Jennifer Lopez Showed Her Sassy Side When She was Turned Away by the Channel Store in Turkey

Pop star Jennifer Lopez is known to be the queen of the industry, and she showed a reflection of her sassy side when a channel store mistakenly turned her away in Istanbul.

The singer was slated to offer a headline performance at the Yenikapi Festival Park in Istanbul, which took place on Tuesday, August 5.

Since she had a little time to kill, the singer decided to go for a little shopping in the Turkish City, and that is where the incident happened.

According to the media reports in Turkey, Je-Lo went shopping on Monday at the upscale Istinye Park mall, and there she stopped at the Channel Store.

However, the security guard of the store was unaware of the artist's identity and popularity, and without recognizing the singer-actress, the person stopped her from entering and said that the store was at its capacity. Whether a pop star or not, the excuse sounds pretty lame as a reason not to let someone enter unless there is a judgmental point of view.

However, Lopez is best known for her unwavering personality, and she remains unfazed. With an unbothered reaction, the artists said, "OK, no problem," and moved on.

Not sure if the authority or the internet helped the guard to recognize her, the store security later approached Jennifer Lopez during the shopping trip and welcomed her multiple times to visit their store, to which Je-Lo simply declined their invitation.

The store capacity would not have been disrupted with one person entering, but the store just lost its dignity, and this is just another classic example of discrimination.

Jennifer Lopez's sassy aura and classy attitude are evergreen, and this is not the first time she has smoothly handled many other awkward situations without being affected by them. Previously, she faced a serious wardrobe malfunction during her performance on July 25. She had to toss her shirt, which fell on the floor and could not be reattached.

Instead of feeling awkward, the artist embraced the moment with confidence and said, "I'm glad I had underwear on," and further made a joke saying, "I don't usually wear underwear," which put the crowd in laughter.

J-Lo is a powerful performer, and that is evident through her Up All Night: Live in 2025 tour, which is currently buzzing among fans in different countries.

The European Tour is almost complete, with just two more dates in Kazakhstan and, lastly, in Italy.

The actress is also working on a highly anticipated upcoming movie, titled 'Kiss of the Spider Woman'.

Indians in foreign countries, especially in America, look forward to enjoying such concerts where they can embrace their cultural roots. The legendary music artists have helped to celebrate the rich heritage and identity of Indian music.

It is not just entertainment but also important for Indian music to reach more people, other than the Indians. The three concerts include a cinematic fusion of A R Rahman's dynamic performance, Sumit Tappoo's charity tour, and last but not least, the legacy of legendary Sitar player Ravi Shankar carried by their family. Let's find out how Indian music is being represented on the world stage.

A R Rahman's Tour offers a Cinematic Experience:

There was also a group of highly talented musicians and instrumentalists, namely Aleif Hamdan, Ashwin Srinivasan, and Ranjit Barot, along with his own son A R Ameen. The soulful concert offered songs across genres and a memorable night for the audience.

The Wonderment Tour is handled by Concerts West and AEG Presents, as well as Kash Patel Productions, who did a great job in turning this concert into an ethereal experience.

Sumit Tappoo Brings Back the 'Good Old Days' of Bollywood: Sumit Tappoo is one of those talented artists who can replicate the golden era of Bollywood movies when songs were poetry that could paint a picture. The artist is well-revered for blending the magical creations by the legends, namely Kishore Kumar, Mohammed Rafi, Jagjit Singh, Lata Mangeshkar, and others.

He also performs his originals and makes sure that audiences can feel comfort in nostalgia. The real purpose of this concert is to raise funds for free healthcare options in India, and the concert is conducted by the One World One Family mission, USA.

Divyogi Patel, one of the board members for this mission, has done a great job in assigning Tappoo for this task.

His concerts feature sets that include popular Bollywood music, along with devotional tracks, along with 10 other amazing musicians from Mumbai.

A lot of people are willing to participate in the show as it comes with a noble cause of helping people with free healthcare services.

Ravi Shankar Continues to Live through His Musical Legacy and Family: A special tribute concert to Ravi Shankar is all set to take place in 2026, and the music lovers are already eager to participate from 2025.

Ravi Shankar is one of the prominent figures who helped to spread Indian classical music in the global industry, and now it is time to pay our tributes.

This concert is curated by his wife, Sukanya Shankar, as well as his highly talented daughter, Anoushka Shankar, who carried his legacy even further.

The concert tour will expand through 12 cities, and it is highly anticipated among the fans.

The concert is scheduled to take place in some of the major venues that include The Town Hall in New York, the Chicago Symphony Centre, the Moore Theatre in Seattle, and the list goes on.

There will be archival footage of Ravi Shankar and his curated compositions that showcase his amazing range of expertise and diversity.

For this latest concert, some of the best music artists are chosen for the performance, such as B C Manjunath, Anubrata Chatterjee, Shubhendra Rao, Ayush Mohan, Ravichandra Kulur, and Padma Shankar, who will be performing Shankar's works.

The concert will provide a captivating experience of Indian classical music. Anoushka Shankar will recreate her father's legacy with the performance that brings back his memories.

It is going to be enchanting performances that can help Indians embrace their strong roots that grow through culture and music.

Concluding Thoughts: Wonderment Tour by A R Rahman is the perfect example of how the blend of nostalgia and futuristic stagecraft can merge through spectacular concert shows.

Similarly, the Close To My Heart tour by Sumeet Tappoo fulfilled a noble mission with a direct charitable impact through music and fundraising.

Lastly, the Ravi Shankar Ensemble is ready to create a massive buzz in 2026 through multiple shows in America.

These international concerts are the greatest examples of how Indian music can captivate global audiences.

The Mozart Effect: Is Listening to Music Making Children Smart?

Music has always played an important role in human life and society. It stirred emotions and helped shape memory. One idea related to music that gained attention in recent times is the “Mozart effect”.

This theory suggests that listening to music maestro Mozart can give a quick boost to memory and brain power. This idea became really popular in the 1990s, sparking interest among both scientists and the general public. Some early studies suggested that listening to Mozart results in a temporary improvement in spatial tasks.

However, later research showed mixed results. While Mozart may improve mood or focus for some, there is no strong proof that it directly boosts memory. Still, the connection between music and the mind remains a fascinating topic for many. So, let's dig deeper and understand if the “Mozart effect” is real or not.

Who was Mozart?

Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart was a musical prodigy and one of the most important composers of the classical era. He was born in Salzburg, Austria, in 1756. From a very young age, he showed exceptional talent. By the age of five, he was already writing music and performing for European royalty. His early exposure to music and constant travel helped shape his unique style. Over the course of his short life, he composed more than 600 works.

These included symphonies, operas, chamber pieces, and concertos. Many of them are still performed today and are considered some of the finest works in classical music. Mozart's music is known for its technical skill and emotional range, bringing elegance and technicality in one breath. It blends clarity with deep feeling, making it both accessible and profound. His work continues to influence musicians and inspire listeners around the world. His legacy is one of history's greatest musical geniuses!

What is the Mozart effect?

The term “Mozart effect” became popular in the 1990s and refers to the idea that listening to Mozart's music might give a short-term boost to spatial-temporal reasoning and memory. This idea came from a small study published in 1993. In the study, college students were asked to take spatial reasoning tests after listening to different types of audio. One group listened to Mozart's ‘Sonata for Two Pianos in D Major’ (K. 448) for 10 minutes. Another group sat in silence, and a third listened to relaxation instructions.

The group that listened to Mozart scored slightly better on spatial reasoning tasks. The results were modest, and the improvement only lasted about 10 to 15 minutes. Still, the findings caught public attention and sparked a wave of interest in using classical music, especially Mozart, for brain enhancement. While the study did not claim that Mozart made people smarter, it suggested a possible link between music, mood, and short-term mental performance.

Is there any truth to the Mozart effect?

The idea of the Mozart effect took on a life of its own after musician and entrepreneur Don Campbell released his 1997 book, The Mozart Effect: Tapping the Power of Music to Heal the Body, Strengthen the Mind, and Unlock the Creative Spirit.

Campbell expanded on the original study's findings and made bold claims about the power of Mozart's music to improve mental and physical health. His ideas were widely repeated in the media. It led to a surge in Mozart-themed enrichment programs. In 1998, the hype reached a peak when the governor of Georgia requested state funds to send classical music CDs to all parents of newborns. She hoped that it would boost babies' intelligence.

However, scientists later took a closer look at these claims and found little support. The original 1993 experiment with college students was reexamined in 1999. Later, the researchers concluded that the effects on spatial skills were very small and short-lived. In 2007, the German Federal Ministry of Education and Research commissioned experts to review all scientific studies on Mozart and child development. They found no reliable evidence that listening to Mozart improves intelligence. Despite the popular appeal, science does not support the more extravagant claims of the Mozart Effect.

So it is important to note that while the original findings sparked excitement, later research has produced mixed results, leaning more heavily toward the effect not being scientifically proven. Some studies show a slight temporary boost in brain function after listening to Mozart or similar music.

It is often linked more to mood and alertness than to intelligence. Others, however, find no clear benefits at all. As a result, the Mozart effect remains a debated topic for all. Many experts now believe the short-term effects seen in some studies may come from increased arousal or enjoyment rather than the music itself. More research is still needed to fully understand the link between music and mental performance.

Why is music so impactful on the human mind?

Music, including Mozart's musical creations, can impact the brain in powerful ways. It activates many areas at once, including those linked to hearing, movement, memory, and even emotions. One major effect of music on the human mind involves dopamine. It is a brain chemical tied to pleasure and reward. When people listen to music, dopamine levels often rise. This can instantly lift their mood and help them focus. Music also helps the brain build stronger connections. It stimulates pathways that link different regions of the brain.

These stronger links may support better memory and thinking. People often feel more alert and engaged after listening to music they enjoy. Another major impact of music is stress relief. Calming sounds can lower stress hormones in the human mind. When the body's stress goes down, it becomes easier to concentrate and remember things.

Mozart's music has a steady rhythm and a clear structure. So, it is often seen as helpful regarding this point. However, the main benefit may be coming more from how the music makes any particular person feel.

Someone who finds Mozart relaxing might gain more than someone else who does not enjoy it that much. Music may not make people more intelligent, but it can create a state of mind that supports mental sharpness and learning. The effects are mainly personal, but the brain clearly responds to music in many helpful ways.

Mozart: the connection between music and memory

So, the question remains whether Mozart's music can give a quick boost to memory? The answer is still unclear. The idea of the Mozart effect is interesting, but research shows the impact may be small and short-lived.

Some people may feel more alert and focused after listening, but it does not work the same for everyone. In many cases, the boost in performance depends on how much the person enjoys the music. It is more about the listener's mood and mental state than the music itself. So, while Mozart's music might help some people feel sharper, it is not a guaranteed memory booster.

Several studies have explored the link between the child prodigy's music and memory. In 1993, Rauscher and her team found that listening to Mozart's Sonata in D major gave college students a temporary improvement in spatial reasoning. This result drew a lot of attention. But later research questioned it.

In 2001, Thompson, Schellenberg, and Husain showed that similar effects could come from other music, too. However, the key here is the music must be enjoyed by the listener. This suggested the improvement was not specific to Mozart. Instead, the benefits seemed tied to the emotional response the music triggered. So, the key might be enjoyment and not just the composer.

Conclusion:

Mozart's music may help with learning and memory, but the effects are not unique to his work. Similar results can come from other music people enjoy. The most important factor seems to be how engaging or pleasant the music feels, rather than the specific composer or style.

MORGENSLIFELENS SHARES HER JOURNEY THROUGH NEW SINGLE 'WHEREVER YOU GO'

If there is one thing certain about the music world, it is that the world of music is always changing.

There are only a few artists who bring such a rare and personal perspective as MorgensLifeLens. Known offstage as Morgen Horner, she is a 27-year-old artist and vlogger based in Massachusetts. Throughout her life, the artist has faced obstacles most people cannot imagine, and it has only made her stronger.

Living with Amusia, a rare form of deafness, Morgen has bravely managed to shape her experiences into something creative, something that connects people. This is why her music is different; it does not chase power or status.

Instead, it takes a deeper look at themes often left untouched in the mainstream. Similarly, her vlogs provide audiences with a raw and unfiltered glimpse into her day-to-day life.

Together, her songs and videos form an authentic body of work that connects with listeners who value honesty and resilience.

In new exciting things in her life, the artist has finally released the long-awaited single 'Wherever You Go'. After its release, the video has already gotten a lot of views on YouTube and even earned her a feature in an article celebrating her story.

With upcoming opportunities at radio shows, she is all set to take her music to the big leagues now. These achievements are more than just headlines and numbers for the young soul.

This is the proof that Morgen can do whatever she puts her heart into. She believes in her voice enough to keep creating even through challenges, and that is what the primary message in the song is as well.

The artist has become a symbol of determination. With this new single, she is reminding others that persistence often matters more than the circumstances surrounding you.

'Wherever You Go' is the latest and clearest example of why her work resonates with so many people. The song carries an emotional core that gives a message of both struggle and hope. The production is kept simple, which gives the artist her space, the lyrics to shine, and the vocals to make an impression.

When it comes to the lyrics, they dig into feelings and experiences that speak to resilience and human connection. On the other hand, her vocals are what make the song stand out. It is shaped by her unique relationship with sound.

Furthermore, they add a layer of rawness that cannot be replicated by polish or studio tricks. This is why every line of the song feels so refreshing and alive.

Now that the single is out, MorgensLifeLens is focused on creating more music and finding new platforms for her voice.

While she has not performed a live show yet, she fully plans on getting on that stage and showing a different side of her artistic soul to her audience. She is also working to bring her songs to the radio for the first time, a milestone that could open even more doors.

You can listen to the song on YouTube, Spotify, and Apple Music, along with more of her singles, such as 'A Little Bit Better', 'Invisible Dreams', 'A Million Hearts', 'Not The Burden (Roots That Sew)', etc. Follow her on Facebook, X, TikTok, Instagram, Snapchat, etc. for more updates.

Lollapalooza 2025: The Biggest Dance Party of the Year has taken Place

The four-day-long music festival, Lollapalooza 2025, has recently taken place in Grant Park, Chicago. The excellent performances have amused everyone.

Lollapalooza 2025, the four-day-long music festival, has been a great success this year. This time, all the audiences got to enjoy the festival to the fullest because it didn't rain at the venue.

However, the air quality was poor due to the Canadian wildfire. The audience had to stay at the venue without any breaks due to the rain. That is why people got the chance to enjoy more.

This year, it is coming to see that more people came for the pop queen, Sabrina Carpenter.

It can be said that Sabrina's performance was the highlight of the festival. It seemed like the artist threw a big party at the Lollapalooza.

Her excellent performance has amused all the audiences. She gave an old-school dance performance at the festival.

Sabrina has won everyone's hearts by singing the tracks 'September' and 'Let's Groove'. Along with singing, this pop artist is also known for her magnificent dance performances.

The quirky choreography has made her performance even brilliant.

This year, A$AP Rocky reclaimed his position as the king of Lollapalooza. This artist always goes for the bold moves when it comes to performing at Lollapalooza.

This year, too, Rocky was seen entering the stage while hanging on the side of an aircraft.

He had a set of 15 minutes to perform at the music festival. He was about to enter the stage at 8:55, but it was delayed by a few minutes.

Finally, Rocky came on the stage at 9:02. However, his fans didn't mind as he gave a banging performance after that. He performed on songs like 'Sundress', 'L$D', 'Tailor Swif'. In addition to that, he even gave two surprise performances on 'I Smoked Away My Brain' and 'LVL'.

It was truly excellent to watch at the venue. The artist even said 'I know rap is competitive right now, but I'm gonna spread love tonight. I'm so grateful and humble for this opportunity'.

This year, everyone got to witness a bunch of brilliant performances. Some of the exceptional artists came to perform at Lollapalooza. Other than Sabrina and Rocky, music makers like Mariah the Scientist, Remi Wolf, Landon Barker, Dua Saleh, Katseye, and many more came to perform. The breezy fans are more than happy with their favorite artist bonding with them again, while the full stadium of people join to sing Kelly Rowland's "Dilemma".

Night Two of Breezy Bowl offered some of the most memorable moments, which started with a delay due to the weather conditions. While the thunderstorm hit the city, the fans were taking shelter and hoping for the show to start soon. They kept their spirits high by singing and making TikTok videos.

Some of the daring fans decided to go inside by putting on their ponchos. The fans gave their full heart and support for the show, and it finally paid off with a series of hit tracks by Brown.

When the weather cleared, the show started with opening performances by Summer Walker and Bryson Tiller, and then Breezy hit the stage with a fierce and menacing presence. He was celebrating his 20 years in the music industry, and he surely meant it. The New Jersey performances featured a set list like never before.

Whether it is Lil Jon's "Snap Yo Fingers," or the glitch "I Can Transform Ya;" Brown made sure to mesmerize the audiences. He also did a fair amount of airtime stunts for the iconic performance of "Wall to Wall." After literally reaching new heights, he went down bad with "Take You Down" along with a fan from the crowd.

Justin and Hailey Bieber's Son Jack Blues Bieber Makes His Adorable Music Video Debut

Justin Bieber's son, 11-month-old Jack Blues Bieber, officially makes his music video debut! The singer-songwriter released the music video for 'Yukon' on Tuesday, August 5th, on his Instagram and X accounts.

This is the first music video from his newly released album 'SWAG'. The black-and-white music video was shot by Cole Bennett, an American music video director. It featured special appearances from his wife, Hailey Bieber, and 11-month-old son, Jack Blues Bieber, as Justin sang on screen.

This is the first video that offers fans a more intimate look into Justin's life as a husband and father. The video opens with Justin Bieber on a boat, smiling as he plays with his son Jack on his lap.

The scene then shifts to Jack's tiny legs splashing in the water. Viewers see sweet shots of Bieber kissing his son's toes and Jack reaching for the camera.

One clip further shows the family of three sitting peacefully at the back of the boat. Another special moment captures Hailey holding Jack in her arms closely while standing in the water, smiling at the camera. The video feels raw and intimate, giving fans a rare yet loving glimpse into Justin and Hailey's life as young parents with their baby boy.

This is not the first time Justin Bieber has included his son in his music world. On July 7, he posted photos from the studio where baby Jack made an appearance.

In the snaps, Jack stood near a coffee table surrounded by Bieber and a few friends, two of whom were playing guitars. Bieber looked at his son with a smile, while fairy lights added a warm glow to the space.

He captioned the post with heart emojis, showing how much the moment meant. That post followed another touching video where Bieber was seen playing with Jack outdoors.

In the clip, he gently tickled his son, both of them laughing. Bieber looked relaxed and full of joy as he grinned at the camera, clearly enjoying the moment. He captioned that post with several heart-eye emojis, keeping things simple but full of love. These moments show how much Bieber treasures fatherhood. Fans are seeing a more personal side of the 31-year-old pop star, far from the spotlight and full of warmth.

His son is an evident part of his everyday life, even as an icon of the global pop music industry, and he is not shy to share them with the rest of the world.

Justin and Hailey tied the knot in September 2018. The couple renewed their vows 6 years later in May 2024, just months before Jack was born.

Since then, both the singer and Rhode founder have offered fans sweet glimpses of their growing family.

From peaceful days at home to sunlit moments by the pool, their posts have captured it all.

In June, Bieber shared summer photos with Jack near a pool. Though he kept his little boy's face private, the love was pretty clear.

One caption read "Ay bay bay," showing the 'Purpose' singer's fun and loving side as a dad.

Billie Piper as Wednesday's Music Teacher is the Perfect Casting

Wednesday season 2 is out, and it is already garnering fans' attention for its amazing storyline and character development. One of the characters that caught people's attention was Billie Piper as the music teacher in Wednesday's school, Nevermore.

Music has always been an essential part of the Addams Family franchise, whether it is for a Broadway musical or a spooky score at a film or TV show.

Additionally, the Addams Family theme song, written by Vic Mizzy is still one of the most iconic songs in Horror history. So, it is a good thing that the hit Netflix show, Wednesday, embraced this aspect of the franchise, as viewers can see Jenna Ortega even playing Cello.

Season 1 of the Wednesday show featured some of the coolest Cello covers like The Rolling Stones' 'Paint It Black'.

This musical trend continued even in season 2 with more iconic songs and a brand new music teacher at school. Wednesday Addams already knows how to play the cello in season 1.

But she has no one to help her refine her skills. That changes in season 2. Nevermore Academy hires Isadora Capri, a child musical prodigy and werewolf, as the new music teacher.

In the show, she forms a tense bond with Wednesday as the teacher pushes her to aim for perfection. Isadora Capri is played by Billie Piper, who once starred in Doctor Who. Piper is a great fit for Wednesday's teacher because she had a big music career before she became a well-known actor.

In two of the four episodes in season 2, part 1, Piper's character sings, and the show uses her real vocals. This is not surprising, as singing is how Piper first made her name. She stayed in that career until 2003, when she switched her focus to acting.

Piper signed with a record label at just the age of 15. Her debut single 'Because We Want To' went straight to number one on the UK Singles Chart. She became the youngest female artist to debut at the top.

Her first album, Honey to the B, reached platinum in the UK and double platinum in New Zealand.

Piper's songs on the UK Top 10:

'Because We Want To'
'Girlfriend'
'She Wants You'
'Honey to the Bee'
'Day & Night'
'Something Deep Inside'

However, Billie Piper is not the only actor who has used their real voice in Wednesday season 2. Catherine Zeta-Jones, who plays Wednesday's mother, Morticia Addams, also sang a duet with Piper. They covered Creedence Clearwater Revival's 'Bad Moon Rising' in one episode.

On the other hand, Zeta-Jones had a brief music career herself. In the early '90s, the star played Velma Kelly in 'Chicago', the movie adaptation starring Renée Zellweger and Richard Gere.

While the actress's singing might not have helped her land the role of Morticia Addams in Wednesday, the viewers surely enjoyed her making use of her musical abilities this season.

Cardi B Just Shared the Music Video for "Imaginary Playerz" with New Jay-Z Sampling

Rap queen Cardi B has come up with her highly anticipated track "Imaginary Playerz" and it is currently buzzing among all fans. This song appears on her upcoming single 'Am I the Drama?' and it includes Jay-Z's OG sample.

Cardi B has also confirmed the fact that he accepted this song and homage.

The rapper shared in a post on social media, "If he didn't approve it, I probably wouldn't even feel a certain type of way neither, because it's like, 'OK, maybe I just had to come a little bit harder,'" and further added, "But I'm glad that I came hard and he loved it." The music production for the latest track has been handled by OctaneThisThatGas, DJ SwanQo, and lastly, Sean Island.

The direction for the music video is taken care of by the rapper herself, along with Patientce Foster.

The official music video for the track "Imaginary Playerz" offers a highly swanky representation of creating a hip-hop empire.

The upcoming album project 'Am I the Drama?' is highly anticipated among the fans as it is the second studio album by the rapper, and the sophomore project is set to be released on September 19.

This album will also include the previously released songs that became instant hits, such as "WAP", "Outside", and "Up".

Cardi B launched her career with the success of her first album 'Invasion of Privacy,' which was released back in 2018, and it took much time for her second album project. However, the time taken is well-utilized for the development of this album, and that reflects through each song.

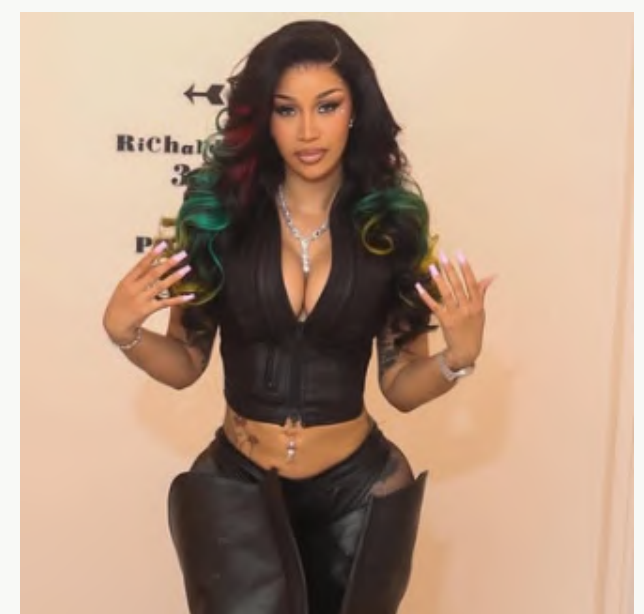

The latest rendition of "Imaginary Playerz" is quite a creative project that offers the female perspective of Hov's iconic bars from the original track in 1997. The music video also showcases Cardi B's unwavering personality and fashion sense with some of the most luxurious outfits.

It seems like she is taking a world tour as she flies from New York City and then reaches a yacht in Mykonos, Greece.

Lastly, she reaches Paris in France and while spitting the bars like "I'm the one who showed these girls what fashion could be." There is no doubt that Cardi is reclaiming her place in the industry while showcasing an ultra-luxurious display of her success.

She is the mother of three and the rap queen of the industry!

'Am I The Drama?' is going to be the most contagious hip-hop album with a total of 23 tracks.

After watching the video, one of her fans said 'just passed out'. One also stated, 'SEE YOU NEXT YEAR!'. Along with her fans, many celebrities have also shown how excited they are about Ariana's next project. Chris Olsen, the influencer, said 'i knew i felt a shift in the universe a few minutes ago'. On the other hand, the comedian, Chris Klemens, stated 'well i can put down the coffee ive been chugging bcim AWAKE'. In addition to that, Rachel Zegler also just said 'well!!!!!!'.

It can be said that the announcement has left everyone immensely shocked, surprised, and excited at the same time. Ariana Grande is slowly creating anticipation among everyone. She said, 'sing for you all next year' in the previous month.

This profound singer isn't leaving any chance to amuse her fans. Along with being a larger-than-life music creator, she is still showcasing her acting talent. Last year, her movie 'Wicked' came out, leaving everyone stunned.

In 2024, she performed at the Met Gala, which was extremely astonishing. All of her fans thought she was focusing on her acting career. However, she surprisingly said, 'very silly of you all to assume that just because i have my hands full with many things that i plan to abandon singing & music'.

All her statements indicate that she is all set to offer something more to her fans. Now everyone has no other option but to wait till next year for the release.

Taylor Boosting Eagerness with Another Countdown After 'The Life of a Showgirl'

Taylor Swift is building anticipation among her Swifties with a mysterious countdown on her website. A week ago, the pop star gave a countdown on her website, which turned out to be for her upcoming music album, named 'The Life of a Showgirl'. This massive news has generated a huge buzz among all her fans. No one was expecting the artist to deliver a full album this early. Taylor was doing her Eras Tour for a long time, and it has only been a few months since its end. And she is ready with her next music project.

On 18 th August, her fans noticed another new countdown on her website. Previously, it came to see that the backdrop of the album announcement timer was orange. But the new one has a sparkly purple backdrop. The countdown was set to expire at 2 p.m. ET. Other than that, she didn't give any further information about the countdown. It can be said that Taylor is creating a sensation with her upcoming release. For the past few weeks, the pop artist has surprised all Swifties with astounding pieces of information.

has left everyone restless as she shared another countdown on her website after 'The Life of a Showgirl', and that is creating more buzz.

On 12 th August, she revealed that her new album is about to be released. Before that, she didn't release any cover art, track list, and not even the release date. So, getting the new one out of nowhere was a little shocking for everyone. On 13 th August, Taylor also said, '[The album is] a lot more upbeat, and it's a lot more fun pop excitement. My main goals were melodies that were so infectious, you're almost angry at it ... This is the record I've been wanting to make for a very long time' on Travis Kelce's podcast, New Heights.

As of now, it is coming to known that the LP is now available for pre-order. She has also come up with different editions of it that are known as 'Sweet and Vanilla Perfume' edition, 'It's Rapturous' version, 'It's Frightening' edition, and 'It's Beautiful' edition. This artist always comes up with something innovative for her listeners. And this time too, she is preparing something new for the Swifties.

Her fans are still overwhelmed and dealing with the massive Eras Tour. She has done a total of 151 shows on this particular tour. Over the span of 21 months, she did all the shows. And after a few months, Taylor is coming back with something exciting for all. All of her admirers are eagerly waiting for the new album release. The album will be available on 3 rd October. So, it is only a matter of a month and then 'The Life of a Showgirl' will be for all.

Himesh Reshamiya Got Featured on Bloomberg's Global Pop Power List

It is time for music producer Himesh Reshamiya to flex his presence in the Indian music industry as he becomes the only artist from India to get featured in the prestigious Global Pop Power List by Bloomberg.

The singer cum musician continues to thrill audiences even after so many years in Bollywood. Himesh Reshamiya's successful music career spans over two decades, and the artist has provided a number of smash hit tracks that captivated audiences.

Now, he has come to the top headline again after the feature on Bloomberg's Global Pop Power List.

The list includes some of the most successful pop artists from around the world, including Bruno Mars, Post Malone, Beyoncé, and many others.

Reshamiya becomes the only Indian artist to get featured in the list at no. 22nd. Some of the other artists from the list are Bad Bunny, Billie Eilish, Coldplay, Sabrina Carpenter, J-Hope, Shakira, Lady Gaga, ED Sheeran, and Katseye.

According to the report, "Approximately 120,000 people applied to participate in the resulting, globe-spanning experiment. Throughout the process, fans joined in. Using Hybe's audience app Weverse, they cast votes on who should survive the fierce elimination process." Therefore, it is evident that global listeners know Reshamiya well.

Himes did not miss the opportunity to showcase this achievement, and he utilized social media to repost congratulatory messages through Instagram stories. Starting from his friends to his ardent fans, everybody offered love and support for this amazing feat.

Last month, Himesh Reshamiya's powerful performance was witnessed by the fans at Saregama Live's Capmania Delhi.

There were thousands of people, and Reshamiya joined the crowd to sing his hit numbers like 'Jhalak Dikhla Ja', 'Tera Suroor', 'Hookah Bar', 'Aashiqui Mein Teri', etc, to name some.

There were also other singers who joined the stage to sing his hit tracks, namely Arjun Tanwar, Pragati Nagpal, and Maahi. Give Himesha the stage, and he will make sure to set it on fire with his amazing racks.

However, when it comes to the work front, Himesh's last work in Badass Ravi Kumar was not a well-crafted project.

It was a knock-off project of The Xpose, the film, and it was shot in India and Oman. Although they tried hard, the movie only made ₹10.98 crore globally.

Some of the other artists from the movie are Johnny Lever, Sanjay Mishra, Prabhu Deva, Simona J, Saurabh Sachdeva, and Kirti Kulhari.

JONITA GANDHI JOINS THE HELLO GROUP UNDER EXCLUSIVE INTERNATIONAL DEAL

The Hello Group has just announced that it has signed Canadian-Indian singer-songwriter Jonita Gandhi for an exclusive worldwide management and booking deal. This deal excludes India.

Jonita Gandhi is a global artist whose work blends Pop, R&B, and Dancehall and spans culture. The South Asian artist has established herself as one of the most versatile musicians of her generation over the last decade. She has massively continued in bringing Bollywood music to the global music scene as well. This is not something that only her fans say, but her catalog is living proof of her versatility. She has done playback singing for hit Bollywood songs like ‘SoniSoni’ from Ishq Vishk Rebound, ‘Yedi’ from Nilavuku En Mel Ennadi Kobam, ‘What Jhumka?’ from Rocky Aur Rani, and ‘Deva Deva’ from Brahmāstra. She also worked as a crossover artist in multiple projects, including her solo single ‘Beparwai’ and her EP ‘Love Like That’. Jonita Gandhi stands as one of the most-streamed South Asian artists today, with over 16 million monthly listeners on Spotify and billions of streams worldwide.

Her powerful voice has taken her to global stages, including Lollapalooza and the JUNO Awards. In 2025, her hit Love Like That received a nomination for South Asian Music Recording of the Year, marking another milestone. With each release and performance, Jonita strengthens her place as a true international force in music.

In addition to this, her collaborations span both the Indian and international music scenes. In India, Gandhi has worked with artists like Arijit Singh, A.R. Rahman, Pritam, Karan Aujla, Darshan Raval, and Divine. On the other hand, her global collaborators include the band The Chainsmokers. Jonita Gandhi’s first project with The Hello Group came through her collaboration with The Chainsmokers and Zerb on the South Asian version of Addicted, A&R’d by Taylor Jones. The success of that release laid the groundwork for a deeper partnership with the company. Over the years, Jonita has also earned major honors, including Best Female Playback Singer at the Mirchi Music Awards in 2019.

Now, through her exclusive deal with The Hello Group, which is an agency dedicated to elevating South Asian talent to international stages, the artist is stepping into an exciting new era. The CEO of Hello Group, Taylor Jones, said, “This moment has been carefully built on time, trust, and a shared vision. Jonita is an extraordinary artist, and I’m immensely proud of how she continues to evolve. My team and I are fully committed to fueling her global ambitions, and we can’t wait for the world to experience her next chapter.”

Bollywood Rain Era is Back with 'Bheegi Saree' Music Video from Param Sundari

Groove with the latest song 'Bheegi Saree' along with its official video, where audiences can find Sidharth Malhotra and Janhvi Kapoor oozing sizzling chemistry. The music video for the latest song, 'Bheegi Saree', has created a major sensation among Indians with its steamy and drenched representation. The track features an amazing chemistry between Sidharth Malhotra and Janhvi Kapoor, and it is officially bringing back the Bollywood Rain era. Rain and romance are always a good combination that has been used to showcase the sizzling side of the Bollywood couples in the movies, and the '90s are making a comeback through the songs of 'Param Sundari'. A major portion of the song feels like an improvised reflection of the Bollywood OG song 'Tip Tip Barsa Paani', where Raveena Tandon offered a bold performance with Akshay Kumar while being clad in a drenched saree. The utilization of rain and romantic choreography remains almost the same without the need for a signature step.

The song 'Bheegi Saree' is composed by Sachin-Jigar and they have kept the musical arrangement simple and enjoyable. As usual Amitabh Bhattacharya offered the lyrics for the song which is perfect for a wet romantic track. What is most attractive for the listeners is the vocal clarity that the song has received by bringing back the legendary singers of Bollywood, namely Shreya Ghoshal and Adnan Sami. It seems like their voice have remained the same through all these years as they are still as beautiful as they were decades back. It is an enjoyable song and stands out for offering nostalgia. The song 'Bheegi Saree' provides a seductive depiction of romance, bringing back the taste of Bollywood from the 2000s through its visual representation, music, and the singers who have won millions of hearts.

However, it is still not certain whether 'Param Sundari' will be able to bring the Bollywood OG era through its story and cinematic representation or not. This movie by Maddock Films is all set to release on 29th August, and only a theater release can offer authentic audience feedback for this film by Tushar Jalota. The soundtrack for the movie looks like a tribute to the retro era, as the previous track, 'Pardesiya', also offers the essence of a true-blue classic love song from Bollywood.

The whole album for the film is well-made, but somehow it fails to stand out as a refreshing track, as it comes with familiarity. Check out the official music video on YouTube right now.

Sunburn Festival Moves from Goa to Mumbai This Year - But Why?

Sunburn Festival is shifting its venue from Goa to Mumbai this year.

The biggest musical event will take place from 19th to 21st December with thousands of fans. India has a deep legacy of classical ragas and timeless rhythms, yet it is also the stage for one of Asia's biggest electronic dance music gatherings, Sunburn Festival.

For nearly twenty years, the festival has brought world-famous DJs and EDM fans together with hands in the air, lights flashing, and the crowd moving as one.

It mostly happened in Goa. However, things are changing this year. From 19 to 21 December, Sunburn will swap Goa's peaceful shores for the high-energy vibe of Mumbai.

For three straight days, the city's nights will pulse with powerful beats and dazzling visuals with thousands of fans dancing until the first light of dawn.

Mumbai shares a special history with Sunburn. Avicii in 2011 and Swedish House Mafia in 2013 brought unforgettable nights to the city during Sunburn Arena.

Now, a recent survey by the organisers shows fans are eager to see the flagship festival beyond Goa. "One in two respondents were keen to explore the festival outside Goa, with a clear preference for Mumbai," the official statement read. This growing demand set the stage for Sunburn's big move to the city this year.

According to a music lover who has toured festivals across India, "Sunburn moving to Mumbai could be a welcome change. I have been to the city recently for some shows and the crowd really gets the vibe each time. Though Goa is unmatched when it comes to EDM and trance fests, Mumbai (to some extent) is the next best replacement, at least in terms of the crowd."

Sunburn Festival announced the update on Instagram, saying, "The journey evolves - Almost 20 years of music, memories, and magic. Sunburn Festival 2025 arrives in Mumbai: fresh energy, better access, and a whole new vibe. From unforgettable sunsets to electrifying nights - we've shared almost 20 years of magic."

Now, the next chapter brings us home. Let's create history. Again ???" The shift comes as Sunburn earned the 8th spot on DJ Mag's prestigious 'Top 100 Festivals of 2025,' solidifying its place on the global music map.

Karan Singh, the CEO of Sunburn, said, "Goa has been an integral part of that story and will always be close to us, but building a legacy also means taking it forward. Bringing Sunburn to Mumbai feels like the right step, creating new energy and connections in a city that never stands still. The city's creative pulse and deep ties to youth culture make it the perfect stage for what's next."

Since its inception in 2007, Sunburn Festival has made Goa a hub for music lovers from around the world, drawing top international DJs and artists.

From Sunburn Arena and Reload to Campus and the flagship festival, each edition brings a unique experience and expands its global reach.

Over the years, the stage has hosted some of EDM's biggest names, including Martin Garrix, Skrillex, Swedish House Mafia, Alan Walker, Armin van Buuren, DJ Snake, Tiësto, The Chainsmokers, David Guetta, and Hardwell.

Ed Sheeran Reunites with Rupert Grint for a Wild New Music Video

Ed Sheeran is bringing back his doppelgänger, Harry Potter star Rupert Grint, for an upcoming music video, 'A Little More'. The video is scheduled to release on August 7.

Ed Sheeran is coming back with an "utterly bonkers" music video as the singer-songwriter teased his fans in a recent post. This will be a music video for his song 'A Little More', which will feature the return of Rupert Grint, his stalker.

The 4-times Grammy Winner took to Instagram to share a short clip featuring Grint, the Harry Potter star. The clip also showcases Grint visibly looking worse as he walked out of a prison, possibly for stalking Sheeran. The previous appearance of the Harry Potter star was on Lego House, Sheeran's music video that was released back in 2011. In the music video, Rupert was seen playing a character of a stalker, seemingly portraying the life of Ed Sheeran.

Grint wrote songs as Ed Sheeran, lounged on a tour bus, and even got on stage as the singer in front of a cheering crowd. However, his fever dream broke when the security tackled him to get off the stage. At this point, the viewers immediately realize that he is just an obsessive fan, trying to live Ed Sheeran's life as Ed Sheeran.

As the video continues, Rupert's obsession grows astonishingly. The video ends with the two running into each other as Rupert is being forcibly removed from the venue of a music video. Now, with this short glimpse of the music video, it is seemingly clear that Rupert has spent the last few years in jail for stalking and is now finally walking out as a free man.

Showing his excitement for the upcoming music video, Ed Sheeran shared the teaser clip on Instagram with a caption, "4 years later me and @rupertgrint are reunited. I had this wild idea after writing the song, and thankfully Rupert was up for it."

He then continued, "It's an utterly bonkers video for a very upbeat, fun, but angry song. Think this one is gonna be a lot of people's fav song from Play. Out Thursday, watch out for more stuff coming."

The video features Grint walking out of prison in an orange jumper.

After he walks out, a selection of old clips from the 'Lego House' music video plays before the words that Rupert was seen walking down the street. The clip then reveals that the music video will be released on 7th August.

Fans did not waste any time before commenting on the post, showcasing how obsessively happy they are as Ed and Rupert are reuniting. "Omg he was on prison all these years," one comment read.

Another fan posted, "I'm so excited for this because when the Lego House video came out I was a huge Rupert fan at the time and that's what introduced me to Ed's music."

"Lego house is one of my favouritesss, super excited for a little more!!!?" one excited fan wrote, as another one added, "14 freaking years ago. We're all getting old over here. Mad."

'A Little More' is another single that will be featured on Sheeran's upcoming album 'Play'. The album will be released on 12th September 2025, and features hit singles like 'Azizam', 'Old Phone', and 'Sapphire'.

Taylor Swift Announces Her 12th Studio Album 'The Life of a Showgirl'

Taylor Swift is coming back with a brand new album! The 'Shake it Off' singer announced her next studio album, 'The Life of a Showgirl', on 12th August at midnight.

On 11th August, Monday night, Taylor Swift sent the internet into detective mode once again when her website suddenly lit up with a countdown clock.

The clock was ticking toward 12.12 a.m. Eastern Standard Time on 12th August. Fans, of course, knew something big was coming, and they were right. Swift has officially announced her next studio album, 'The Life of a Showgirl'.

This will be her 12th studio album and a follow-up to 2024's 'The Tortured Poets Department' and its extended edition, 'The Anthology'. Pre-orders are already live on her website.

However, she is keeping the actual release date a secret for now, in true Swift fashion. The surprises did not stop there. She is set to make a guest appearance on New Heights on Wednesday.

It is a podcast hosted by her boyfriend, Kansas City Chiefs star Travis Kelce, and his brother Jason Kelce.

Swift casually teased this new era in a preview clip posted on Instagram as she pulled out a mini green briefcase with bold orange "TS" lettering. "I want to show you something," Swift said before revealing her brand new album. "This is my brand new album, The Life of a Showgirl."

The cover art? Well, it is blurred beyond recognition. The message? It was just classic Taylor: keep the Swifties guessing and let the hype build until her big reveal!

In May, a re-recorded version of 'Look What You Made Me Do' was featured in the final season of The Handmaid's Tale. It was the lead single from Taylor Swift's 2017 album 'Reputation'.

Many fans then expected this to signal the imminent release of 'Reputation (Taylor's Version)'. Instead, Swift revealed later that month that she had bought back the master recordings for her first six albums.

They were originally acquired by Scooter Braun's Ithaca Holdings in 2019 and later sold to Shamrock Capital in 2020.

She then confirmed a re-recorded version of her self-titled debut is complete, but suggested that 'Reputation' (Taylor's Version) may not be finished yet.

The Eras Tour came to an end on 8th December, 2025, after nearly two years and 149 shows. With more than $2 billion in ticket sales, it became the highest-grossing tour in history.

The massive undertaking also inspired a companion book and a three-hour concert film. At the 2025 Grammy Awards, Swift bagged six nominations, but sadly left without a win.

However, she still had a standout moment when she presented Beyoncé with the Best Country Album award.

Swift first announced 'The Tortured Poets Department' onstage at the 2024 Grammys.

It was moments after her win of Best Pop Vocal Album for 'Midnights'. The record debuted at No. 1 on the Billboard 200 and became her 14th chart-topper.

The album also shattered the vinyl LP sales record, previously owned by Swift herself, and became the first album to reach one billion streams on Spotify in a single week.

These achievements tied Taylor Swift with Jay-Z for the most No. 1 albums by a solo artist, which further cemented her dominance in the music industry.

CARDI B TEASES HER HIGHLY ANTICIPATED SOPHOMORE ALBUM WITH NEW SINGLE

Get ready for Grammy Award-winning rapper Cardi B's rap magic as the 'WAP' creators have announced the date for the release of her upcoming track "Imaginary Players". Rap queen Cardi B is ready to proceed with her discography after a long journey of collaboration, and she is already teasing her upcoming album with another new track. This is going to be her second studio album, and the fans are quite happy about the release.

The upcoming album is called 'Am I The Drama', which sounds like a rhetorical question for the listeners. On Monday, August 11, Cardi B declared the release date for the new single "Imaginary Players," which is appearing on the upcoming album. The Grammy Award-winning rapper is paying tribute to Jay-Z as he has also dropped a banger with the same name, "Imaginary Players," which appeared in her album 'In My Lifetime, Vol. 1' that was released back in 1997.

Cardi B and her partner Stefon Diggs had already foreshadowed the song's release around two months ago on Instagram. Soon after making the post, the rapper came live on Instagram and talked about her upcoming single and what it is about. She said, "This single is really how I talk all day, every day but in a song." The rapper further continued, "It's like real flex s**t, real calm flex s**t type s**t, you know what I'm saying?"

The 'WAP' rapper further said, "If only y'all knew the story for what I had to go through with this single and to do something else but when the song come out I'm going to tell y'all more about the story." In the recent Instagram Post, the rapper has also shared a picture with the caption "Just a lil taste of the drama. IMAGINARY PLAYERS THIS FRIDAY".

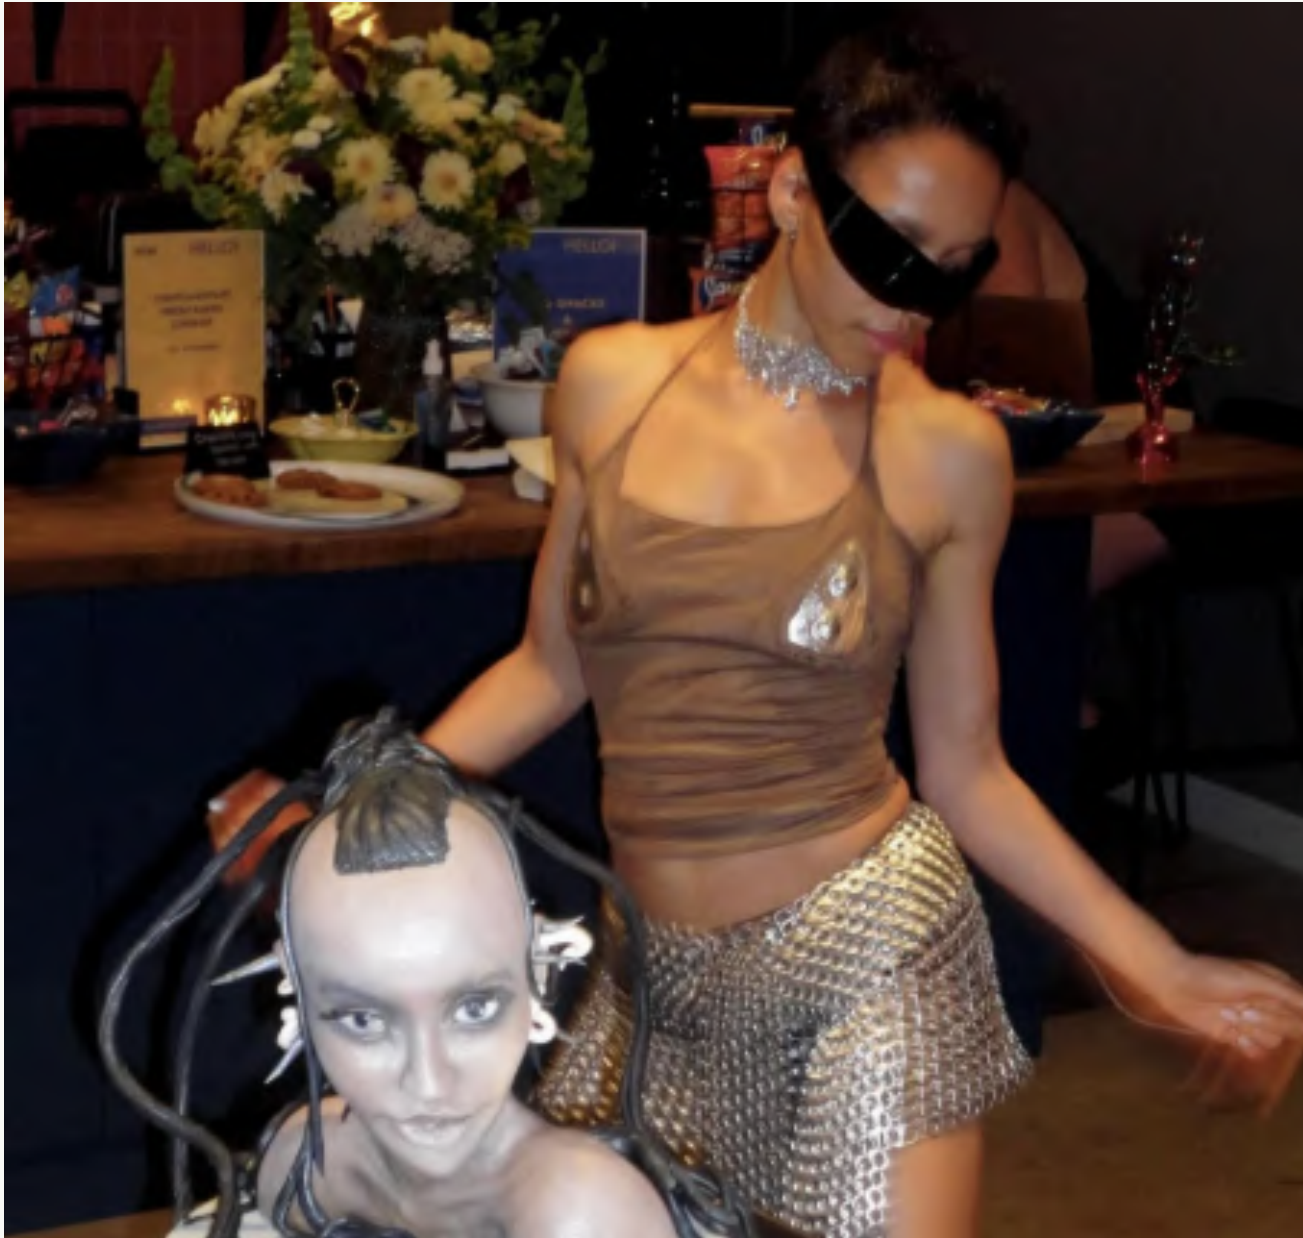

In the photo, the rapper could be seen in an all-white faux fur coat along with iconic pink hair. She could be seen sitting in front of a classic Rolls-Royce model, which is also white. The most iconic part of the outfit is the runway boots worn by the rapper, which are designed by Marc Jacobs himself. It goes without saying that the anticipation for the new single is as high as the upcoming album.

The release of this latest banger comes after a couple of weeks of Cardi's first hosting night for WWE SummerSlam, which took place in New Jersey. She teased an unreleased track from her upcoming album, but the release is not confirmed yet. "Imaginary Players," on the other hand, is all set to drop this Friday.

FKA Twigs About to Release Her Latest Album 'EUSEXUA Afterglow'

FKA Twigs is all set to release her upcoming album 'EUSEXUA Afterglow', which is making fans more excited than ever. The artist is going to release the album soon. FKA Twigs announced her upcoming album, named 'EUSEXUA Afterglow'. The artist has a hint about her album and said 'Newmusic – I am full and abundant and ready to give birth. Her name is 'Afterglow'. And my labour shall commence next month'. As she dropped the release of a whole new album, it generated a huge buzz among everyone. Previously, last month, the artist gave an uptempo pop soundtrack that is known as 'Perfectly'. At the beginning, everyone thought it was a part of the upcoming album, but the artist hasn't made any announcement regarding that.

Regarding the release, from the media it came to know that 'Twigs has successfully shown that the connection of music, movement, mind, soul and body can be converted into sound, weaving these elements into a cohesive and transcendent artistic experience. She brings her own assured sense of creativity and spirituality and combines it with her ability to materialise the intangible. As the album's closing track says, "You've one life to live, do it freely". What better note to leave it on?'

Now, all of her fans are waiting for the release. Previously, she came up with the album 'Eusexua', which made a huge impact on the audience. FKA Twigs gave a wide range of songs in the album, and that is what helped her to accumulate more listeners.

That is why everyone is expecting that with the upcoming album, too, she is going to offer some innovative pieces of music. Along with releasing new music, she is amusing all with her live performances as well. However, recently it came to know that she has dropped out of Coachella. She has lined up shows for Europe and the United States.

She also stated regarding the Coachella show that 'I was informed that production did not fill out the correct paperwork in a timely manner for us to have our visas to come to the USA and perform'.

'Eusexua' has been a special project of the artist, and in March she brought it to London. It has gotten much appreciation and received statements like 'Dancers hang chains connected to her dress to all four corners of the box and every spotlight is rigged onto her; Twigs has no choice but to bare her soul to the crowd.

To end the set with a song that expresses such spiritual suffering with some of the most magnificent vocals is truly brave; every tremble and crack in her voice is deeply felt, and it's the most connected we feel to her all night. Now that's 'Eusexua'.

SABRINA CARPENTER UNVEILS 'TEARS' MUSIC VIDEO

Sabrina Carpenter drops the dazzling 'Tears' video featuring Colman Domingo in drag, released with her seventh album 'Man's Best Friend', packed with bold energy. Sabrina Carpenter has arrived in full force! The pop star has just released her seventh studio album, 'Man's Best Friend'. But that was not the only surprise for the Carpenters. Sabrina has released the brand new music video for her single 'Tears'.

The long-awaited record finally dropped Friday, paired with the striking video for its second track, 'Tears'. The video features Colman Domingo in drag. The cinematic clip begins with Carpenter in a pale blue skirt suit and wide sun hat, regaining consciousness after a car crash. Her boyfriend appears lifeless in the driver's seat as she stumbles from the wreck and wanders toward a desolate house in the middle of nowhere. Curious and shaken, she peers through the doorway and catches a glimpse of fishnet-clad legs inside.

Before she can process what she has seen, the door creaks open and pulls her into a surreal encounter. Waiting for her is Domingo, dressed in a cropped pinstripe suit with bold red lipstick, exuding both menace and allure. The sequence captures the eerie tension of the track itself, blurring reality and dream in a way that is both unsettling and captivating. The camera trails the singer through crooked halls and tilted rooms, each turn revealing dazzling characters and wild and unpredictable scenes. You can see chaos sparkling in every corner, yet the star moves with purpose. She sings the chorus as if she is guiding the madness. The surreal setting becomes her own stage, which blends glamour and disorder into one captivating performance. In the chorus, Carpenter sings, "I get wet at the thought of you/Being a responsible guy/Treating me like you're supposed to do/Tears run down my thighs."

The lively dance break unfolds with Domingo shimmying beside the 'Espresso' singer. He adds flair to their surreal journey. The moment then bursts with playful energy. As the video ends, the Grammy winner delivers a cheeky reminder to the audience, "You have to give the people what they want." This further sealed the spectacle with charm.

The video quickly gained over 1 million views, and her fans are more than excited to see Sabrina in this new role. The comments on YouTube under the video have been nothing but supportive, with YouTube itself commenting, "no one does a music video like sabrina". Some of the other comments read, "The fact that this MV is giving Rocky Horror reference and we all are here for this!", "I just love it when actors become popstars because they give us top-tier visuals, cinematography, and acting like this. What an amazing crossover.", "This isn't just a MV, this is a whole movie! Love this", etc.

Carpenter's seventh studio album 'Man's Best Friend' delivers 12 tracks, where 10 songs are marked explicit. It is a bold move that aligns pretty well with her daring image. The tone was set early with its provocative cover art that showed the 'Taste' singer posed on her hands and knees while someone grabs a fistful of her blonde hair, sparking controversy even before the album's release.

She said her new album was "all about sort of embracing spontaneity, all about embracing impulses that I was having and experiences that I was having that were really urgent to write about." "And knowing that if I didn't make this album and have it represent the chapter of my life that it represents, that it would have never been this album. It would have turned into something else, and I think that would have done it as a service to the album," the singer continued.

English singer Jade has already performed in multiple shows and for thousands of people with a meteoric rise in her music career. Now, it is time for the artist to launch her debut album project, and she is prepared for it! After making appearances in multiple music festivals like Radio 1's Big Weekend, Glastonbury, and Mighty Hoopla, she is now launching her debut album project, called "That's Showbiz Baby!". This solo album is scheduled to be released on September 12 under the label of Sony Music U.K. and RCA Records, and there will be a total of 14 songs in the album.

Last Year, Jade gained global attention with the solo single release of "Angel of My Dreams," which debuted her pop musical career. The synth-pop energy in the track, along with Jade's magical voice, did not fail to captivate the listeners, and became a top 10 hit in the United Kingdom. The upcoming album will also feature 'IT Girl,' which is one of the standout tracks from her musical career.

Talking about this song, the artist said, "It's got a certain cheekiness — I'm a laugh-at-my-trauma kind of girl, and I really enjoy writing music that ruffles people's feathers because that's what art should do." And then, she boldly claimed, "Those are my experiences, and now that I'm on my own, there's nothing holding me back from telling that truth."

It goes without saying that Little Mix has a significant influence on Jade's music career, and she had this urge to continue the band's momentum even after its hiatus in 2022. However, she felt that most of her musical projects sound like the band's own production only, and it was important for the artist to figure out her individuality to find her authentic creativity. She said, "It was essential that I took a good two, three years to figure out who I am." She constantly nurtured her skills along with music producers like Mike Sabath, Cirkut, and Lostboy.

Jade is highly inspired by Madonna, Janet Jackson, Gwen Stefani, and many other female pop stars who are best known for their bold persona that reflects through their music as well. "That's Showbiz Baby!" will offer a mixed taste of pop that is balanced and creative enough to captivate all kinds of music lovers. Dealing with vulnerability, insecurities, and the artist's own life, each song from the album can help fans know the artist better.
