DRAKE ADMITS TO LOSING $8 MILLION IN SPORTS BETS AFTER WAGERING $750K ON RCB

Drake says he lost $8M in bets last month after placing nearly $ 125 M. From a $750K IPL wager to blaming Bieber, it seems the 'Drake curse' is hitting back hard.

Drake is known for more than just music. The Canadian rapper has made headlines for his high-stakes sporting betting, often attending major events from the NBA to Cricket. His bets have even sparked talk of a "Drake curse", as teams he supports often loose. But recently, he opened up about the dark side of this habit of his. The 'God's Plan' rapper revealed that he lost around $8 million in just one month.

He did not name the exact games, but the incident occurred during the NBA and NHL playoff seasons. One of his most talked-about bets was on Royal Challengers Bangalore during the IPL 2025 final. The team shocked fans by winning the championship after 18 long years.

While that bet paid off, it was just one in a series of risky moves. Drake's story is a reminder that even celebrities with deep pockets can feel the sting of a big loss. On June 18, the Canadian rapper took to Instagram to reveal the harsh side of his gambling streak. He shared a screenshot of his latest financial losses with the caption, "Gotta share the other side of gambling... Losses are so fried right now.". According to reports, the rapper has placed nearly $125 million in bets over the past month.

One of those was a jaw-dropping $50 million wager just last week. This led to a $5 million loss. He added, "I hope I can post a big win for you all soon, cause I'm the only one that has never seen a max these guys max once a week." Drake had earlier bet $750,000 on Royal Challengers Bengaluru in a match against Punjab Kings. They won, but it did not balance his losses.

Just afew months back, he put $1.25 million on the Toronto Maple Leafs during the NHL playoffs. The team lost badly - and so did the rapper.

Fans joke that Drake's famous curse has now turned against him. The Toronto rapper embraced the notion, even admitting his flaws as a sports bettor. In a recent promo video for Stake, his current one-year betting partner, he humorously acknowledged that he is not the sharpest when it comes to wagering.

He said in the video, "I will not deny that. That's not my gift. I'll let everybody roll with it. I'm sure if you're a Drake curse believer, there will be plenty more content in the future to confirm your theories because my slips do not cash out. But one day I'm gonna have a parlay that's insane."

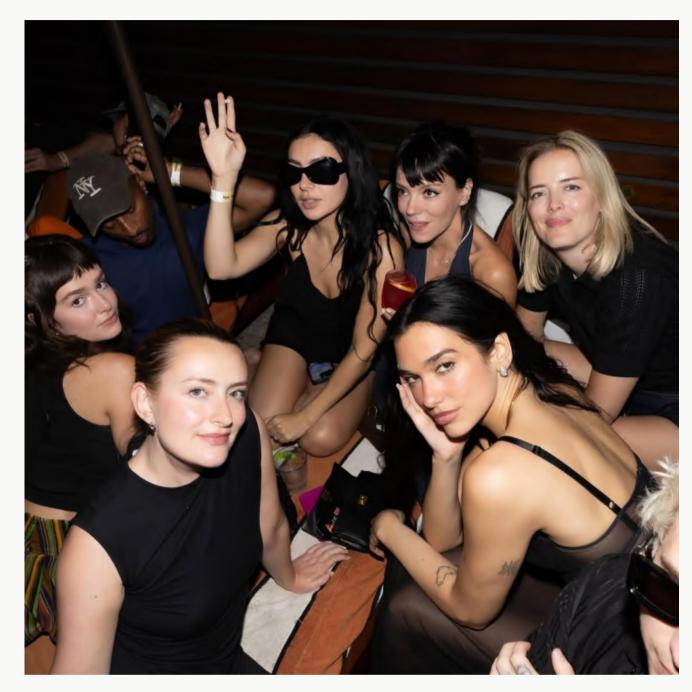

Last month, Drake surprised fans by blaming Justin Bieber for one of his failed bets. He had placed a $1 million bet on the Maple Leafs, and Bieber showed up at the game. The team lost. Drake posted "Bieber Curse" in a story, blaming him for bringing bad luck and losing the game. But despite this, Drake admits he is not the "gambling King".

He openly admits that Michael Jackson beats everyone, calling him the "real-life gambling GOAT (greatest of all time), saying that he has an ability to "gamble on anything". Drake also said MJ once would not stop betting on him during a ping-pong match; "$10,000, $20,000, again and again."

Meanwhile, Drake's confession about his massive gambling losses did not sit well with everyone. Some netizens criticized him for recklessly throwing away millions while many are struggling to get by.

The backlash was sharp, with one user mocking him as a "Certified Loser Boy." Others went further, calling him a gambling addict and questioning his choices. While fans often joke about his betting habits, this time, the reaction was more serious. Many fans called him out for the disconnect from reality.

excited to see everybody starting tomorrow on tour and for all the folks joining us. Truly thank you thank you love you," the singer concluded the Instagram post. This featured a picture of the singer holding two big birthday cakes, and she was seen in a matching camo set.In the post, Lana Del Rey stands beside her husband, Jeremy Dufrene. They both were wearing matching camo shirts and shorts. The couple tied the knot in September 2024, just weeks after making their relationship public. The singer with her alligator tour guide husband first appeared together at model Karen Elson's wedding to Lee Foster, the owner of Electric Lady Studios. This marked the start of the couple's love story in the spotlight.

The singer is hitting the stage for a short run of summer shows across the U.K. She will perform in cities like Cardiff, Glasgow, Liverpool, Dublin, and London between late June and early July. After wrapping up the U.K. dates, the 'West Coast' singer will return to the U.S. for a special performance in Saint Charles, Missouri, set for August 3. Fans are excited to receive an unforgettable set from Del Rey. The Grammy-nominated artist released 'Bluebird' and 'Henry, Come On', two brand new country-inspired songs this April. According to reports, the singer also has an album in the works. First called 'Lasso', the album was then renamed to 'The Right Person Will Stay'. The project was set for a May release but got pushed back to a later date. "I'm really happy for this album to be moving along. I do have a lot more to say [about] that ... I mean, you do know it's not going to come on time right? Like... should I even tell you that the name changed again?" the singer said in a now-deleted Instagram Reel in April. "Should I tell you that now, while you're so happy you even have a song? Yeah... maybe I'll wait."

Last October, Lana Del Rey had an interview with PEOPLE and Entertainment Weekly where she talked about taking her time with the album. "I think all the songs have been Americana, and I want to wait to see what the musical atmosphere feels like," the singer said. "'Cause I don't usually feel like I need a pause in the creation process, but if there's a literal energetic pause that almost feels, like, physical, then I have to wait, and I don't know why."

Find Out What Lorde Said about Her Latest Album 'Virgin'

Lorde dropped her fourth studio album 'Virgin' on June 27 and it is currently creating a major buzz among the fans. The album consists of a sum of 11 tracks and the singer has shared a lot about it in a recent conversation with Apple Music's Zane Lowe. Starting from reassessing her career to feeling like a teenager again, Lorde is unveiling a new chapter in her life and this latest album can be considered as an embodiment of her vision.

When they talked about the recent single 'Hammer', Lorde explained how things are kept raw and pure for the purpose. She added, "That first sound in "Hammer" feels like it's coming from a very guttural place in a body. My sister said, "It sounds like it's coming from your womb." Perhaps is also related to a medical situation as she said, "I had just come off my birth control and I could not believe how I was feeling. There was just this, everything was pure kind of possibility. I just felt like tapped into this kind of source of energy that was crazy." The song was written back in 2023 and it was prepared by the spring of 2024.

Zane expressed it sounded like a "distorted human voice searching for breath" and Lorde agreed to that. The singer added, "Totally. Yeah, yeah, exactly. And I really thought of all the kind of... The palette of the album is actually quite simple. We use a lot of the same stuff over and over."

Lorde also shared her experience with Jack Harlow when he was working in the studio for 'Electric Lady' and she ended up making him listen to her album. She said, "He's such a sweetheart" and further added how Harlow appreciated her lyricism or in the rappers' words

'Bars'. There is a song titled "Favorite Daughter" in the album which the singer has dedicated to her mother. She said to Apple Music, "that song is about my relationship with my mom, who is the reason that I do everything that I do, she is the blueprint for me."

Lorde has also gone through a fair share of turmoil in her life the release of 'Solar Power' was not enough to change that. However, she fought back for her authentic self and made herself believe, "Make it real big, because you're going to grow."

Second Choice Delivers a Chilling Masterpiece, 'The haunting'

Some songs do not just play; they wrap around you like a feeling that you have forgotten. They carry emotion and memories across time and space, reminding you of what you have loved and lost. 'The haunting', the newest release from Second Choice, taps into that power. With vocals and lyrics by Dimi de San, the song feels like a shared secret whispered through the dark. The track opens with slow rhythms, almost like a shadow creeping in. The atmospheric guitar synths lead the way, making the composition feel like something that you will remember long after the first listen.

Second Choice began as a solo project with ideas that did not fit into the metal band that the artist was a part of at that time. Over the years, the project became something more. It slowly became a place for exploring sound and music in a way that nobody had experimented with before. In an industry where success almost comes in a formula, the artist dared to do something else and break free. This is what is heavily reflected in this newest release, which steps into a more emotional, sentimental, and cinematic side of music. The song is supported by minimal yet powerful textures throughout its entire run. The artists have induced no rush for the listeners, leaving them to enjoy the composition at their own pace.

What makes 'The haunting' so beautiful and stands out from other songs in his discography is that every note in the song matters, and every pause lingers with the listeners. This prompts them to return to the composition time and time again. Vocals on the track are given by Dimi de San, and they float in like a memory in the arrangement. With vocals so soft and full of feeling, the artist brings the lyrics to life in a magical, ghostly way. Apart from the enchanting composition and dreamy vocals, the star of the song is truly the verses. The opening line, "The tide rolls in like a whispered sin, / A funeral hymn in the undertow," is something that stands true to the title of the song. When listeners hear the words, they feel them. The sea becomes the metaphor for both desire and grief - reminding the audience of things they wish but cannot forget. When it comes to the production of the entire song, listeners will find depth in the mix. Ambient layers are drifting like a fog, and guitars add in that shimmer that keeps everything together.

'The haunting' is just the next step in a long journey for Second Choice. From playing guitar in the early '90s to building this everevolving project, his sound has turned into something mature, something deeply personal. You can listen to the latest track on Spotify along with some of his previous songs like 'Warlord', 'Man of shadows', 'Lullaby', 'Never enough', etc.

Ariana Grande, Sabrina Carpenter, and Pedro Pascal Support LGBTQ+ Suicide Prevention Funding with Over 100 Stars

The letter follows a leaked draft from the US Department of Health and Human Services proposing a $50 million cut to LGBTQ+ youth suicide prevention funding. Ariana Grande, Sabrina Carpenter, Pedro Pascal, and more than 100 other stars have signed an open letter urging the U.S. government to protect federal funding for LGBTQ+ youth suicide prevention. The letter responds to a leaked draft from the Department of Health and Human Services, which proposes cutting $50 million from the 988 crisis support program in 2026. This program gives emergency help to LGBTO+ youth in crisis. Supporters say these cuts could harm many young lives and are calling for continued investment in mental health support across the nation.

After the leak, the Trevor Project launched an open letter to protect the 988 program and other federal funding for LGBTQ+ youth suicide prevention. The letter has gained support from many stars, including Ariana Grande, Sabrina Carpenter, Pedro Pascal, DuaLipa, Troye Sivan, Cara Delevingne, Christina Aguilera, Daniel Radcliffe, Dasha, Ethel Cain, Eugene Lee Yang, Fletcher, Jamie Lee Curtis, Josh Hutcherson, King Princess, Margaret Cho, MØ, Noah Cyrus, Oliver Sim, Orville Peck, Paris Hilton, Sarah Paulson, SG Lewis, Tove Lo, Alan Cumming, and others. The campaign calls for action to support vulnerable LGBTQ+ youth.

The Trevor Project says the 988 program has helped nearly 1.3 million LGBTQ+ youth in crisis since it launched in 2022. It offers life-saving support during their hardest moments. The group also estimates that over 1.8 million LGBTQ+ young people in the U.S. think about suicide each year, and one attempts it every 45 seconds. These numbers show how vital the program is for those in need.

The Trevor Project says, "At a time of deep division, let this be something we as people can all agree on: no young person should be left without help in their darkest moment. Stripping away this lifeline leaves LGBTO+ youth with the message that their lives are not worth saving. We refuse to accept that message." "To every LGBTQ+ young person reading this: you are not alone. We see you. We value you. You have the right to feel safe, supported, and loved exactly as you are. You deserve access to life-saving services that honor your humanity. You may be hurting. You may be scared. You may feel like no one hears you — but we do. We will keep showing up and speaking out. We will not stop fighting for you." Earlier this year, the LGBTQ+ community in the U.S. faced a major blow when President Donald Trump signed an executive order stating that the government would only recognize two genders: male and female.

BONNAROO 2025 CANCELED AS SEVERE WEATHER HITS: "WE ARE BEYOND GUTTED"

Bonnaroo 2025 was canceled due to storms, and organizers are heartbroken.

Refunds are planned, as fans saw only Thursday's acts before the event was cut short. On Friday, June 13, the 2025 Bonnaroo Music and Arts Festival was canceled after severe weather forced an evacuation earlier in the day. The festival is held in Manchester, Tennessee.

The authorities shared the update on social media around 7:30 p.m. local time. Organizers said heavy thunderstorms and an updated forecast showed unsafe conditions for on-site campers. The decision came as storms continued to hit the area, making it impossible to continue the event safely for all attendees.

"Today, the National Weather Service provided us with an updated forecast with significant and steady precipitation that will produce deteriorating camping and egress conditions in the coming days," the message reads. "We are beyond gutted, but we must make the safest decision and cancel the remainder of Bonnaroo. We are going to make things right with you, and you will find refund information at the end of this message, but let's start with the next steps."

The message urged campers with stable sites or those safe inside

RVs to stay overnight if possible.

This would help make room for evacuating festivalgoers facing tougher conditions. Organizers wanted to ensure that people in the most difficult spots could leave safely first as the severe weather continued to impact the festival grounds. "The number one thing we need from the Bonnaroo community is patience," the statement reads. "Some of your fellow campers' sites are in rough shape.

The rain has settled in areas and made certain parts of Outeroo difficult to manage. We'd like to prioritize getting those folks as well as those with accessibility needs off The Farm as soon as possible this evening.

To do this, we ask that if your campsite is in good shape or if you're in an RV or pre-pitched accommodation, please consider spending the night with us and we'll start working to get you out of here safely tomorrow."

The festival ended its message by saying how "crushed" the organizers feel about having to make this choice. "We have put our hearts and souls into making this weekend the most special one of the year, and cannot express how crushed we are to have to make this decision. Thank you in advance for your patience, your positivity and your unfailing Bonnaroovian spirit."

The post ends with refund details as promised. It explains which tickets and parking passes will get a full refund.

It also shares what will be partly refunded since day one went as planned on Thursday.

Organizers wanted to make sure fans knew what to expect after the event was cut short by the bad weather.

Bonnaroo started Thursday with shows by Luke Combs, Dom Dolla, Insane Clown Posse, and Rebecca Black. Friday night was set to feature Tyler, The Creator, John Summit, and Glass Animals. Saturday's main acts were Olivia Rodrigo, Avril Lavigne, and Justice.

The festival planned to close on Sunday with Hozier, Vampire Weekend, and Queens of the Stone Age.

"I think that people are probably used to and also expect a singer to be able to perform well. And I don't blame anyone for thinking that. I'm not the best performer. Again, it's one of those things where I'm like 'I'm going to get better.'"

"But the thing is, no amount of rehearsals can make a difference when you're in front of like 10,000, 50,000, 100,000. No amount of rehearsal you can do, and as somebody that has got very bad stage fright... I think one ofthe things people say is like, 'Oh, I think her performances are a hindrance to her career.'

Olivia Rodrigo Offered an Explosive Force at Governors Ball 2025

It seems like Olivia Rodrigo is bringing back the era of pop-rock with her latest powerful performance at the Governors Ball 2025 in NYC. Her performance defied heavy rain. The events NYC Festival of Governors Ball 2025 showed an amazing side of pop star Olivia Rodrigo who showed that she can be a rockstar too, if needed. Headlining the show, she offered an explosive creative force to the audiences with a set that lasted for an hour and a half. While music artists prefer to take a rest after an album tour, Olivia seems to be not stopping after her 'GUTS' tour. She also took the stage at Lollapalooza Chilé before and the artist has booked a total of 18 headlining performances for this year. This young powerhouse music artist is a complete creative beast when it comes to live performances and she has proved that again at the Governors Ball which happened on the weekend of June 7th. Although the weekend in NYC witnessed a heavy downpour, the festival doors finally opened at 4:30 p.m. and many -sets were cut after, shortened, or pushed to the edge. Olivia Rodrigo's set was pushed from 8:30 p.m. to 9:25 p.m. but that did not stop the artist from performing a hefty set full of energy. She came up on stage in a sparkly red two-piece and was ready to set the stage ablaze. Sometimes she was singing, sometimes dancing, playing guitar, or the piano, jumping around; she was literally all over the stage at the moment of the night when audiences couldn't expect any more.

There were many special movements in Olivia's set and one of the best was when she introduced David Bryne, the rock legend with a duet performance of "Burning Down the House" by Talking Heads.

She also gave a shout-out to her fellow artist and friend Conan Gray saying, "I love him so much, he's my best friend," and then she performed the track "enough for you" which is probably one of her favorite tracks. It has also become a GUTS tour tradition where all the fans Rodrigo make primal screams to match the energy of the track and that tradition followed at the NYC festival as well. Rodrigo said, "When I tell you 'go,' I want you to scream as loud as you can and let it all out. Okay? I want them to hear us in f-ing Manhattan."

The artist has also addressed geopolitics with a subtle reference "There is so much s—t to be pissed off about in the world today," and it is true. In a nutshell, Olivia Rodrigo is being a role-model with her poprock prowess.

'No Me Quierolr de Aquí': The Residency Concert of Bad Bunny is going to Generate $200 million for Puerto Rico

The Puerto Rican singer, Bad Bunny is all ready for his 'No Me QuieroIr de Aquí' residency.

The music concert residency is going to start from 11th July and continue till 14th September.

Bad Bunny is coming up with a huge initiative and his manager, Noah Assad has said a few things about it.

Noah has been the manager of the Puerto Rican singer for almost a decade.

That is why, he has been an integral part of the artist's career.

He has said that right now there are 30-date residencies in Puerto Rico, which requires a lot of work.

Noah Assad said 'We're going to need to open up some more seats. Right now, even if my cousin called me and asked me for a ticket, there's nothing left. We even considered opening seats in restricted viewing areas to get more people inside because that's how badly people want in'.

As of now, it is coming to know that various reggaeton artists have been included in the line-up. It is going to be a massive concert that no one has ever witnessed.

The first nine days of the residency concert are mainly for the locals from the island.

To get the ticket for those particular shows, residents had to give their identity proof. Within a brief time, a total of 125,000 tickets have been sold.

From this, it can be understood how eagerly everyone was waiting for the concert. Bad Bunny is one of the most loved artists in Puerto Rico.

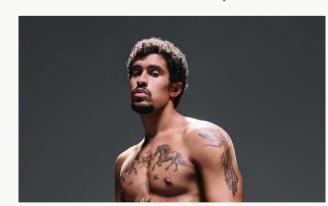

So, when he took the initiative to do something like this, no one couldn't resist it.

Noah has said that apart from the first nine shows, there are twenty-one more. All of them are open to anyone from any part of the world.

People who can come to the Caribbean island will get the opportunity to witness the performance of Bad Bunny. Right now, more than 400,000 people have already got their tickets. And it is quite surprising that people from countries like South Korea, Italy, Netherlands, Germany, France, and more are going to show up for the residency concert.

On the other hand, more than 700,000 people have registered themselves for the general presale code.

However, they can only have accommodation for 100,000 people. This 'No Me QuieroIr de Aquí' residency concert has become immensely huge and it can be said that it will give more than $200 million in business to the hotels, restaurants, and other tourist attractions in the country.

It goes without saying that the artist did not disappoint her fans but rather offered them a new thrill with authentic pop flavors.

The song is produced by Anderson .Paak and he was live performing at the drums. Paak is perhaps the most talented music artists from the industry. Carey even brought Rakim on the stage which was even more exciting for the fans.

The track is sampled with "Eric B. Is President," which is a classic hit by Eric B. and Rakim and it was their debut as well.

The performances continued and ended with Carey's 2005 hit "It's Like That" while it rained golden confetti all over the stage.

Kelly Clarkson Reveals She Wrote 'Underneath the Tree' the Fastest

One person waited a lifetime to ask Kelly Clarkson which song she wrote the fastest in her 23-year career, and she revealed. In an "Ask Kelly Anything" video posted on June 12 on The Kelly Clarkson Show's YouTube channel, the question finally came up. The 43year-old talk show host shared that it was a Christmas song. She said the quickest one she ever wrote was "Underneath the Tree". Kelly explained that she was in the studio with Greg Kurstin when they worked on it. Greg is the music producer who also helped her create "Stronger (What Doesn't Kill You)" and other bangers. The song became part of her fifth studio album and is now one of her most loved pop tracks."I ordered sushi and when it arrived I had written it," the three-time Grammy winner said. "I think because I really love Christmas I write them really quickly for Christmas — because they feel good, because you can be a little cheesy, you know? You don't have to worry about being cool, which honestly that's not a concern generally ever because I'm not."

'Underneath the Tree' was a big hit for Kelly Clarkson. It reached No. 9 on the Billboard Hot 100 chart. It also topped Billboard's Adult Contemporary chart and stayed at No. 1 for four weeks. On her show, Clarkson shared how the song came together. She said Greg Krustin, the 56-year-old music producer, sent her home with a small piano piece. That helped them shape the sound of the song. The singer explained that it was not the full idea yet, but it started to form what became their Christmas "wall of sound". The song later became one of her most loved holiday hits. "They don't all come out like that, though; usually it takes forever," the singer admitted of her songwriting process. "But that one was quick."

'Underneath the Tree' is from Clarkson's album 'Wrapped in Red'. The song topped the latest Top 10 ASCAP New Classic Holiday Songs list. This list is published by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers (ASCAP). Kelly Clarkson and GrugKrustin wrote the song. It has now become one of her most popular holiday tracks. On the all-time list of Top 25 ASCAP Holiday Songs, their Christmas hit earned a spot at No. 24. The song continues to get strong airplay each holiday season and has become a favorite for many fans around the world.

Arijit is now willing to start his stadium shows and reach out to even larger audiences.

It is not only a music show, but it also portrays the impact of Indian culture outside the country. As his performance in London was announced, it created a huge buzz among all.

Presently, Arijit is an artist who has truly showcased his diverse talent. This Bollywood artist has recorded more than 440 Hindi songs. Other than this, he has worked on several regional music projects also.

With each of them, he has come up with something new for the audience. And that is what made him completely different from other music makers.

NihalArthanayake, the South Asian BBC presenter has said 'the greatest singers are great actors – they bring emotions through, and none more so than someone like Arijit Singh'. His soulful pieces of music never miss the chance to amuse the music listeners. In 2013, he got his first breakout with the song 'Tum Hi Ho' from the movie 'Aashiqui 2'. Since then, he has continuously offered a large array of songs to his listeners.

Arthanayake even said why Arijit is getting more recognition than any other Western pop music artist. He stated 'They aren't reliant on the white gaze to give them credibility. They're huge as it is'.

Currently, all of his fans are immensely excited to watch him live at the Tottenham Hotspur Stadium.

The pre-sale tickets for the show will be available from 3rd June and the general pre-sale tickets will be available from 6th June.

BadShash Responds after Criticism for His Bold DuaLipa Remark

Indian rapper Badshah found himself at the center of a social media storm after posting a bold comment about the global popstar DuaLipa. What began as a harmless appreciation post quickly spiraled into a full-blown controversy.

It all started on June 6, when Badshah took to X (formerly Twitter) and tweeted "DuaLipa" with a red heart emoji. At first, fans were excited. Some even wondered if this meant a new music collaboration was on the way. But the vibe shifted fast when a fan asked about a collab and Badshah replied, "I'd rather make babies with her bro." That one line set off a wave of backlash online.

Many users called the comment disrespectful and inappropriate. Screenshots of the exchange spread quickly, and soon, Badshah was trending for all the wrong reasons. Still, he did not delete the post that started the uproar.

Instead of backing down, the rapper decided to speak up and a few hours later, he returned to the platform with a follow-up post defending his words. "I think of the most beautiful compliments that you could give to a woman that you really admire is to wish for her to mother your children," he wrote.

Then he added in Hindi, "Meri soch nahi tumhari soch saamne aayi hai," which roughly means, "It's not my thinking that's exposed here, it's yours."

His response stirred even more debate. While some fans supported him and saw it as a compliment taken the wrong way, others felt he crossed a line. The internet remained divided. Some felt the comment could have been worded better, while others accused social media of overreacting.

As of now, Badshah's original post and his response are still live. He has not backed down or issued an apology. This showed once again that he is not afraid to say what is on his mind - even if it sparks controversy.

While Badshah's comment about DuaLipa sparked controversy, he was already getting attention for something else. It was for his impressive physical transformation.

In May, the rapper surprised fans by posting shirtless photos of himself looking leaner, stronger, and more confident than ever. The post quickly went viral on social media, and fans and celebrities alike flooded the comments with praise for his new look.

So, what led to this change? In a past chat with actress and fitness icon Shilpa Shetty, Badshah shared what pushed him to focus on his health. He said the turning point came after the pandemic lockdowns.

With no live shows for months, the sudden return to the stage hit him hard. "When I got back on stage, I didn't have the stamina," he admitted. "My job needs me to be active for about 120 minutes, but I started panting after 15. That was a wake-up call."

Badshah explained that being a performer means giving your best every time, and he felt he was falling short. That realization pushed him to make serious lifestyle changes. His transformation has since inspired many fans and shown that even the busiest stars can take charge of their health with the right mindset.

Diljit Dosanjh is Banned for Casting Pak Actress Hania Aamir in Sardaar Ji 3

Diljit Dosanjh's upcoming movie 'Sardaar Ji 3' falls into the pit of great controversy as Pakistani actress Hania Aamir is co-starring in this movie. The film body has sent an official directive to ban the film as well as the producers which also includes Diljit. The film is currently facing backlash before its release.

The backlash started quite early after the terrorist attack in Pahalgam which tensed the situation between India and Pakistan. The makers of the film have already skipped an Indian release date due to this war situation which has stabilized now. However, the Federation of Western India Cine Employees (FWICE) is not willing to make any compromises and asks for a ban on the film rather than delaying its release. The President of FWICE, BN Tiwari has revealed that they are willing to issue an official directive to ban not only the film but als Tiwari has revealed that they are willing to issue an official directive to ban not only the film but also Diljit Dosanjh and all the Indian film producers involved in the project.

He added, "None of their films and projects would be allowed to be released in India. There would be complete cooperation from the Indian film industry." An official statement is also about to be released regarding the ban on the project and artists in it.

The India-Pakistan tensions are still ongoing and the 'Sardaar Ji 3' will not be screened amid this situation. The situation escalated as Diljit Dosanjh shared the trailer of the movie through social media and announced the release date on Sunday, June 22.

However, the co-producer of the film,

Gunbir Singh Sidhu tactfully handled the situation and said, "Although our film was shot well before the India Pakistan conflict, we are not releasing the film in India keeping in mind the present situation and sentiments of India and Indian people." In confirms the fact that they are still trying to find a good time and date of opportunity to make the release. 'Sardaar Ji 3' is a horror comedy movie that is all set to be released overseas only. The trailer for the movie is already geo-blocked on YouTube for Indian viewers. FWICE has absolutely zero tolerance for Pakistani actors as they have also banned 'Abir Gulaal' which is a Hindi movie where the cast includes Pakistani actor Fawad Khan who is coming to Bollywood after nine long years. It is evident now how war politics and hatred can influence the film industry.

'Man's Best Friend' -Sabrina Carpenter's Next Album Is Coming

Sabrina Carpenter has announced a new album, 'Man's Best Friend'. The upcoming album will be released in August and follows her previous 'Short n' Sweet'. Just a year after her acclaimed album 'Short n' Sweet', Sabrina Carpenter is back with a new album titled 'Man's Best Friend'.

The album is set to drop on August 29, and the announcement came on June 11 through her Instagram, where she shared the bold cover art. In the photo, the pop star is seen on her knees in black stilettos, with a man gripping her hair - a striking and sensual visual that is already turning heads!

This full-length release comes not long after her last project, marking a quick return for Sabrina.

She kept the caption simple and sweet, "i can't wait for it to be yours x". Fans are already buzzing with excitement as summer heats up with new music from one of pop's most talked-about voices.

Sabrina Carpenter's upcoming album 'Man's Best Friend' will feature 12 tracks, as it was revealed on its Spotify countdown page.

Leading the tracklist is her latest single 'Manchild', which is already making waves and aiming for a strong debut on the Billboard Hot 100. The song brings a playful and country-inspired sound and was created with Jack Antonoff and Amy Allen.

These two also worked on 'Short n' Sweet', Sabrina's previous super hit album. 'Manchild' finds the pop star poking fun at immature, clueless men, particularly an exboyfriend, and blends humor with sharp lyrics. The track has quickly gained attention for its catchy melody and bold attitude.

The country-inspired track questions his intelligence with lines like "Why so sexy if so dumb? / And how survive the Earth so long?" "Manchild, why you always come arunning to me?/ F-k my life, won't you let an innocent woman be?" Sabrina further sings on the track. "Never heard of self-care/ Half your brain just ain't there."

The song's cheeky tone matches its Western-themed video, where the pop star is seen trying to hitchhike through a desert.

Along the way, she meets a series of unhelpful men and disappointing men, each one more useless than the last. With its fun vibe and biting wit, 'Manchild' adds a bold edge to her upcoming album.

Fans are quick to speculate that 'Manchild' may be about Sabrina Carpenter's ex-boyfriend, actor Barry Keoghan. The couple had split in late 2024. The lyrics and timing have fueled the rumors, although nothing has been confirmed from either side.

Sabrina has addressed curiosity about her lyrics before. In an earlier interview with Rolling Stone, she spoke about how people often try to link her songs to her personal life.

She explained that while inspiration can come from real experiences, her music is also a space for storytelling, humor, and reflection.

"Obviously, I write songs about exactly how I feel, so I guess I can't be so surprised that people are interested in who and what those songs are about. That's something that comes with the territory," she said during the interview.

However, fans continue to search for clues in every line she writes. Now from what it looks like, the album already has a strong start, and 'Man's Best Friend' is shaping up to be another standout moment in Sabrina's fast-moving pop journey.

Maroon 5 Makes an Epic Comeback in the Industry with New Album and 'Love Is Like' Tour

It is time for Maroon 5 to make a flashy comeback in the pop music industry with the band getting ready for their 'Love Is Like' National Arena Tour along with a new album.

It seems like Maroon 5 has been cooking in the studio for a major time as the band is all set to return to the industry with a brand new album project.

They have already announced their eighth studio album project which is titled "Love Is Like," and the most exciting thing is that the band will embark U.S. Arena tour with the same name.

Love Is Like Arena Tour is all set to take place this year and the album will be released on August 15th under the label of Interscope. This album was released four years after their last project 'Jordi' which was released back in 2021.

The frontman for the band, Adam Levine said, "I feel like we've gone back to what we used to do, which is to not pay attention to where we fit and producing the music organically," and further added, "This is kind of how we stuck out in the beginning when we first started our career." It is not just Levine but the fans of Maroon 5 also feel nostalgic in the same way.

The national arena trek is scheduled to start this fall and there will be a total of 23 dates for the tour.

There will be dates at Los Angeles' Kia Forum as well as Madison Square Garden in New York City before it ends in Detroit, MI on November 25 of this year. Claire Rosinkranz is offering complete support for each date in the tour.

While 'Love Is Like' created a buzz among the fans before its release, Maroon 5 decided to tease the project by dropping a single from the album called "All Night." The official music video for the song will be premiered on June 27.

The music video will be directed by Aerin Moreno who has previously worked with Tate McRae, Tyla, and others.

Aerin is also the music video creator for 'Priceless' which is a collaboration project between Lisa from Blackpink and Adam Levine from Maroon 5.

This project was released on May 2nd and offered a beautiful music video which was shot on 35mm film through the downtown of Los Angeles. It felt like a reference to the film "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" where the couple fell in love while trying to assassinate each other.

Ed Sheeran's 'Sapphire' music video is a radiant love anthem that crosses cultures and borders, featuring captivating vocals from Indian music icon Arijit Singh.

Ed Sheeran returns to the dancefloor with his brand new single 'Sapphire'. It is a vibrant track full of energy and emotion. The song blends upbeat dance rhythms with traditional Indian percussion, creating a sound that feels both rooted and fresh.

It is all tied together by Sheeran's signature knack for writing melodies that stick in your head after the first time you have listened to them. Lyrically, the artist sings about getting lost in the moment with someone special, and the song embodies that feeling perfectly. The blue diamond in the title becomes a symbol of that feeling rare, glowing, and butterflies in your stomach.

"We are surrounded but I can only see / The lights, your face, your eyes / Exploding like fireworks in the sky," Sheeran sings. The words are simple and authentic, but the feelings behind them run deep. It is about those moments when the world fades away and all that matters is the person right in front of you.

The track also features Arijit Singh, one of India's biggest musical stars. He adds his vocals and plays the sitar that gives the song an even richer texture.

Singh also joins the four-time Grammy winner in the official 'Sapphire' music video. Shot across different parts of India during Sheeran's recent India tour. The entire video is full of spirited color and movement. It shows Sheeran walking through the crowded markets, strolling along beaches, visiting local landmarks, and singing with young Indian football players. Singh appears alongside him, adding a much-needed warmth and charm.

'Sapphire' captures joy and rhythms alongside a shared sense of wonder. It is a cross-cultural celebration led by two artists who know how to turn feelings into music. The song blends Indian percussion with his signature pop style. Produced by Ilya Salmanzadeh, Johnny McDaid, and SavanKotecha, the song feels both intimate and grand. The music video furthermore adds depth to this cultural celebration, finding Ed Sheeran exploring the streets of India. Directed by Liam Pethick, the 'Sapphire' music video features Arijit Singh and a very surprising cameo from Bollywood icon Shah Rukh Khan. It opens with Sheeran singing at dawn on a rooftop, then follows him on a colorful journey through the streets of India, from peaceful beaches and riversides to busy markets, local kitchens, and Bollywood sets. The music video captures vibrant moments that match the energy and heart of the track. Sheeran is often joined by Arijit Singh at these locations, singing together in Punjabi. One line, "ਚਮ-ਚਮਚਮਕੇਸਿਤਾਰੇਵਰਗੀ," translates to "They sparkle just like stars," as shown in YouTube's captions.

Talking about this newly released track, Sheeran said, "Sapphire was the first song I finished for Play that made me know where the album was heading. It's why I finished the recording process in Goa surrounded by some of the best musicians in India. It was an incredible creative process. I shot the music video with Liam and Nic across my India tour earlier this year, we wanted to showcase the beauty and breadth of the country and its culture. The final jigsaw piece for me was getting Arijit on the record. It was a journey to get there and such an amazing day of music and family. Me and him have done a full Punjabi version of the song that will come out in the next few weeks, which has a lot more of him on it. This is the album version of the song, and my favourite song on the album. Hope you guys love it."

Sabrina Carpenter has come again to win over the hearts of her listeners this summer with the track 'Manchild', which is already creating a buzz among everyone.

Sabrina Carpenter is all ready to own the summer again with her newly dropped soundtrack 'Manchild'. Last year, she captivated all with the soundtrack, 'Espresso'.

The brilliant track is generating a huge buzz within a brief time.
Produced by Jack Antonoff, this song has garnered many listeners. Within a few hours, this song has gotten more than 200k views on YouTube.

This starts with a refreshing 'Oh boy!' that has the potential to create a sensation among all. The track has a disco effect, which enhances the song even more.

In the song, Sabrina sang 'Manchild, why you always come a-runnin' to me?/Fuck my life, won't you let an innocent woman be?'. Then she continued 'Never heard of self care/Half your brain just ain't there/Manchild, why you always come a-runnin', takin' all my lovin' from me?'.

She has showcased her creative prowess by offering sensational lyricism. With each new release, this artist offers some of the most refreshing tunes and charming lyrics, which makes her song even more attractive.

On Monday, she gave the first teaser of the song, and it created huge excitement among all her fans. In the clip, Sabrina was seen wearing a white button-down, which was paired with heels. In the video, she was seen standing at the side of a dusty road with a suitcase beside her. The appearance of the video is quite different from her other videos. And that made the soundtrack even more exciting for the music enthusiasts.

As of now, the artist hasn't released the music video. she has made the official release of the track only.

On her Instagram, she has shared a few behind-the-scenes shots of making the video. In addition to that, she has also said 'on a random tuesday with amy and jack not too long after finishing short n' sweet and it ended up being the best random tuesday of my life'.

The singer and songwriter even said that 'Manchild' is 'something I can look back on that will score the mental montage to the very confusing and fun young adult years of life'.

She even added 'it sounds like the song embodiment of a loving eye roll and it feels like a never ending road trip in the summer! hence why i wanted to give it to you now- so you can stick your head out the car window and scream it all summer long!'

Aespa just dropped a fiery teaser for their upcoming single & 'Dirty Work', and it is already turning up the heat. The teaser was released on June 4 and runs just 28 seconds, but it is enough to set the tone for what is to come. The clip does not reveal any part of the song, keeping fans guessing until its official release on June 27 at midnight EST (1p.m. KST).

Even without a sound preview, the visuals alone make a bold statement. The video opens with a pile of metallic objects: chains, gears, cogs, and polished chrome, sitting quietly. Suddenly, they begin to glow as if a fire has ignited from within. The heat grows stronger and the metal pieces melt down into a thick, golden liquid. It shimmers and flows with intensity, filling the screen with a rich glow. As the molten gold cascades downward, it reveals something spectacular. The liquid cools and takes shape, slowly forming the title 'Dirty Work' in a bold and diamond-encrusted script outlined in shining gold. The letters sparkle with a sharp and luxurious finish that sets a glamorous yet fierce tone for what is ahead.

aespa is known for delivering powerful concepts, and this teaser sticks to that tradition. The mood is intense, dramatic, and full of mystery.
