taken off for her.

In March, she was named Woman of the Year at the Billboard Women in Music Awards. That same Grammy night, she also released a new single called 'Nosebleeds'. On top of that, she teamed up with BLACKPINK's JENNIE for the track 'ExtraL'. It has been a wild and exciting ride for Doechii, and she is showing no signs of slowing down. Fans are excited to see what comes next from the Swamp Princess!

‘Worst of Me’, the second song of the album ‘I Forgive You’ by Cynthia Erivo has been released.

The soundtrack has attracted many audiences in a brief time. Cynthia Erivo dropped her latest soundtrack, named ‘Worst of Me’.

It is the second song from her upcoming album ‘I Forgive You’. The album is going to be released on the 6th of June. It is available for pre-save for all of her fans. As the artist dropped the song on 11th April, it generated a buzz among everyone. Cynthia has come up with a magnificent track that is making a deep impact on the audiences.

Recently, Cynthia announced her upcoming album. And then she said ‘Over the last 2+ years, between all the flights, the filming, the interviews, and the awards shows, I went to the studio with my dear friend Will Wells and created this project for you and me’.

In addition to that she also said ‘This album, this collection of songs, is something I’m so proud to share with you’.

‘Worst of Me’ is a soundtrack where she has shown her caliber in a unique way of crafting a song. Along with that, her powerful deliverance has made the track even more amusing for her listeners. As she sang ‘You could cut me deeper than the ocean, but I refuse to drown. I’m coming up. I wanna breathe again. I gave you my all, but you took the worst of me’, it made a deep impact on the audiences.

The guitar tune has added a whole new charm to the track, which is even an amusing initiative. Right after its release, this song captured the attention of the audience.

It is seen that 73% of audiences have voted for this track. And that has made it the favorite song of the week on Billboard.

This song is from her sophomore album and she went all out for this particular music creation.

With this album, Cynthia has come up with songs that talk about romance, heartbreak, forgiveness, love, and even new beginnings. And that has made this music creation even unique in every aspect.

It is now coming to know that the artist is willing to offer a total of 20 tracks in this album. Therefore, listeners are going to witness a wide range of music. ‘Worst of Me’ has already gotten much recognition from the audiences and now everyone is waiting for the album to be released.

Tate McRae is winning the hearts of all music listeners with the banger 'Sports car'. Her exceptional music video is generating a sensation among all.

Tate McRae has dropped the music video of her song 'Sports car' from her third studio album 'SO CLOSE TO WHAT'. The music video truly stands out as the artist has given a sensational music video. This video is bringing the dirty pop vibes that take everyone to the 2000 pop culture era. The fresh and catchy representation is garnering much attention from all music enthusiasts. It can be said that the latest number is a pulsing track that is accumulating much attention from all. Tate has offered an outstanding lyric that has grabbed the attention of audiences in no time.

In this song, the singer said 'Hey, cute jeans / Take mine off me / Oh, golly gee / I can't take no more, I'm goin' weak in my knees / Where'd you put those keys?'. It is the sultry vibe that has churned out the mesmerizing element of the soundtrack even more. Along with that, the pre-chorus is also quite bold which increases the anticipation even more. The track starts with a catchy chorus and that hooks listeners immediately. This track has a classy yet playful tease, which is quite amusing.

The lineup brings together international and local music, creating a smooth and exciting mix of different sounds for everyone.

Dates and venue: What is even more exciting about this summer fest is that it is not going to take place in Goa, the usual spot for the Sunburn Festival. Instead, this Summer Fest will be hosted in Shillong and Bengaluru.

Shillong - May 10

Bengaluru - May 11

Starting time - 3 PM

Run Time - 7 Hours

Entrancing experiences: Sunburn offers more than just music, with a range of exciting experiences, including -

Creative Art Displays - The festival will feature unique and interactive art installations that enhance the artistic vibe and engage festival-goers.

Tasty Eats and Drinks: A variety of food stalls and bars will be available, offering a wide range of options to satisfy all tastes.

Thrilling Adventures: Attendees can enjoy exciting activities like bungee jumping, zip-lining, and beach sports, adding a fun adventure element to the festival experience. With something for everyone, Sunburn offers more than just music, it will be an all-around exciting event.

Festival grounds: The summer fest is truly going to be a one-of-a-kind adventure where the venue will ensure concert goers are getting the full experience.

While the EDM fans enjoy the music, the festival area will be decorated with fun summer themes. There will be tall palm trees, bright tropical flowers, and colorful light displays that move with the beat. As the sun sets, the space will again turn into a glowing wonderland. Huge LED screens, cool projections, and holograms will light up the night. It is more than just a concert - it will be a magical and multi-sensory journey that brings the music to life in a whole new way.

Sunburn After-Parties: The fun continues long after the festival ends. Sunburn's famous after-parties are perfect for anyone who wants to keep the energy going into the early morning hours.

Spectacular Visuals and Fireworks: Sunburn is known for its incredible fireworks, laser shows, and amazing visual effects that make the concert experience even more unforgettable. These jaw-dropping displays add an exciting layer to the whole event. In its summer fest this year, Sunburn is bringing a lineup of world-famous DJs. They will play some of their best tracks and get the crowd excited with amazing, otherworldly music.
