PlayStation x LISA: The New Collaboration has been made for the Latest Launch

BLACKPINK's LISA has come up with Sony for the latest PlayStation campaign. For the new launch of PS5, PlayStation has chosen Lalisa for the collaboration.

In the new commercial, it is coming to see that LISA is playing one of the favorite PS5 titles, which is 'Astro Bot', the winner of Game of the Year 2024. This new collaboration has made all of LISA's fans immensely excited.

On 1st July, they shared the PlayStation x LISA collaboration on social media sites for the first time. And that generated a massive sensation. No one was expecting this collaboration would take place.

In addition to that, they have also done an advertisement where a collage is seen. In the collage, it came to see that in the background there is a Sony game and in front of it was LISA.

LISA is coming up with exciting events for all of her fans. And it is one of the biggest surprises that she has given to her admirers this year.

Right after watching the advertisement, one of the fans said 'My two worlds collapsed. It is such a great collab'.

Another one stated 'This collab is so iconic'. Another fan said 'PlayStation gaming with LISA is my lifestyle, baby'. This year, it is the second time that Sony has collaborated with a celebrity.

The PlayStation x LISA collaboration is the second one that the company has done in 2025.

At the very beginning of 2025, they did a campaign called 'No Play Limits'.

And for that campaign, they reached out to Finn Wolfhard from the Netflix series 'Stranger Things'.

LISA is a versatile artist who tries to do various things in her career. Previously, she has shown her interest in gaming.

In the year 2020, she was featured on a YouTube video playing on Nintendo Switch, which is known as 'Animal Crossing: New Horizons'. It shows the versatility of the artist, which is quite interesting.

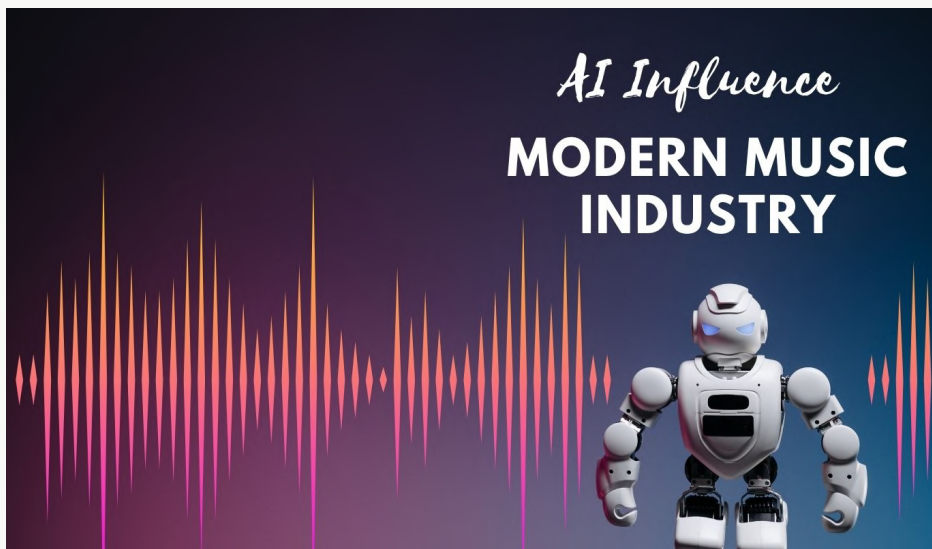

Right now, LISA is one of the biggest K-pop artists. This singer and performer has more than 106 million followers on Instagram.

Therefore, this branding can help to grab the attention of more people from all around the world.

Amidst all this, it is also coming to know that many core players are not appreciating this collaboration as LISA doesn't have such interests, according to them.

But, for Sony, it is quite a great move that is encouraging them to reach out to more people.

AI Influence in Modern Music Industry: Different Ways of Transformation

The digital era is highly influenced by the presence of Artificial Intelligence (AI), and its usage is now visible in most industries. The forefront of transformation is accepted and adapted by every sector, and the music industry is also a part of it. Currently, AI is not just being used as an auxiliary tool but is the driving force of innovation with productivity.

It is currently reshaping the music industry along with the market and consumption among online users. Music artists are now able to get access to AI-powered platforms like iZotope, Amper Music, and many others that can help to keep the whole process of music production under a common shade.

These platforms are providing unprecedented convenience and ease in the process of music making for both professional artists and beginners in the industry who are still trying to establish themselves. Not just music artists, but AI is also influencing how listeners are consuming music through tailor-made musical experiences with the help of AI-powered algorithms.

In addition to music production and consumption, AI is also helping to strengthen A&R strategies, along with marketing and promotion, which ensures a fair chance for all kinds of music artists. It is helping in finding young musical talents while making music more interactive for all. The live concert culture is adapting to AI benefits with real-time music adaptation and interactive elements. It is safe to say that AI is bringing a revolution to the modern music industry.

Let's take a tour of how AI Revolution is Transforming Modern Music Industry:

Music Composition (Automated): There are plenty of AI-driven platforms like AIVA, Amper Music, Jukedeck, and many others that have brought a huge change in the process of the music creation. These tools are specially designed to apply deep learning methods to composition rules and music theory, which allows generating complete compositions with more effectiveness and ease. Music artists are able to provide specified inputs on the aspects of style, mood, genre, duration, and others. This allows opening new opportunities in music production, and non-musicians are able to get through experimentation without the help of a record label. This allows for the broadening of the creative exploration of music while challenging the traditional notions of music production, creativity, and authority.

Improved Music Production: AI has helped to improve music production exponentially with its effectiveness and quickness. With the benefits of automated mixing and mastering, even independent artists are able to drop full-fledged album projects. These AI-powered tools are able to analyze audio tracks based on algorithms that allow optimizing tracks, balancing mixes, and applying mastering methods to offer a superior sound quality. As a result, the production process of music has sped up greatly. It is offering an opportunity for small studios and emerging artists with limited budgets.

Personalized Music Experience for Everyone: AI and the influence of online music streaming platforms have revolutionized the way people used to listen to music. Currently, AI allows for the analysis of a huge amount of data on the user preferences of music and their listening behaviors. The advanced algorithms help to create personalized playlists based on each listener and their individual music tastes. Other than providing a satisfactory sonic experience, it is improving music discovery and offering fruitful opportunities for emerging artists to reach a new audience base.

Currently, these personalized playlists are normalized, which has made artists and labels adapt to AI to survive in the competitive market for music.

Music Adaptation in Real-time: Music or audio plays a vital role as an interactive medium in video games and other artificially created environments. AI is bringing more convenience in the field with real-time music adaptation, which can change the narrative. Such adaptive music can provide a more emotional, engaging, and immersive experience. It aligns musical elements with the on-screen action or activities. This technology is also projecting a major change in entertainment media by making them more interactive and responsive. As a result, viewers are also becoming a part of the content.

Enhanced A&R Strategies and Music Marketing: The positive influence of AI is also visible in the avenues of music marketing and A&R (Artists and Repertoire) strategies. It is transforming the traditional ways of the talent hunt and recognition. Advanced algorithms can help to find and analyze digital footprints across various platforms, and they can predict future trends and music projects with the possibility of becoming hits. This helps music artists and record labels make data-driven decisions, and it improves their approaches to music marketing. It reduces the chances of financial risk and ensures success for rising music artists.

Virtual Artists and Voice Synthesis: The benefits of AI have also paved the way for virtual artists who are capable of providing musical performances without the requirements of human intervention. By utilizing voice synthesis technology, there are now virtual artists who can sing in various styles and languages. Such musical creations are global and gain the attention of music lovers from around the world. The creation of virtual artists raises a lot of ethical questions regarding artist integrity and human emotions, but also provides a different dimension of music-making for people who do not become celebrities on a world tour.

Automatic Copyright Detection: Copyright laws are highly important in the music industry, where you can easily get sued for copying someone else's music. AI tools can help to scan multiple platforms at the same time and can easily identify instances of unauthorized music usage or copyright infringement. This is highly important in this digital age of online music, where your music needs to be lawfully established across the competitive digital landscape that is vast and dynamic.

Music Education and Training Programs: AI is widely used in the education and learning sectors, and that goes for music as well. There are many online platforms that can provide real-time feedback and creative lessons to empower learners rapidly. The tools can provide learning lessons on playing instruments, singing, rapping, and other aspects that allow treating music as a potential career choice. The tailored approach offered by AI is making music learning more efficient, effective, and impactful while making it more accessible for the new age of music artists.

Improved and Engaging Live Performances: The modern world of music lovers is highly influenced by the concert culture, and almost all kinds of music lovers like to enjoy live gigs and concerts for the real experience. This experience is now being heightened with the influence of AI. Modern tools are being used to analyze the acoustics of a venue in real-time, and they can help to generate optimal audio quality. AI is being used to control and manipulate lights and visuals at live concerts, offering audiences an engaging sensory experience. AI is bringing more ease in complex show designs while pushing the boundaries for live performance art. Such an immersive experience is also the reason why most world tours have sold-out shows for each day.

Ethical Considerations and Creative Implications: The rise of AI in the music industry also comes with a fair amount of creative and ethical challenges, as people can easily copy someone else with AI tools like deep fakes. As a result, questions are being raised regarding the authenticity of AI-generated content and whether it can replace human artists and their creative values in the market. With long hours of debates and discussions, AIs are being modified to maintain human artistic integrity.

The transformative impact of AI in the music industry is undeniably high, and it is also bringing a huge change in the business landscape for music. The artists and the industry need to adapt with AI tools while keeping the ethical considerations and challenges in mind. AI should be used for assistance in various tasks of music making and publishing it without compromising human creativity.

Celebrate Kailash Kher's Birthday With His Best 7 Soulful Hits

Kailash Kher brought a fresh wave to the Bollywood music scene. He took the deep soul of Sufi music and gave it a new sound by mixing it with rock and folk. His songs reached even more people in India as the music felt both new and timeless. What truly made him and his discography stand out was his voice. The legend is turning 52 years old this year! Kher carved a strong identity in Bollywood with his soulful Sufi songs and powerful voice. So, on this special day, let's celebrate the legend's birthday with his best 7 songs that will take you back to the good old days!

1. Teri Deewani: 'Teri Deewani' stands as one of Kailash Kher's most loved and iconic songs from his entire discography. Released in 2006, the song became a turning point in the singer's career and in the way Sufi music was received in mainstream Bollywood. What makes this track truly unique, especially when it was released, is its raw emotions and the simplicity of the lyrics. The song peaks in this chart because it intentionally and beautifully blends the intensity of spiritual longing with the feeling of deep romantic love. This is something that only a few songs manage to do and do it well. The composition is the star of the show, as it is both soothing and yet very powerful and thought-provoking.

The use of minimal instruments on the track keeps space for the lyrics and vocals to shine. The tune, on the other hand, flows like a prayer, steady and full of feeling. Kailash's voice lifts the entire song to a whole different level. His high-pitched vocals bring both strength and softness, making each line feel heartfelt.

His voice is so impactful in the song that you will feel like he did not just sing the lines, but lived through his vocals. His delivery brought out the pain, hope, yearning, and surrender with the same intensity that the lyrics hold. Even after so many years, 'Teri Deewani' continues to touch hearts. The song is so much more than just a composition; it is an emotion that helped define Kailash Kher's musical legacy.

2. Allah Ke Bande: 'Allah Ke Bande' is one of the most powerful and emotional songs in Kailash Kher's career. Originally part of the film Waisa Bhi Hota Hai Part 2, this track was composed by Vishal-Shekhar and released in 2003. It became a part of Kailasa's debut album later, but its impact was felt much earlier. This song marked Kailash Kher's big break and introduced his voice to a wide audience across the country. The beauty of 'Allah Ke Bande' lies in its message. The lyrics talk about hope, patience, and strength in the face of pain. It tells listeners to keep going, no matter how hard life gets. Kailash's voice adds depth to every word. His tone is earthy, full of emotion, and reaches into the soul.

The song's composition is simple yet powerful. It does not rely on heavy instruments or dramatic shifts. Instead, it lets the words and voice take the lead. This made it stand out at a time when Bollywood music was dominated by flashy sounds. Even today, 'Allah Ke Bande' remains timeless. It still plays on playlists and still moves people. The song still reminds us of the moment Kailash Kher arrived with something new and unforgettable.

3. Saiyyan: 'Saiyyan' is another memorable and heartfelt song by Kailash Kher. It was featured in Jhoomo Re, the second album by his band Kailasa. Released in 2007, this album followed the massive success of their debut, and 'Saiyyan' quickly stood out as a fan favorite. The song became one of the top tracks of the year and is still loved by listeners for its emotional depth and timeless appeal.

What makes 'Saiyyan' special is the way it blends traditional Sufi music with a modern touch. Kailash Kher's voice carries a raw, honest emotion that connects straight to the heart. His powerful singing brings life to the lyrics, which speak of love and its longing and surrender. The melody flows smoothly, creating a calming yet soul-stirring experience. The music video also played a big part in the song's impact. Its visuals matched the tone of the music, drawing viewers in and adding more meaning to the story within the song. 'Saiyyan' is not just a track; it is a feeling that stays with the listener long after the song is finished. For many, it became a song to return to in moments of reflection or emotion. This is why it remains one of Kher's finest and most loved creations.

4. Bismillah: 'Bismillah' by Kailash Kher featuring Munawar Masoom Khan is a powerful and deeply moving track. Known for its spiritual depth, the song blends Sufi influences with strong, heartfelt vocals. From the very first word - 'Bismillah', meaning "in the name of God", the song sets a tone of peace, devotion, loyalty, and love. The music carries a calming yet intense energy that pulls listeners into a reflective space. Kailash's mesmerizing voice is paired with Munawar Masoom Khan's soulful contribution. It adds strength and emotion to every line of the song. On the other hand, the lyrics speak of faith, confidence, unity, and the beauty of creation. 'Bismillah' stands out for its message and its sound. It reaches beyond language and touches something universal. To this day, the song is one of the most memorable pieces from Kailash Kher, and it resonates with people from all walks of life. The song is a pure reminder of grace and togetherness.

5. Ya Rabba: Another song from Kailash Kher's discography that remains a fan favorite even after so many years is 'Ya Rabba'. It was featured in the 2007 film Salaam-E-Ishq, a movie known for its multi-star cast and romantic themes. Composed by the well-known trio Shankar Ehsaan Loy, the song stood out for its raw emotion and meaningful lyrics. Right from the start, 'Ya Rabba' pulls listeners into a world of heartbreak and longing. The lyrics speak of pain, betrayal, and the search for peace. These words become even more impactful when combined with Kailash Kher's powerful voice. His vocal delivery throughout the song is filled with emotion, lingering in your heart long after you finish listening to it. You can feel every word, every pause, every cry. It captures the weight of love and loss without needing complex music or overdone visuals. The melody is simple but effective, which lets the voice and lyrics carry the message. He made people feel something deeper. Even years later, 'Ya Rabba' continues to be played and remembered. It remains a shining example of how music can speak to the soul through honesty and emotion.

6. Arziyan: 'Arziyan' is from the film Delhi 6, and it is one of the most heartfelt and soul-stirring songs sung by Kailash Kher. The track feels like a quiet prayer that is full of emotion and depth. Composed by A.R. Rahman, the song blends traditional Sufi elements with a simple and moving melody that stays with you long after it ends. Kher's voice adds a special weight to the lyrics. His singing feels honest and soft at times. Yet, the magic of the song makes you feel like Kher's vocals are filled with strength. Each word carries meaning, and his delivery brings out the spiritual tone of the track in a very impactful way. The song speaks to listeners who are searching for peace and comfort. With this song, the singer once again showed how deeply Sufi music can touch people from within. Kailash Kher helped bring that soulful Sufi sound into mainstream Bollywood in a way that feels real and lasting.

7. Tu Jaane Na: 'Tu Jaane Na' from Ajab Prem Ki Ghazab Kahani is known for its emotional depth and romantic feel. While the original version by Atif Aslam gained huge popularity, the unplugged version by Kailash Kher brought a fresh and soothing take on the song. Kher's voice adds a different energy to the track. His earthy tone and heartfelt delivery make the unplugged version feel more intimate and raw. He strips the song down to its emotions, allowing the lyrics and melody to breathe. The arrangement is simple, letting his vocals shine without distractions.

What makes this version different from the original track is the pure emotion it carries. Kailash brings a gentle ache to the song, making it perfect for quiet moments of reflection and longing. He does not try to match the original style. Instead, he makes the composition his own. You can hear that his version of 'Tu Jaane Na' feels closer and more personal, making it deeply moving. In a world full of remixes and flashy tracks, this unplugged version stands tall for its honesty and warmth. It shows how a song can take on new meaning when sung from the heart.

Cardi B Deletes All the Posts with Stefon Diggs after News of Their Dating went Viral

The fans are buzzing over rapper Cardi B's dating life again with some mysterious publicity stunt. This time, it is NFL player Stefon Diggs at the center of attention.

The Grammy award winner has already made her bond with Diggs official on Instagram, but after a month, she decided to delete everything she posted.

What happened to the relationship with Stefon Diggs? That is the biggest question running through the fans' minds. Whether this separation or mysterious deletion occurred due to the presence of Offset or not, it is not clear yet.

Cardi has three children with her former partner, and it is not certain whether the rapper was looking for another father for the children or not.

It is definitely suspicious that the rapper removed all traces of Diggs from social media as if everything had ended. This sudden deletion of posts came shortly after the rapper posted pictures with Diggs from their romantic getaway to France.

The NFL star booked historic Château de Farcheville for Cardi, which made her post with the caption, "Why this man got us staying in a castle?" She affirmed to fans, "I'm talking about a real castle." The boiling chemistry of their romance was evident through the posts.

However, Cardi has not mentioned Diggs since, and she shifted the topic to workload as a performer, which added more fuel to the speculation. On July 6, the rapper posted, "In the past 72 hours, if you could count the time that we've slept... I think me, 6," and further added, "That's why I don't want to hear no complaining from no f---ing body because I'm working my ass off. But I want this s---ing bad."

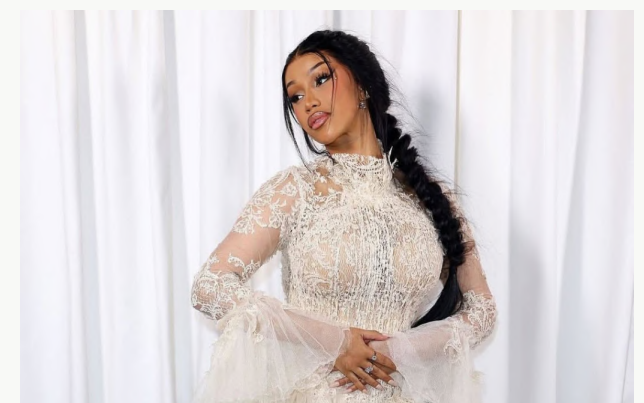

It is true that the hustle is real for the female rapper, but fans couldn't help but notice the fact that something is off about her relationship with Diggs, and there is a revelation for it other than deletion.

Starting from Valentine's Day dinner to a sexy appearance at Coachella, the couple has been unveiling themselves through public appearances.

On June 1st, Cardi started posting pictures and clips with the NFL player, and their PDA was quite intimate, with Diggs receiving a lap dance on a yacht. Cardi B also wrote Diggs' name on nails with a custom manicure.

So what went wrong between them? Some of the fans still believe that they are together, but they are keeping their relationship private for now, and only they know what happened.

FIRE TEARS DOWN THE MAIN STAGE OF TOMORROWLAND ON OPENING EVE

In an unfortunate event, fire erupted and destroyed the main stage at the Tomorrowland on opening eve, a day before music fans would descend to the venue.

A massive fire broke out on the grounds of Tomorrowland and destroyed the music festival's main stage near Antwerp on Wednesday. The unfortunate accident happened just one day before thousands of fans were set to arrive. Organizers confirmed there were no injuries and said that the festival will still go ahead as planned over the next two weekends.

Photos and videos shared online showed flames ripping through the stage structure, with thick black smoke rising into the sky and spreading toward nearby woodland. The cause of the fire is still unknown, but emergency crews responded quickly to control the blaze. Despite the setback, organizers remain confident that Tomorrowland will continue without any major disruption. Plans are already underway to adjust staging and keep the experience alive for attendees.

“Due to a serious incident and fire on the Tomorrowland Mainstage, our beloved Mainstage has been severely damaged,” the organizers posted on the official website. “We can confirm that no one was injured during the incident.” “We can announce that, DreamVille (campsite) will open tomorrow (Thursday, July 17) as planned and will be ready for all DreamVille visitors. All Global Journey activities in Brussels and Antwerp will take place as planned. We are focused on finding solutions for the festival weekend (Friday – Saturday – Sunday).

More updates and detailed information will be communicated as soon as possible,” the full statement read.

Around 100,000 people are expected to arrive in the town of Boom for the Tomorrowland music festival, with many planning to stay at the on-site DreamVille campsite.

Organizers confirmed that the campsite would open as scheduled on Thursday, despite the fire that destroyed the main stage just a day earlier.

The festival, known for its grand production and huge crowds, will still host top electronic acts like David Guetta, Lost Frequencies, Armin Van Buuren, and Charlotte de Witte. Performances begin Friday for the first weekend.

Two-thirds of the shows were originally split between the main stage and the Freedom Stage, and organisers are now working to make quick adjustments. Several hundred firefighters had battled the blaze to save the main stage.

While the cause is still under investigation, officials believe the fire was accidental. Antwerp prosecutors have launched a formal inquiry.

Tomorrowland was founded 20 years ago by two Belgian brothers and has since grown into one of the most famous music festivals in the world.

Despite the setback, organizers remain determined to keep the event on track.

The official authority is still promising fans an unforgettable experience across both weekends.

MILEY CYRUS GAVE A TEASER ON THE 20TH ANNIVERSARY OF HANNAH MONTANA

The popular Disney show, Hannah Montana, is turning 20 in 2026. The fans are expecting a comeback of the pop sensation on the special 20th anniversary.

Hannah Montana has been a huge part of the 90s and 2000s pop culture era. People who had turned on Disney Channel at that time got to witness the most popular show of that time. Now, Hannah Montana is turning 20 years, and this 'Hannahversary' is quite an exciting event for all its fans.

Miley Cyrus, the pop sensation now, gained fame and recognition from this particular show. She was seen singing 'Nobody's Perfect' and 'Best of Both Worlds' while wearing a blonde wig.

On the occasion of the 'Hannahversary', people are expecting some surprises as Miley teases something for the fans. Everyone is assuming that Miley is about to bring back the teen pop sensation on the anniversary. She sang 'You'll Always Find Your Way Back Home' and it feels like she is truly going towards it. Recently, Miley gave a hint that they might come back with something for all fans.

This show is not only special for the audience but equally special for Miley, too. She debuted as an actor in the show where she played the role of a pop star's alterego. At that time, she was only 13, which led her to attain a huge exposure from all. The show started on 24th March 2006. Thus, after a few months in 2026, the show will complete 20 years of anniversary.

Hannah Montana went on for five years. The show came to an end in the year 2011. For five years, Miley showcased her charm and won everyone's hearts. However, no one expected that the pop star would make a comeback. Now everyone knows that Miley came back in an even bigger way, and now she is one of the biggest pop music artists. Even after all these years, Miley hasn't forgotten the show.

Miley stated 'It's about to be the 20-year Hannahversary in March!'. She also said, 'I want to design something really, really special for it because it really was the beginning of all of this that now sits here today'.

Miley added more by saying 'Without Hannah, there really wouldn't be this...me. It's so crazy to think that I started as a character that I thought would be impossible to shed, and now, that's something that when I walk into a space, it's looked at as this sense of nostalgia or something that you have from your childhood. But now, I've sort of been integrated into everyone's life as the character has'.

The pop star has indicated that something special is going to happen, but people cannot assume what it is. However, she has said, 'I have this very large polyp on my vocal cord, which has given me a lot of the tone and the texture that has made me who I am'. Miley added more, 'but it's extremely difficult to perform with because it's like running a marathon with ankle weights on'.

After that, she also said, 'My voice is super unique because of it, but I do have this Reinke's Edema and I have this large polyp on my cords and I'm not willing to sever it because the chance of waking up from a surgery and not sounding like myself is a probability... I put a tour together like every other week because I want to do it, but it would have to be in a way that is sustainable for me'.

Due to various reasons, Miley will not be able to go on a big tour but she will definitely do something on this 20th anniversary. In 2024, she was recognized as the Disney Legend. Therefore, she is allowed to perform on all the hit songs of the show. The artist said 'After being inducted as a Disney Legend, I was given permission to perform those songs in the future, which is pretty cool'. Now everyone is expecting that at the right time Miley will reveal the surprise for the 20th anniversary of the show.

Bringing back a hefty dose of nostalgia, Jung Hae-In came to cheer for Jisoo, and the Snowdrop fans were immensely happy about the artist's presence. Jisoo also brought Lee Min-Ho, her co-star from 'Omniscient Reader's Viewpoint', and then she pulled Jung from the crowd, who was there with her for the show 'Snowdrop'. It was the acting debut project by Jisoo, which was released back in 2021. The Girl Group has shared many selfie moments together, and the backstage clicks are now viral on the internet. The fans on social media are also demanding their reunion through another K-drama. This is not the first time Jung has shown his support for his co-star, but he also attended the Born Pink tour, which lasted for a year, from October 2022 to September 2023. Doja Cat, Coldplay, Tems, and J Balvin Joined Forces at the FIFA Club World Cup Final Halftime Show

Find out what happened at the mini concert of 15 minutes, the debut of the FIFA Club World Cup Final Halftime Show that took place on a floating stage above the stadium. The World Cup Final by FIFA Club became more glorious with a star lineup at the halftime Show. Starting from Coldplay to Doja Cat and J Balvin to Tems, everybody unified for the powerful performance that made the crowd go wild. The event took place just 52 miles away from Manhattan, and the quartet of music artists performed at the upper deck of MetLife Stadium in New Jersey.

This event is produced by Global Citizen, and the show is curated by Coldplay's frontman Chris Martin. This is the first-ever debut of the FIFA Club World Cup Final Halftime Show, which took place on July 13. And the best part is that the event took place while Chelsea and Paris Saint-Germain (PSG) were fighting for the win.

FIFA's newly planted grass for the football match was not going to get ruined by the performance, as the organizer made sure to come up with an innovative stage design that makes it look like it was floating above the stadium. This multilevel platform was highly creative, and the whole structure was established hundreds of feet above to make sure there were no game interruptions for the show. The staging structure for the whole stage took around 40,000 pounds of material.

The 15-minute party of the mini concert was kick-started by J Balvin with his smash hit "Mi Gente." The Colombian star made sure to embrace his culture and country along with the backup dancer.

Similarly, there was Tems to bring the authentic African vibes to the stage with the tender representation of "Love Me Jeje."

Doja Knows exactly how to set the stage on fire, and she surely offered a blazing performance with her beautiful blue Adidas dress with custom Swarovski crystals that went perfectly with the rapping versatility.

She also teased her upcoming album a little through that small window. The rapper recently shared after her performance, "I'm proud to represent America on this unique stage that will bring people from all corners of the world together." And she further added, "I'm also extremely grateful to continue to support global education efforts by raising funds for the FIFA Global Citizen Education Fund."

Last but not least, there was Coldplay with their magical performance of "A Sky Full of Stars," when a rainbow popped on the stage. This halftime show was historic and a highly powerful debut for FIFA Club.

Chelsea won the night with a huge difference of 3-0 against PSG.

Sabrina Carpenter Knows How to Handle a Family-Friendly Concert in London

Sabrina Carpenter is serving the hottest 'Espresso' to her fans, and she also knows how to conduct a family-friendly event by toning down her usually seductive lyrics. Carpenter did not fail to satisfy the crowd of 65,000 with her sugary pop vibes that can captivate everyone.

The 26-year-old singer has shown her caliber at the BST Festival on Saturday night, which took place in London. Although she is best known for intimate and seductive lyricism that showcases sexual confidence, the singer from the US knew how to cater to the concerns of a Family-friendly show. The show at London's Hyde Park showed "parental discretion" on the screen before Sabrina embarked on her intimate track Bed Chem. She toned down her sexually suggestive lyricism for the crowd and shot t-shirts at the crowd with the help of a cannon. This is very considerate from a pop singer coming from the USA who oozes confidence and energy of an unapologetic star.

The singer performed a track list with 17 songs, which included many of her hit songs. Carpenter's music releases mainly cater to the attention of Gen Z listeners and also to people who are currently looking for people on dating apps. Her romance-based lyricism is highly relatable to music lovers and empowering for women.

Sabrina is not just a talented singer and a dancer, but also a friend who would care for you and bring ice cream when you are low. The Pennsylvania-born star can easily dabble between acoustic soundscapes and upbeat dance numbers, and her ability to transform is truly astonishing.

The singer manifested this journey, which started at her 10 years age of when she already started posting videos on YouTube. Constantly brushing up on her singing and acting skills, Carpenter made her place in a lead role for the TV series titled 'Girl Meets World'. Before becoming a revered pop star, she became a bona fide Disney star in 2013.

Although Sabrina Carpenter has dropped a total of 6 studio albums till now, she has only gained global attention in recent days. Currently, she is the first ever female artist to hold both the No. 1 and No. 2 positions on the UK singles chart. Her hit track 'Espresso' has spent a total of 20 weeks at the top of the chart. The London event was quite exciting for the singer, as Sabrina said, "London is so fun and there's so much to do here".

BENNY BLANCO DESCRIBES HIS WEDDING PLANS WITH SELENA GOMEZ AS CHILL

"She makes me want to hang out and cuddle, just watch things, eat food, and have the best time ever," Benny Blanco said about his wife-to-be Selena Gomez!

Record producer and songwriter Benny Blanco got personal in a new episode of Jake Shane's popular podcast Therapuss. Released this week on YouTube, Spotify, and Apple Podcasts, the interview covers his relationship with fiancée Selena Gomez, mental health, and key career moments. Blanco opened up about living with OCD, sharing how it has shaped his day-to-day life.

He also looked back on his early sessions with Billie Eilish, recalling her talent when she was still a teenager. Discussing his engagement to Gomez, Blanco revealed that their wedding plans are still on hold. The proposal happened in late 2024, but he says they are in no rush. The episode offers a rare look into both the challenges and joy in his personal life, blending serious moments with his usual relaxed humor.

"Honestly, I really want to take a little break. I've been working so much," Blanco told Shane. "I just want to lay in bed and forget what day it is because we've been in bed just watching stuff. Not usually, but with Selena, I can do it all day. She makes me want to hang out and cuddle, just watch things, eat food, and have the best time ever."

He then revealed that Selena had not yet started planning their wedding. "Not yet, that's why we both need to chill," the Grammy nominee explained. "We've both been working so much. We got engaged and then we were filming music videos for our album then we then it's holidays, then right after the holidays we had to start all the promo for our stuff, do that." "Then she left to film her show Only Murders and then I met her then we hung out for a week and then right after that it's promo and then I'm writing another book so then I had to write a book and then she came back for one day here and I and then it was my birthday and you know," he continued.

He further added that he and Selena hope to sit down any day this summer and start planning their big day. "That wedding is going to be lit," Shane teased, with Blanco laughing: "It'll be chill."

The conversation also touched on Blanco's lifelong journey with OCD. He spoke honestly about growing up with the condition and described the rituals he followed as a child to cope with intrusive thoughts. His openness offered listeners a deeper look into the struggles behind his success as a hitmaker. "When I was a kid, I used to have this thing where I had to go 'mmph.' If I didn't do it, I thought my parents were going to die," he revealed. "Now I have little things where I touch parts of my face or make a fake cough sound—literally hundreds of times a day. It's involuntary."

He then said that with time, he learned to manage these compulsions that were pretty disruptive to his surroundings. "I got rid of all the things that are really annoying to another person. I still do little things like making sure everything in my shower is facing forward. But that's insane regardless of OCD," the music producer joked.

Fans were curious when Blanco linked Wizards of Waverly Place to Billie Eilish's breakout track 'Bad Guy' in the interview. "I know the theme song [of Wizards] because it inspired 'Bad Guy,'" Blanco said. "I worked with Billie when she was legit like 14 years old," he said while explaining how he and FINNEAS met before Eilish even played a live show through a mutual lawyer. "They didn't need my help at all. They always do everything just the two of them, and it's f—g incredible."

After Andy Bryon was seen cuddling HR head Kristin Cabot at a Coldplay concert, users noticed his wife Megan dropped her marital surname from Facebook.

Megan Kerrigan, wife of Astronomer CEO Andy Bryon, has removed his surname from her Facebook profile following a viral video that stirred public outrage.

The video was taken at a Coldplay concert, capturing Bryon in an intimate moment with Kristin Cabot, the company's head of HR. The pair were seen cuddling when the kiss cam landed on them. As soon as they realized they were on camera, Cabot appeared visibly embarrassed. She quickly covered her face, while Bryon quickly ducked away from view.

The clip quickly spread across social media, leading to widespread backlash. Many users were quick to identify both individuals, with netizens rallying around Megan Kerrigan. One X user shared screenshots showing that Megan had dropped the "Bryon" surname from her Facebook, a move that was seen as a quiet but firm response to the incident.

As the scandal continues to circulate online, many are calling for accountability and transparency from both Bryon and Astronomer's leadership. Meanwhile, Megan's quiet gesture has sparked conversations about respect, boundaries, and consequences in the workplace and beyond.

"Andy Byron's wife has now dropped her married name on Facebook and left comments open on her Facebook! What a class act! Go Megan. Get that divorce lawyer and get the money," a user called MrsSpaceX wrote on X.

Beyoncé Reunites with Destiny Child at The Climax of Her Cowboy Carter Tour in Las Vegas

The Bey Hive is buzzing in happiness right now with a spectacular ending performance offered by Beyoncé on the last day of her high-octane Cowboy Carter Tour. The pop queen wrapped up the show at Allegiant Stadium in Las Vegas on July 26, and it was a magical moment for Beyoncé's fans from all around the world.

It was the grand finale for her highly anticipated 32-stop stadium tour, marking a notable achievement in the history of the American music industry, with a tour of such magnitude. Before beginning her last show of the tour, the singer screamed at the audience, saying, "This is a special one, y'all," and after the powerful performance, it is safe to say that she wasn't lying. The night of July 26 has also unfolded many mysteries, and the fans will not forget this soon. The last show of the tour was perhaps the best one of her whole tour. Cowboy Carter tour finale also highlights the best reunion of the year with Queen Bey joining forces with her former band members.

Destiny Child came upon the stage for the one last time with the other members, namely Kelly Rowland and Michelle Williams, joined by Beyoncé. It was a full-circle moment, and the trio performed some of the hit tracks by the band, which offered a hefty dose of nostalgia for the fans. Songs like "Lose My Breath," "Bootylicious", etc, have been performed by them on stage, and it was enough to teleport listeners back to the days of the early 2000s.

Other than Destiny Child, Beyoncé is also joined by newly emerged genre-blending artist Shaboozey, who already gained much attention with his 'A Bar Song (Tipsy)' that was released back in 2024. This is the first live appearance by the artists, and that also took place on Beyoncé's show.

A Queen Bey show is never complete without the appearance of her husband Jay-Z, and the iconic couple shared the stage to perform some of their hit tracks like 'Crazy in Love' as well as 'Nias in Paris'. Embracing their love and energy, they also shared a kiss on stage, and that made the crowd go crazy.

While the crowd was roaring in support, Beyoncé said, "Y'all might be the loudest crowd of the whole tour," and that explains the excitement among the fans. Evidently, the end performance of the Cowboy Carter Tour was truly a cherry on top!

As Honey Singh got his tattoo, he even addressed Rahman as the 'living legend', and no one can deny that. In one of his previous interviews, Honey Singh even said that he has a wish to collaborate with Rahman at least once in his lifetime. Rahman was one of his inspirations to become a singer. In the early days of his life, he listened to plenty of soundtracks composed by Rahman. And that sparked his love for music. After so many years of admiring the legendary composer, he paid his tribute to Rahman.

Honey Singh also said that if he ever gets the chance to produce a track with Rahman one day, that would be worthy of winning a Grammy Award. Even if it takes 10 years to accomplish it, he is sure that it will be bigger than anything. He has never shown his love and respect this much for any other artists. From this, it can be understood how he appreciates Rahman and his work.

On Instagram, Honey Singh shared a video of making the tattoo. It startled the netizens for a brief time. From the video, it is also coming to know that he was singing Rahman's famous song 'Tu Hi Re' while getting inked. This shows how he loves and respects Rahman as an artist. He even stated in the video that says, 'This is for my love for the lovely legend Mr. A.R. Rahman. I love you sir. This is for you. Thank you for blessing me with your music. You are the reason why I am musician today. I love you forever'.

He even wrote in the caption under the post 'My third tattoo in one night for my lovely living legend @arrahmansir !! I love you sir thank you for everything not gonna post my second tattoo coz its very personal #tattoo #yoyohoneysingh #arrahman #music #godofmusic'.

Shaan Finally Breaks Silence about the Viral Meme where

Singer and legend of Bollywood songs, Shaan, has finally broken his silence about the viral meme where he was accused of cursing on social media. While the internet has made it easier for fans to reach out to their favorite stars, it has also enabled all kinds of users to abuse and troll them through comments and other online activities. It seems like Shaan has also become a victim of it.

People in the shadows try to troll celebrities and artists through their comment sections, and the use of abusive language is quite high. Singer Shaan has also faced the issue while doing a live session, and facing such internet trolls has also turned him into a viral meme, which is again done by the people in the shadows. This incident took place a long time ago during the period of lockdown when Shaan was doing live sessions through social media and did not wear his spectacles. He casually read the comments on his live and did not expect fans to use curse words, and he read the comments with abusive words without thinking of any consequences, getting trolled again.

Somebody cut the clip of the live session and made a meme on Shaan where he is saying cursed words, and now, the internet is viral with this meme and feeding people 'Brain Rot' information. The problematic situation of social media and the medium of entertainment for the new generation is becoming quite chaotic for artists like Shaan, who has put up a lot of effort and hard work to reach the success they have achieved. And now, some users in the shadows are making him viral for that meme rather than the amazing songs he offered throughout his career.

During a recent interaction with Mashabale India, Shaan has expressed disappointment by saying that the new generation people have not listened to his songs but know him for the viral meme, which is not his identity.

Shaan said, "I was just reading comments, actually. Even today, I wear spectacles, but for style, I have taken them off and kept them aside. So, while reading the comments, I had no idea that people were abusing there. I was reading them leisurely and suddenly saw it said, 'Abe...'"

The singer further said, "Yes, beep beep beep. Someone must have screen-recorded it, and it became a meme. My whole identity got attached to that meme. These young Gen Z and millennials don't even know the kind of songs I've sung — they only remember that 'beep' moment. When my children's friends meet me, they say, 'Oh, is he your dad?'" The singer laughed at the whole incident and showed his humble side.

Bilal Shaikh, widely known as Emiway Bantai, recently had an accident while filming his upcoming music video.

The video of his accident has gone viral on the internet, which stunned all of his fans. The video is quite scary as EmiwayBantai fell from his car. He was sitting on the window of a car while it was moving.

The rapper somehow lost his balance and fell directly on the road. His face hit the road first, which made it even scarier to look at.

The moment he fell from the car, he was actually filming his upcoming music video. As the video went viral, it came to see that the cameraman was filming him.

Ran immediately to help him. The way he fell and collided on the road was even scary to look at. Many netizens have shown their concern after the incident.

On social media platforms, his fans made various comments. One of them said, 'Itna Dedication mat laaolala ,kijaanchaliyaaye (Don't go so hard that you risk your life)'. Another one said, 'It's not worth risking your life for a song'. One also stated, 'Mt krlala, mtkr, maibolrahunaterekomtkrr... (I am telling you don't do it)'.

Another fan said, 'Damn...

Sarkebalgiratha he be really doing his own stunts (He fell on his head)'.

From all these comments, it can be understood that the video has shocked all his fans. In addition to that, from this video, everyone got to know that the rapper does the stunts on his own.

This shows how dedicated he is to his music projects. While sharing the accident video on Instagram, the artist also wrote 'Stunt Gone Wrong'.

The accident seemed quite frightening, but thankfully, he wasn't much injured. The rapper was safe, and nothing severe happened to him. Recently, before this incident, a tragic event took place. SM Raju, the profound stuntman, has passed away while doing a stunt for Pa Ranjith's movie. He was doing a stunt where a car was supposed to land on a ramp. However, the stunt didn't go accordingly and the car flipped several times. After that, it crashed and SM Raju couldn't survive it. Everyone has to be more conscious while doing any stunt. EmiwayBantai also needed to be more careful while doing the stunt.

Zayn Malik Opens Up About Facing Racism During One Direction Era in New Song Teaser

Zayn Malik's handwritten lyrics for 'Fuschia Sea' have fans thinking he is finally opening up about his past struggles and his time in the boy band One Direction.

There is a pattern with male pop stars: vanishing for a while, then coming back with raw, emotional music. Zayn Malik looks like he is in that phase now.

This week, the 32-year-old singer shared a teaser of his upcoming track 'Fuschia Sea' on Instagram Stories. Along with it, he posted handwritten lyrics that quickly got fans talking.

The words felt deeply personal and emotional and hinted at his past struggles. Many fans think the lyrics are aimed at his time in One Direction, adding even more buzz around the song.

The short clip and lyrics have already stirred excitement. It showed a new unfiltered side of Zayn that fans have not seen in a while. His comeback is clearly striking a chord! Rapping over a smooth and laid-back hip-hop beat, Malik shared the lyrics on his Instagram Story and delivered his verse with sharp emotion.

He spits, "Do you remember every conversation?/ 'Cause I have been conscious of every connotation."

"I'm a convert to the concert, and I did that for inflation/ 'Cause I worked hard in a white band, and they still laughed at the Asian," Malik continues on the track.

"If my granddad could go back, lad, there's a fat chance of a backhand/ Just a young man with his own kid and a wife now, in a new land/ I know he dreamed hard, cause they're my dreams/ And I grabbed hard with these two hands."

Malik has not confirmed an official release date yet, keeping fans guessing for now. But in the video teaser he shared, he added the words "coming soon" in the text, hinting that the track might drop sooner than expected.

Loyal fans quickly showed support for Malik's unfiltered honesty, praising his openness. "'Cause i worked hard in a white band and they still laughed at the asian" Zayn Malik is out for BLOOD," one of the comments on X read. "'have you ever heard of another me?" YOU TELL THEM ZAYN MALIK, YOU FUCKING TELL THEM," another one said.

One comment said, "Zayn Malik deserves the BIGGEST apology from the world like RIGHT NOW!!!!" while another one read, "Zayn Malik being the voice for the new generation of poc kids because he never had one when he was growing up."

The "white band" mentioned likely refers to One Direction, which Malik joined in 2010 alongside Harry Styles, Niall Horan, Louis Tomlinson, and the late Liam Payne during their X Factor days. The group released four albums together before Malik left in 2015.

The remaining members went on to release one final album, 'Made in the A.M.', before taking an indefinite break in 2016. As One Direction's fame exploded in the early 2010s, Malik, who was raised Muslim by a Pakistani father and English mother, faced a wave of hate online.

The public often projected harmful and racist narratives onto him. At one point, social media was flooded with false and offensive claims linking him to 9/11 or suggesting ties to ISIS, despite having zero basis.

Malik last released music in 2024 with his album 'Room Under the Stairs'. It reached No. 15 on the Billboard 200. The album includes a track called 'Fuchsia Sea,' though the lyrics he shared on Friday appear to be different from the original version.

music video with it. And after that, fans are not expecting anything less from him. At the beginning, 'Thodi Si Daaru' can seem a little similar, but as the track grows, it unveils the refreshing essence and grows more.

This latest soundscape is amusing more audiences as it features the global sensation, Shreya Ghoshal. Her exceptional voice has added a charm to the track, which has surprised all. Her effortless singing has made the song even brilliant. In the music video, Tara Sutaria seemed to sync with Shreya's voice, and it is absolutely perfect. It can be said that the puzzle has fit flawlessly. No one ever thought of this collaboration, and it is absolutely mind-blowing.

The music video of 'Thodi Si Daaru' has already crossed 5 million views on YouTube and is going to cross 6 million very soon. The captivating chemistry between Tara and Dhillon has left everyone shocked. Right after watching the video, one of the fans commented 'AP Dhillon and Tara's energy is infectious. Shreya Ghoshal's voice is pure gold. 'Thodi Si Daaru' is lit. Can't get enough of this explosive collab. AP and Tara's stage presence is everything'. And he did that with Shreya, the most iconic playback singer of the Bollywood industry. It can be said that the new track is creating a buzz among all listeners quite seamlessly.

Tyla brings the vibes with her new four-track mixtape 'WWP,' featuring fresh sounds and an exciting collaboration with Wizkid on the upbeat track 'Dynamite.'

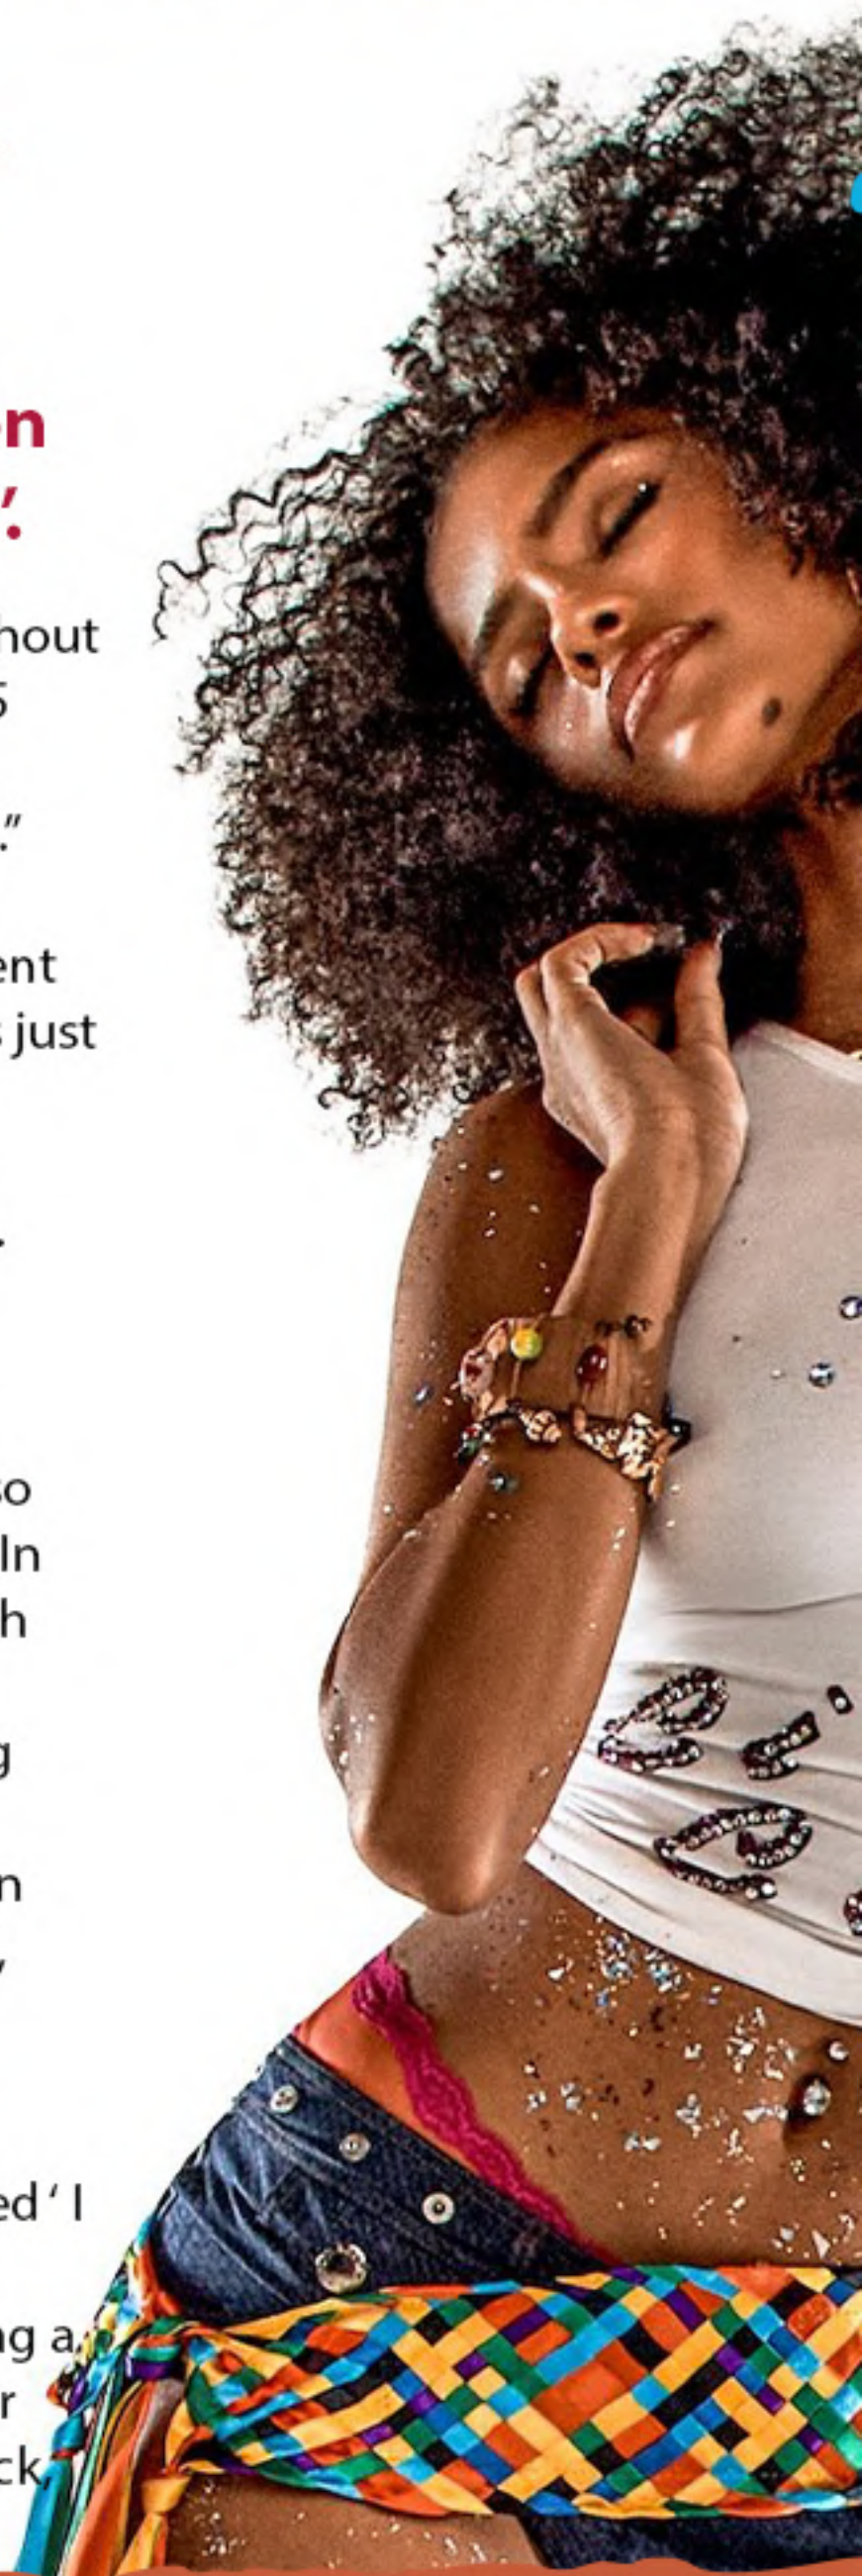

Tyla is not letting the summer slip by without giving fans something to dance to. On 25 July, she dropped her highly anticipated mixtape WWP, short for "We Wanna Party." Though it is called a mixtape, it is on the shorter side. Much of the mixtape's content is also brand new. Still, the project brings just enough energy and rhythm to keep the summer vibes going strong. It is short, catchy, vibrant, and built for repeat plays.

What songs are there in 'WWP'?

The mixtape features 'BLISS', which Tyla debuted at Coachella in April. There is also 'IS IT', a track fans once called "too short." In classic Tyla fashion, she clapped back with humor. The Grammy-award winner told them to "play it again, [the fk]," showing she is fully in the vibe of the crazy party mixtape. There are also two new songs on the mixtape, 'Dynamite', featuring Wizkid, and 'Mr. Media'.

How did the collaboration happen?

"When I thought of doing a mixtape called 'I went back to all my old demos and I remembered the Wiz one', Tyla said during a private listening session in London earlier this month. Speaking about the 2022 track she added, "And it was still good, like, after three years! I just told him, 'Let's finish it because I want to drop it.'" Clearly, some songs age like fine wine, and Tyla is giving her fans just a glimpse of this. "Why don't you bring it, come my way?" Wizkid sings, before Tyla comes with, "Hold me 'round my waist / We can take it slow, baby, you control the pace / The way I rotate, baby, that's a little taste."

What does WWP mean?

At the London event, Tyla shared the meaning behind the title WWP, explaining that it stands for "We Wanna Party." "I've been on this tip of enjoying life, not just partying, but just enjoyment with people that I love, with people that are a vibe," the hitmaker said. "'We wanna party' is actually a South African chant, so we've been using it forever. And it's been a thing for hyping up people and just that feeling of enjoyment. I thought it was perfect for the mixtape 'cause the music screams 'we wanna party!'".

WWP has no skips, which is not too surprising given its short 11-minute runtime. Still, it manages to spark curiosity and excitement for what Tyla's next full-length album might sound like. The mixtape may be brief, but it leaves fans eager for whatever she drops next.
