Miley Cyrus Got Engaged to Maxx Morando after Dating for 4 Years

Popstar Miley Cyrus has made her fans go crazy by revealing her engagement with Maxx Morando. The couple has been dating for four years since 2021, and they are finally getting hitched. The news went viral on Tuesday and soon spread through social media like fire. The couple appeared on the red carpet for the premiere of 'Avatar: Fire and Ash'.

Miley was spotted with her fiancé at the film's screening, which took place in Los Angeles on Monday. Miley Cyrus has offered her voice for the song "Dream as One," which is utilized in the Avatar sequel.

She embraced the moment with a new gold band on her ring finger, and it was shining bright along with her glow. Within the next day, it was confirmed that it was the engagement ring that she received recently. Fans are quite happy to receive this news after 4 years of the couple dating each other since 2021. Miley recalled her first meeting with Morando and told the media back in 2023, "We got put on a blind date," and further added, "Well, it was blind for me and not really for him. I thought, 'The worst that can happen is I leave.'" The two musicians are finally engaged now, and they seem to be quite happy with this progress to the next step.

They have previously worked together, and there are many hit collaborative projects by these musicians. Morando helped in the development of Cyrus's latest albums, like Endless Summer Vacation and Something Beautiful.

Cyrus also became a member of the Spotify Billions Club, and it was celebrated through a concert that took place in Paris this year. Morando, who is famous for playing for the Liily band, accompanied Miley with his guitar skills. It goes without saying that Hannah Montana or Miley Cyrus found her way out of a terrible breakup with her ex-husband, Liam Hemsworth.

She and Liam started dating in 2009, and they got married in 2017. But soon enough, the couple got divorced. The level of toxicity is well explained in the song 'Flowers', which instantly became a hit among the listeners.

When it comes to her new partner, Morando, Miley seems to be quite happy and enjoying her time. A lot of people asked her about Morando being 6 years younger than him and how it affects the relationship.

Miley offered a clear explanation and said, "He's very similar to me," and also added, "We just don't take life too seriously." And that seems like the secret ingredient to a happy marriage. Either way, Miley and Morando are looking forward to bright romantic days ahead, and fans are happy to see them together!

Remembering the Legacy: Top 10 Songs of Dharmendra that Defined Romance and Life

Bollywood always loved to place its heroes in neat boxes. Some carried a tough look while the others leaned into soft romance. Dharmendra moved past all that. He stepped into the frame with an ease that felt natural for him. He fought on screen with real force. He even did it once in a Roman skirt and still looked in full command. Dharmendra also knew how to slow the moment down. One big example is how he sang to his leading ladies with a warmth that brightens the faces of viewers watching him. This is what made his songs classics. The action scenes in Dharmendra's movies shaped a whole era.

The mix of his angry, macho look and softness as a romantic leading man made him feel more human and more complete. With the sad news of the legend's passing, we have jotted down the top 10 songs of Dharmendra's astonishing career of 65 years and more than 300 films that sum up the emotions of love and life.

1. 'Aaj Mausam Bada Beimaan Hai':

Dharmendra shares a warm and tender moment with Mumtaz in this 1973 romantic track sung by Mohammed Rafi, whose voice literally shaped many of the finest songs in Dharmendra's career. The song, 'Aaj Mausam', moves with the soft rush that comes with new love. Anand Bakshi's writing brings that feeling alive through simple images drawn from the world around us. The scene flows with an easy charm that only Dharmendra could carry, and he carried it so well in that phrase of his life. His presence on the screen felt light, yet so full of life. This song lived on for many years and reached a new audience when Karan Johar used a fresh version of it in the 2023 film Rocky Aur Rani Kii Prem Kahani. In that scene, an older Dharmendra shares a gentle and graceful moment with Shabana Azmi, linking his past and present.

2. 'Pal Pal Dil Ke Paas':

Kishore Kumar brings a soft and deep tone to this song from the 1973 film Blackmail. The scene opens with Rakhee's character holding a letter from the man she loves. Dharmendra plays that role with a calm strength that feels steady. As she reads his words, the mood shifts into a gentle space. He tells her that she stays in his heart at all times. It is a simple line that carries a lot of feeling. The film lets this moment grow as she drifts into her thoughts. She starts to picture him as he sings the song with that steady gaze he was known for. The mix of voice and memory builds a tender pull between them. The song turns into a quiet bridge, which showcases his confession on paper with the way she feels in her own mind.

3. 'Aap Ke Haseen Rukh Pe':

Dharmendra and Mala Sinha came together in this black and white love ballad sung by Rafi for the 1966 film BaharenPhirBhiAayengi. The project first had Guru Dutt in the lead, but after his sudden passing, Dharmendra took on the role and made it feel alive with his quiet charm. The song moves with a slow and subtle grace. It draws a picture of a lover's beauty warmly and honestly. Anjaan's writing keeps the emotion in the song clear and gentle. Dharmendra matches that tone with a presence that feels calm and steady, a feeling that every person needs in their lives. Mala Sinha adds her own soft strength to the frame. The result is a song that carries a sense of longing, yearning, and a touch of old-world romance.

4. 'Gar Tum Bhula Na Doge':

Rafi brings a warm glow to this song from the 1969 film Yakeen, where Dharmendra and Sharmila Tagore share an easy and natural chemistry. The track holds a calm flow that feels steady and full. It has stayed close to the hearts of fans who admire Rafi's voice and Dharmendra's screen presence. The song leans into a soft idea of romance, which speaks about the strength of real love and the way it can shape two people. Dharmendra carries that emotion with a quiet confidence, while Tagore adds a gentle elegance that lifts the moment even more. The tune moves without hurry and creates a mood that stays with you for the rest of your life.

5. 'Main Jat Yamla Pagla':

This lively track is from the 1975 film Pratigya, and it brings together a cast that includes Dharmendra, Hema Malini, Ajit, Jagdeep, and Mukri. Rafi lends his voice to the song, while the music comes from Laxmikant Pyarelal. The scene sits right at the point where Dharmendra realises that the woman he loves feels the same way. That joy hits him with full force, and it is all visible on the screen, making the viewer feel every ounce of his excitement and relief. He moves through the frame with the loose ease of a man who has dropped every worry in his life. He looks so thrilled about what just happened to him, and that combination gives the moment its charm. People often joked about his lack of dancing skills, and the actor never tried to hide it. Yet in this song, the feeling mattered more than his choreographed steps. His raw happiness fills every beat and gives the scene an honest spark that made him a legend in the Bollywood film industry.

6. 'Yeh Dosti Hum Nahin':

This classic friendship song from the 1975 film Sholay carries the easy charm that made the film a legend. Kishore Kumar and Manna Dey sing with a bright and open tone, while R D Burman shapes the mood with a tune that feels alive even today. Jai and Veeru ride through the open road on a single bike and move with a sense of trust that feels real. Their bond comes through in the small jokes and the light rhythm of the moment. The song celebrates loyalty and the comfort that comes from having someone who stands beside you.

7. 'Koi Haseena Jab Rooth Jaati':

This charming Sholay track, sung by Kishore Kumar, follows Veeru as he tries to soften Basanti's anger. Dharmendra brings a playful warmth to the scene, while Hema Malini holds her ground with quiet grace. The song turns their small clash into a light and tender moment that stays memorable.

8. 'Hum Bewafa Hargiz Nahi They':

Kishore Kumar brings a deep and haunting note to this track from the 1978 Indo-American film Shalimar, where Dharmendra and Zeenat Aman share a space filled with tension and quiet hurt. The film offered many loved songs like Mera Pyaar Shalimaar, yet this one carries a lasting pull. It moves through the idea of regret and the slow ache that comes from mixed signals and lost moments. Dharmendra holds the mood with a steady and thoughtful presence. Zeenat Aman adds a calm layer of emotion that fits the tone of the song. It remains a favorite because the feeling still rings true.

9. 'Ab KeSajanSaawan Mein':

This gentle track from the 1975 film Chupke Chupke features Sharmila Tagore and Dharmendra in a moment filled with light mischief. Lata Mangeshkar's voice adds a soft glow to the composition. Tagore sings the song while sitting with her family, trying to keep her romance with the leading man hidden. Dharmendra matches her mood with an easy and playful charm. Their cosy chemistry gives the song its lasting pull.

10. 'Jaaneman Jaaneman':

In the 1976 film Chhoti Si Baat, Dharmendra and Hema Malini show up in a brief yet charming cameo during the song sung by Asha Bhosle. Amol Palekar watches them on screen in a fictional film and soon slips into his own dream, imagining Vidya Sinha in the heroine's place. Although brief, Dharmendra's presence added a playful charm to the song, making it a memorable piece.

Top 10 Defining Moments of K-pop in 2025!

The year felt like a wave for Korean music as idols pushed past old limits and moved into films and dramas while making brave personal calls. K-pop Demon Hunters brought a huge crowd to the scene, and many stayed to explore the sound. Women like Hwasa, Blackpink, and TWICE shaped the year with real force. Stray Kids set new marks, and Bain moved people with a pure heart. These 10 moments show how far K-pop has traveled in 2025.

K-pop Demon Hunters became the breakout force of the year

K-pop Demon Hunters turned into a rare kind of hit that crossed into every corner of pop culture. The animated film became the most-watched title on Netflix and grew into a proud Korean American moment under director Maggie Kang. The cast carried voices from Arden Cho and Daniel Dae Kim, along with many others who shaped the world of the story with genuine care. The soundtrack rose fast on Spotify and stood as the second most played album of 2025, then pulled in five Grammy nods that included Song of the Year and Best Pop Duo or Group for Golden. Kids stepped into costumes inspired by Rumi and Mira, and Zoey, during Halloween as the film kept building its reach. The vocal team behind HUNTR/X brought Golden to the Macy's Parade. A military band even played the track at the Buckingham Palace guard change, which showed how far the wave traveled.

Stray Kids and their record-breaking year

Stray Kids kept pushing the limits through the year as their dominATE World Tour climbed to the second most successful global run of 2025, behind Beyoncé. The group carried that same drive into their releases and kept raising their own bar. Their November mixtape, DO It, hit with a lethal force and marked a rare moment in chart history. The group became the only act to debut at No. 1 on the Billboard 200 with eight album releases in a row. That streak began in 2022 with Oddinary, and it shows how steady their rise in the global music industry has been.

Hwasa's viral "Good Goodbye"

Hwasa stepped into a new light this year and made one of the most honest moments in Korean pop feel both tender and bold. Her track 'Good Goodbye' landed at Number 43 on the Billboard Global 200 and drew people in with its soft mix of heartache and calm hope. The song looks at a heartbreaking breakup and holds on to the idea that both sides can still wish each other well. The music video adds another layer with actor Park Jeong-min playing the ex, which gives the story a quiet spark. Their on-stage chemistry at a Korean awards show pushed the song into a viral rush, and the momentum carried it straight to No. 1 on the Billboard Korea Hot 100. Hwasa also became the only solo woman in 2025 to score a Perfect All Kill as the track reached the top spot across all major Korean charts at the same time.

Bain's courageous coming-out moment

Bain created a rare and moving moment during a Los Angeles show when he chose to speak with full honesty. He told the crowd he was proud to be part of the LGBTQ community and spoke to anyone still finding their place, reminding them they are seen and loved. He followed those words with a cover of Lady Gaga's 'Born

This Way’, turning the stage into a space of strength and truth. His announcement felt brave in a scene where few Korean stars speak openly about being gay, and the moment traveled far beyond the venue.

TWICE does it all

TWICE moved through 2025 with a wide and full of energy run. They became the first female K-pop act to headline Lollapalooza in Chicago, where fans called it Twicopalooza. A live band backed them as they moved through songs from across their long path. Jihyo, Chaeyoung, and Jeongyeon also recorded Takedown for the K-pop Demon Hunters soundtrack and appeared at the end of the film in human form as they sang the track. Later in the year, they performed at the Victoria’s Secret Fashion Show as the first K-pop group to do it. Tzuyu’s Pink line push-up bra sold out right after the show.

From K-pop idols to actors

K-pop idols have always been trained to carry many roles, and this year showed how far that range can go. Some of the strongest screen moments came from idols who stepped into characters with real weight. T.O.P. shaped the sharp edge of Thanos in the later seasons of Squid Game, while D.O. turned into a chilling force in The Manipulated. Kim Yohan took on a rugby underdog story in The Winning Try, and YookSungjae brought depth to the period drama The Haunted Palace. Kevin from Omega X led the Boys Love series My Bias Is Showing. Eric Nam and Ji Young Yoo also joined the cast of a new K-pop musical film by Paramount and Hybe America, set for release in early 2027.

BLACKPINK was everywhere

Blackpink kept a strong grip on the global stage through the Deadline World Tour while each member built a sharp solo path in 2025. In September, ‘APT’ by Rose and Bruno Mars became the fastest K-pop video to reach two billion views on YouTube and passed the mark once held by PSY. The song grew into a global hit and earned Grammy nods for Song of the Year, Record of the Year, and Best Pop Duo or Group. Lisa dropped her solo album Alter Ego and stepped into acting with her debut in The White Lotus. Netflix later confirmed her first feature film role with Don Lee in Tygo, an action title linked to the Extraction world. Jisoo carried lead roles in the film Omniscient Reader The Prophecy and the series Newtopia, then moved into a new show called Boyfriend on Demand set for next year. Jennie also kept her pace with the Ruby Experience tour after her solo album Ruby landed at Number 29 on Rolling Stone’s Best Albums list.

Big wins for Cortis, KiiiKiii, and Allday

Some new groups stepped out with a louder edge this year and gave K-pop a fresh spark. Cortis and KiiiKiii moved away from the usual polished look and leaned into raw ideas with a messy charm that pulled people in. Allday Project also arrived as the first co-ed group since KARD and carried a story of its own. The name came from will.i.am who has been a fan from early on. Rapper Annie brought even more attention as the first chaebol heiress idol with ties to the Shinsegae family. The mix made their debut feel bold and new.

Waterbomb Festival

Waterbomb kept its wild charm this year as idols and fans got soaked under heavy streams from every side. Shownu stayed a clear favorite as he leaned into the chaos with his usual confidence on stages across South Korea and Vietnam. Kwon Eun bi also stole the spotlight with bright energy as she chose bikini tops and kept the crowd locked in. She earned the Waterbomb Goddess tag once again. Park Jin Young showed up in hot pink and brought a rush of playful power to the festival.

The most-awaited return of the BTS

RM once said in an interview that labels do not matter and that the real point is that they are Korean artists singing pop music. Fans still argue over how to place BTS in the larger scene. Yet there is no doubt about their reach. This year felt huge because all seven members came back from military duty. Jin dropped Echo and toured, while Jung Kook became the first Asian solo act with one hundred million streams on every original track. Jimin won Song of the Year at the iHeartRadio Music Awards for Who and released Muse on vinyl. RM also teamed with Tablo for Stop the Rain. On the other hand, J Hope toured with new singles and worked with Le Sserafim on Spaghetti, and V crossed major milestones with Winter Ahead and released his photo book Reve. Lastly, Suga opened a treatment center in South Korea for children with autism spectrum disorder. Then, in July, the group confirmed a new album for spring along with a world tour set to include many shows in North America.

Post Malone Salutes Zubeen Garg in Guwahati in a Heartwarming and Respectful Moment

Post Malone created a powerful moment in Guwahati as he paused his show to honor Zubeen Garg. The crowd at Khanapara Veterinary Ground felt the emotion rise when he spoke the name of the Assamese icon.

The cheers grew loud and steady as fans took in the tribute. It carried a sense of respect that felt real. Zubeen Garg passed away this year, and his influence still stays strong in Assam. Post Malone made space for that legacy during his set.

The reaction from the audience showed how deep that connection runs. The scene unfolded with a mix of pride and loss that felt shared by everyone there.

Malone's gesture added a warm tone to the night and gave fans a moment they will hold close for a long time. "And ladies and gentlemen, I just wanted to say also to be in the home of the great and f***ing legendary Zubin tonight, ladies and gentlemen," the American rapper said, pausing as the crowd in attendance broke into whistles and applause. Malone's acknowledgement of the late singer clearly moved the audience.

Garg's sudden death earlier this year left a deep emptiness in Assam's citizens. "I just hope everyone's having an amazing fucking day and an amazing night. My name is Austin Richard Pos, and I've come to play some shitty songs. And party fucking hard while we do it, ladies and gents," the 'Sunflower' rapper added.

Post Malone stepped on stage in a white T-shirt with a map of India and the Taj Mahal printed on the front. The word India sat under the image, and the crowd was on board with the intent right away.

It set the tone for a night filled with emotion and strong energy. Malone lifted his guitar over his shoulder and moved into his first song as the venue rose with sound. Fans stood packed together, and the welcome came in one long wave!

The artist could quickly form a connection with the crowd that he carried throughout his set from the rest of the night.

The set moved with a smooth mix of styles as he shifted between rap, rock, pop, and country in a way that felt easy and natural. Songs like 'Rockstar', 'Congratulations', 'Circles', and 'Sunflower' lifted the pace, and the whole place seemed to sing with him.

The voice of the crowd rose in one long flow and filled the stadium with steady sound. This event carried a large scale that matched the force of the night.

Organisers shared that more than 2800 people from police, private security, fire units, and ground staff worked to guide the crowd and keep the space in order.

Dua Lipa Pays Tribute to Selena with a Cover of 'Amor Prohibido'

“I chose this song because I feel a very special connection with this artist and with her feeling of belonging to two places at the same time,” DuaLipa says on stage.

Dua Lipa closed her Radical Optimism tour with a moment that felt warm and close to the crowd. She paid tribute to the evergreen Selena while performing in Mexico City. The show took place at Estadio El Campín on December 5.

The energy was high, and people were waiting for something special. This is when Lipa moved into a cover of 'Amor Prohibido', and the energy of the whole space instantly shifted. It felt like a bridge between two eras and two very powerful female artists.

Her voice carried the song with care, and the crowd held every word. The moment was simple, but her covering of the song really touched the crowd of Mexico City.

“I chose this song because I feel a very special connection with this artist and with her feeling of belonging to two places at the same time,” Lipa told the crowd in Spanish. “It’s something I deeply identify with, as I feel I am both Albanian and English, just as she was Mexican and American.”

DuaLipa’s tour turned into a moving trail of covers that felt personal each night and carried a different kind of spark every time. Over the nine months, she performed songs by many artists in many cities. She sang Ariana Grande in Miami and Aerosmith in Boston.

Dua also honored Sinéad O'Connor in Dublin and Daft Punk in Lyon, and then she reached for Lorde in New Zealand. Each choice was intentional and showcased how wide the artist’s sound can reach. Furthermore, she also invited major artists to share a moment on stage with her and help bring their own songs to life.

Billie Joe Armstrong stepped out for 'Wake Me Up When September Ends' in San Francisco, while Gwen Stefani joined her for 'Don't Speak' in Los Angeles. Nile Rodgers also appeared in New York City, then Chaka Khan in Chicago, and Jamiroquai added Virtual Insanity in London.

In addition to this, Neil Finn joined her in Auckland, and Kevin Parker came through in Sydney. This is why each stop on her tour felt like its own small world!

Lipa kept adding fresh moments as the tour moved on. In Seattle, she brought out Ben Gibbard for a gentle take on 'I Will Follow You Into The Dark', then later slipped into a soft and steady cover of Shakira’s 'Antología' in Colombia.

Her two Wembley shows from June turned into a short film that captured the rush behind the scenes and the voices of fans who filled those nights. She will finish everything with three shows in Mexico City from December 1 to 5.

The tour lifts her third album 'Radical Optimism', which earned critics praise and love from the audience alike. NME said that the sound moved into new corners and showed a bright shift in her style.

In other news, DuaLipa recently revealed that she is now studying “A-level Spanish”. This came after the news of her passing her GCSE examination!

Jennie Broke Her Own Record by Winning the Fourth RIAA Gold Certification

BLACKPINK's Jennie has broken her own record by winning the most RIAA certifications.

The artist has gotten a fourth gold plaque for her song 'ExtraL' featuring the Grammy-nominated rapper Doechi. This song is from her debut album, named 'Ruby'. Recently, on 2nd December, the Recording Industry Association of America announced that her song has sold a total of 500,000 units in the United States, which is massive. It has made a huge revenue within a brief time, and that is why Jennie has gotten the chance to achieve such recognition once again.

This achievement of Jennie is becoming even grander because in March 2025, she came up with three songs from the album 'Ruby'. It was released through OA Entertainment and Columbia Records. And all the tracks have gotten RIAA certifications. It is a great milestone in the whole K-pop music industry that people have ever got to see.

This event has generated a large sensation among all her fans. Previously, it came to see that Jennie got gold certification for 'Like Jennie' and 'Mantra' in August, along with her collaboration with The Weeknd and Lily-Rose Depp, named 'One of the Girls'.

This collaboration has led her to earn platinum status for crossing one million units. With every new song released, Jennie is reaching out to more new audiences and achieving more streams on different music streaming platforms.

It has been seen that the RIAA certifications are given to the artists based on the combined number of streaming and sales units. To achieve the gold certification, one has to surpass 500,000 units, which Jennie has done recently.

And to get platinum, one has to go more than one million and for multi-platinum, it requires two million. With the song, 'ExtraL', Jennie has achieved her gold certification, but it can be assumed that the way she is growing in her career, soon she will get platinum or even diamond certification.

Jennie departed from YG Entertainment in 2023, and since then, she has immersed herself in the making of 'Ruby'.

The move to get out of the label assisted her in preparing a 15-track full-length debut album. Along with this, she has collaborated with various artists like Diplo, El Guincho, and Mile Will Make It in her brief solo career. The artist has spent hours offering the best soundtracks to her listeners.

And that is why she has gotten the chance to achieve so many recognitions with her debut album as a solo musician.

Her journey has just started, and in the coming days, she will continue to amuse and surprise her audiences with even better soundtracks. Now it is coming to know that the artist is going to perform at the Mad Cool Festival in Spain on 9th July 2026. Thus, her fans will get a chance to watch her perform live.

BILLIE EILISH DROPS THE TRAILER FOR HER CONCERT FILM DIRECTED BY JAMES CAMERON

Billie Eilish keeps moving into new spaces, and it feels natural for her at this point. She has broken records that most artists only dream about, and she keeps adding more without slowing down.

The trailer for ‘Hit Me Hard and Soft: The Tour’ shows her leaning into a new vision with James Cameron. Their film reaches past the usual tour story and aims for something larger, something that pulls you into her world instead of keeping you at a distance. It opens in theaters on March 20, and it feels like the start of a new chapter for her! The three-minute preview that dropped Wednesday morning opens with a thrilled Billie Eilish, 23, gazing down at fans who’d camped out overnight to be first in line.

“This is so crazy,” she says, smiling as she snaps a photo of the devoted crowd. Suddenly, one fan spots her, and Eilish bangs on the window, setting off a wave of screams from the groggy early-risers as they rush across the parking lot to catch a glimpse.

From the open window, she yells, “LOVE YOUUUUUUU!!!” The moment captures her playful energy and the pure excitement that comes from connecting with fans in these rare and electric pre-show encounters.

The 106-show 2024-2025 tour for Billie Eilish’s third album ‘Hit Me Hard and Soft’ began on 29th September, 2024, in Quebec City and traveled through sold-out arenas and stadiums across North America, Oceania, Europe, and Asia, before returning to North America and wrapping on 23rd November at San Francisco’s Chase Center.

The trailer showcases striking visuals, from the massive gleaming white cube at the center of the stage to the pyrotechnics and effects that made each show unforgettable. Even Eilish seems a little awed by having box office legend James Cameron there to capture the entire experience, adding extra weight to the tour film.

“That’s James Cameron,” Eilish says, watching the legendary director whose films have grossed over $8.7 billion work with her during rehearsals. “No one’s shot a concert film on this scale before,” Cameron adds, his passion for creating the biggest, most ambitious, and most innovative experiences clearly driving every frame.

In the preview, Eilish grabs a mini-cam to capture audience moments and rockets out of a stage trapdoor. Then she grins as she promises, “it’s gonna be loud,” showing off the scrapes on her hands from getting up close with fans during shows.

The trailer pulses with energy and chaos, but halfway through it softens as she breaks down reading a heartfelt note from her older brother and longtime collaborator, Finneas, who skipped the tour to focus on solo work. “Almost 7 years ago to the day we started your first headlining tour of North America,” it reads. “It’s been the joy of my life to travel the world with you three times over and watch you hold every person who comes to your shows in the palm of your hand. Good luck tonight, but you don’t need it; no one does it like you do.

Can’t wait to see you soon.” The moment reveals the bond behind her stage persona.

The meteoric rise of the song and Flipperachi's popularity in India is creating a hip-hop phenomenon, and the rapper has surely gained millions of new fans.

Hussam Aseem, better known as Flipperachi, is one of the earliest hip-hop artists in Bahrain who kind of pioneered the hip-hop music scene in his country. With his immense love of hip-hop, the rapper started rapping at the age of 12.

He was successful in becoming a professional rapper within his teen years, and now, he is a veteran and a role model for everyone.

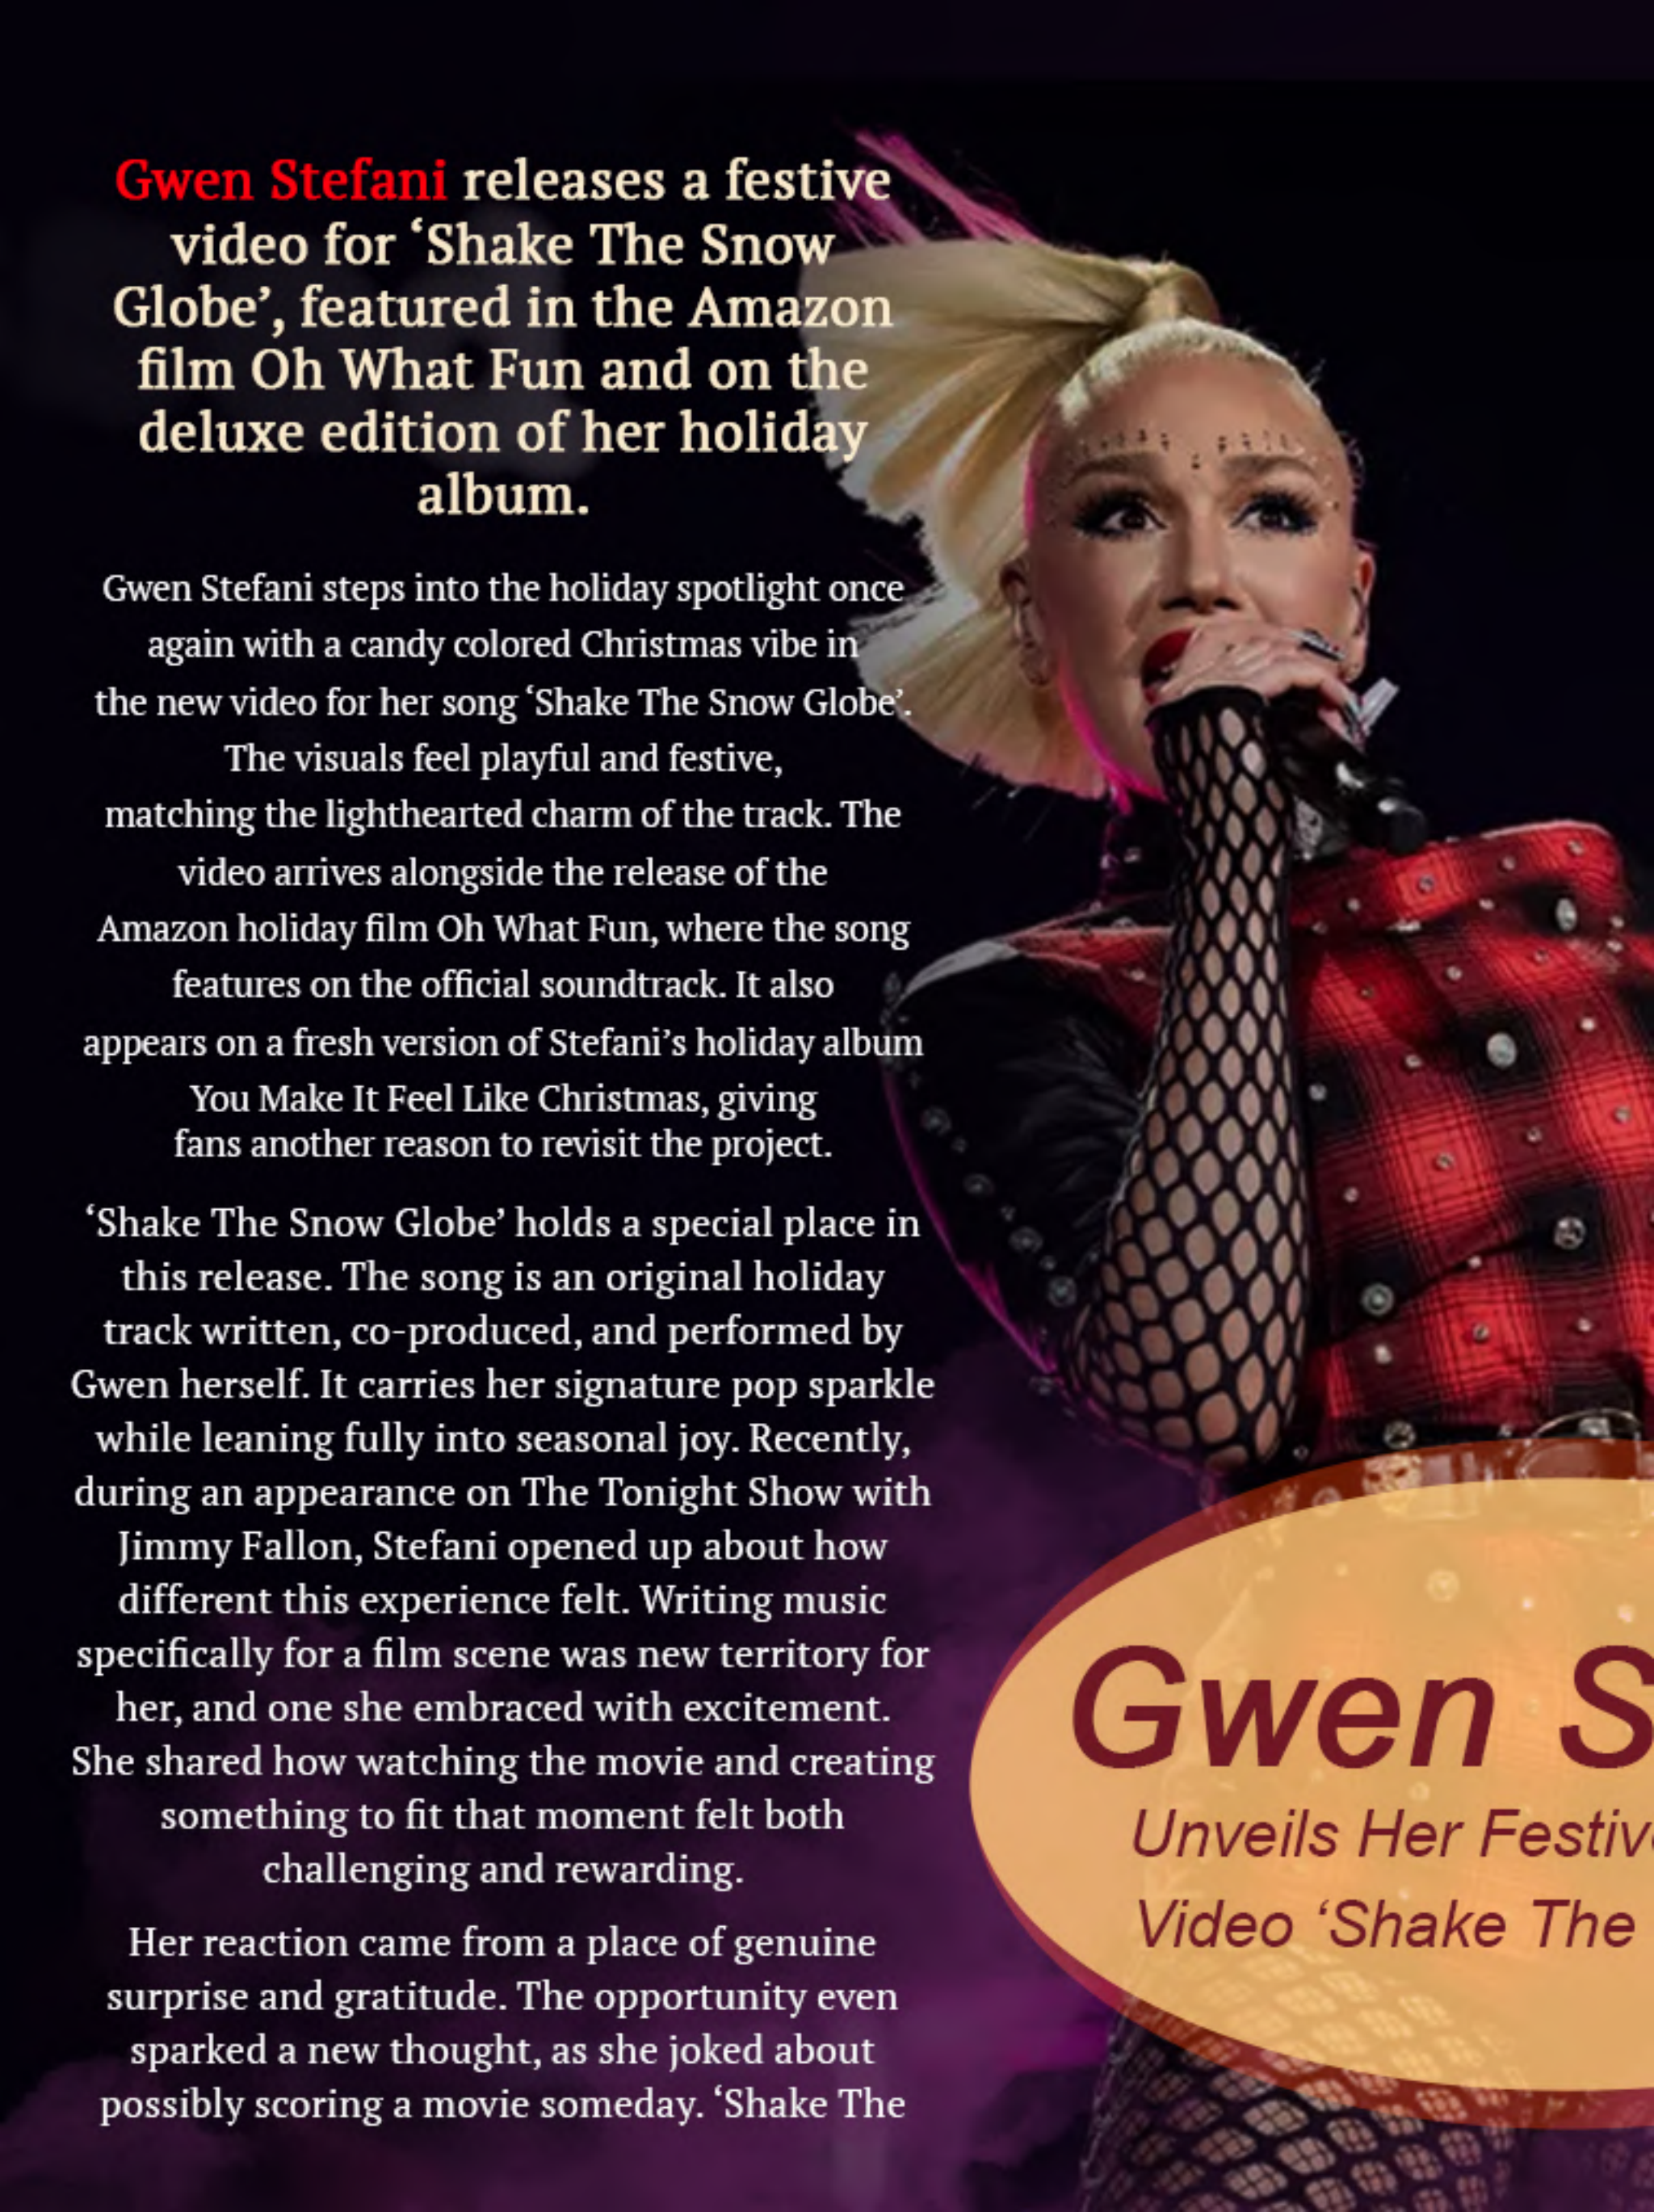

Flipperachi's unique rapping style includes traditional Khaleeji rhythms, Gulf slang, contemporary hip-hop beats, and a bilingual approach with Arabic-English lyrics, which makes it very exquisite and appealing for the global hip-hop lovers.

His debut album project was 'Straight Out Of 2Seas', which he released in 2008 after signing with Outlaw Productions.

Flipperachi gained a huge amount of attention after collaborating with rapper Daffy, and then he made a handful of projects while collaborating with other artists like Shaggy, The Game, Shaquille O'Neal, and others to represent Khaleeji rap on a global platform.

In 2024, he became the Bahraini Artist of the Year.

Gwen Stefani releases a festive video for 'Shake The Snow Globe', featured in the Amazon film Oh What Fun and on the deluxe edition of her holiday album.

Gwen Stefani steps into the holiday spotlight once again with a candy colored Christmas vibe in the new video for her song 'Shake The Snow Globe'.

The visuals feel playful and festive, matching the lighthearted charm of the track. The video arrives alongside the release of the Amazon holiday film Oh What Fun, where the song features on the official soundtrack. It also appears on a fresh version of Stefani's holiday album

You Make It Feel Like Christmas, giving fans another reason to revisit the project.

'Shake The Snow Globe' holds a special place in this release. The song is an original holiday track written, co-produced, and performed by Gwen herself. It carries her signature pop sparkle while leaning fully into seasonal joy. Recently, during an appearance on The Tonight Show with Jimmy Fallon, Stefani opened up about how different this experience felt. Writing music specifically for a film scene was new territory for her, and one she embraced with excitement. She shared how watching the movie and creating something to fit that moment felt both challenging and rewarding.

Her reaction came from a place of genuine surprise and gratitude. The opportunity even sparked a new thought, as she joked about possibly scoring a movie someday. 'Shake The

Her reaction came from a place of genuine surprise and gratitude. The opportunity even sparked a new thought, as she joked about possibly scoring a movie someday. 'Shake The Snow Globe' captures that sense of fun and curiosity, making it a festive addition that feels personal and refreshingly creative.

In the video for Shake The Snow Globe, a group of kids discover a Barbie pink snow globe and peer inside to find Gwen and her band performing with Nutcrackers and ballerinas. Things quickly turn playful as curiosity takes over. True to the song's spirit, the globe gets shake , and a burst of cheerful chaos follows.

'Shake The Snow Globe' is one of two fresh tracks featured on the 2025 deluxe edition of You Make It Feel Like Christmas, joined by another original song titled 'Hot Cocoa'. The new release adds another chapter to an album that has slowly grown into a holiday staple over the years. When You Make It Feel Like Christmas first arrived in 2017, it made an immediate impression by debuting on Billboard's Top Seasonal Albums chart. The record blended six original songs with six classic holiday favorites, striking a balance between tradition and Gwen Stefani's signature pop charm.

The album continued to evolve in 2018 with the release of a deluxe edition that introduced five additional tracks. Among them were original songs 'Cheer For The Elves' and 'Secret Santa', written by Gwen Stefani alongside Justin Tranter and busbee. The expanded version also included festive covers like 'Santa Claus Is Coming To Town', 'Winter Wonderland', and 'Feliz Navidad' featuring Mon Laferte. Each update helped the album stay relevant while adding new layers to its holiday identity.

This week, the project received another moment in the spotlight when Gwen opened the annual Rockefeller Christmas Tree Lighting ceremony with a performance of 'Shake The Snow Globe'. The appearance marked her fifth time performing at the iconic event, further cementing her place in modern holiday music culture. It felt like a full circle moment, blending nostalgia, celebration, and a fresh festive spirit that continues to resonate year after year!

Ranveer Singh Lights Up the Dhurandhar Music Launch with Hanumankind

The buzz around Ranveer Singh's film Dhurandhar has been rising fast ever since the trailer dropped, and the energy only grew stronger when the makers hosted the music album launch in Mumbai, revealing the title track for the first time.

The event carried a charged atmosphere from the start, driven by Ranveer's lively presence and the strong performances from the singers who joined him. It felt like the kind of room where every beat, every shout, and every move fed into something bigger.

Soon after the launch, photos and videos from the night began to spread across social media. One clip in particular caught everyone's attention. It showed Ranveer on stage with Hanumankind as the two of them performed the title track together in a way that felt loose, loud, and full of rhythm.

Ranveer, dressed in an all black look that suited the sharp tone of the song, moved across the stage with a steady flow that made the moment feel natural instead of rehearsed.

His energy pulled people in, and Hanumankind matched him with the same intensity, creating a back and forth that felt alive. When Jasmine Sandlas stepped in, her voice cut through the noise and lifted the crowd even higher, turning the performance into a full burst of sound and excitement that hinted at the spirit the film aims to bring.

Ranveer Singh's energy at the event was infectious. So, naturally, he got wide praise from the fans and followers on social media. One of his followers on social media wrote, "This is peak entertainment; he doesn't leave the stage until he makes sure everyone there has been entertained. Peak showman energy and a great actor too."

Another one commented, "This energy is what makes him one of the most watchable actors today." One user pointed out the song's captivating energy, saying, "Said hit them where it hurts a lil early; he really be hitting people where it hurts."

Someone commented, "Love his energy, to be honest," while another user said, "An entertainer unparalleled. Ranveer has always wanted to be a performer, and there's hardly anyone who can match his enthusiasm."

The spy action thriller directed by Aditya Dhar takes loose inspiration from real events and the tense world of international conflict.

It draws from missions linked to RAW and from Operation Lyari, a major crackdown on gangs and crime groups in Karachi.

The film is backed by JyotiDeshpande along with Aditya Dhar and LokeshDhar under Jio Studios and B62 Studios.

Ranveer Singh leads the story with a cast that brings a strong presence and range, including Sanjay Dutt, Akshaye Khanna, R. Madhavan, Arjun Rampal, Sara Arjun, and Rakesh Bedi.

Reports say the team filmed in Thailand and Mumbai, along with Punjab and Ladakh.

The runtime sits at two hundred twelve minutes, which places it among the longest Indian films created for the big screen. Dhurandhar arrived on 5th December.

Badshah Becomes the First Indian Rapper to Perform at London's Iconic O2 Arena

Badshah and his international stunts are well-received by everyone, and this time, the Indian rapper has made his place at London's O2 Arena, which is quite famous as the most popular venue for international music artists. The announcement for this international performance has already created a massive buzz among the fans of Badshah around the world.

Anoushka Shankar Showed the Dark Truth of Air India and Slammed Them for Breaking Her Sitar

Air India is perhaps the worst airline when it comes to handling luggage for passengers, and music artist Anoushka Shankar, the daughter of legend Ravi Shankar, has revealed the dark truth through her Instagram profile.

The sitar player was very angry, and it is absolutely valid for her to crash out after the ill-treatment of the sitar and breaking the precious instrument that is dear to her. Multiple Grammy-nominated musician Anoushka Shankar publicly slammed Air India on Instagram, and this damage took place during her recent travel.

Air India made sure to charge a handling fee from her, yet offered trashy behavior and treatment to her dear musical instrument, which is her identity. Anoushka was deeply disappointed and expressed how “devastated” she was after finding her sitar in a broken condition. Anoushka and the world are asking the same question: how could they be so careless? On Wednesday, the sitar maestro expressed her anger on social media, and the news quickly went viral.

Air India damaged her sitar during transit, and this is the way Air India handles the luggage and precious belongings for every passenger with zero care and professionalism.

The singer has also shown the current condition of the sitar, and it is evidently visible how reluctant the handlers are. Besides, the sitar is a strong, big wooden instrument, and the way it broke, it seems like somebody slammed it on the floor. It is definitely not a mistake but a deliberate choice of reluctance and ill-treatment; a virtue of ‘Air India’.

In the video posted by the artist, Anoushka could be found saying, “First, I was looking at the top of my sitar and I thought it was really out of tune. After I tuned it, I picked it up to play and that’s when I realised...This was my first time flying Air India in a long time. You’re the country this music belongs to. This is the first time anything like this has happened to my instrument in 15 or 17 years.” She showed the sitar and asked Air India, “How have you done this? I have special cases, you charge a handling fee and yet you’ve done this?”

The post on Instagram came with a heartbreaking caption, “Devastated and truly disturbed by @airindia’s treatment of my sitar. How on earth does damage like this happen without willful disregard? It feels especially sad given that I’ve flown Air India after a long time, and it seems an Indian instrument can’t be safe with them- after all the thousand of flights taken on other airlines without even a peg going out of tune.”

While a lot of Indian artists like Vishal Dadlani, comedian Zakir Khan, and many others showed their condolences through comments, this shameful act cannot be rectified, and it only revealed the dark truth of Indian Airlines.

The sitar is an Indian Instrument, and its heritage is damaged by its own people.

Sachet- Parampara Demands a Public Apology from Amaal Mallik for the Recent Controversy

Sachet and Parampara have finally opened their mouth regarding the latest ongoing controversy. There is a controversy regarding the song 'Bekhayali' from the movie 'Kabir Singh' directed by Sandeep Reddy Vanga. It came to know that the music composer Amaal Mallik has been claiming credit for the song repeatedly. The music duo, Sachet-Parampara, has now come forward and told the truth.

On Instagram, they have said, 'Warning. This video could have been a 10-second video, also proving all rumours false, but for our mental peace, exposing some people was very important. @amaal_mallik SHAME ON YOU AMAAL MALIK'. In a recent video, they have said, 'Hi everyone, we are Sachet and Parampara, and this is regarding something which has become very serious now. This is regarding Mr AmaalMallik. Actually, we never thought that we would have to clarify all these things, but this is something that we purely created. We are talking about 'Bekhayali', which AmaalMallik claims he made some time ago'.

They have also added 'We have all the chats with AmaalMallik; we have all the chats with the 'Kabir Singh' team because the entire 'Kabir Singh' team was there when we created this song. Every melody, every composition, every arrangement, every lyric was done when the entire team was there, and it is purely a Sachet and Parampara original composition'.

Amaal Mallik is having some issues because 'favourites join the label'. The duo has also confirmed, 'We were never with T-Series, we were never part of T-Series before 'Kabir Singh' happened. And I think he has been part of T-Series since 2015, if we are not wrong'.

They even added, 'We are outsiders; why would anyone favour us? Or if we have come from a small town, would someone play their song for us and expect us to make a song like that? Are you serious, AmaalMallik? Also, let's assume that if you want to say we stole your song, then why were you congratulating us after the release? You were the first one texting me, saying you were waiting for our song and...'

Sachet also stated 'I started the conversation? I didn't even have your number, Amaal Mallik. You called me, you texted me telling me you were waiting for our song and then congratulating me and asking about your day after 'Bekhayali' was released'.

The duo has also openly said to AmaalMallik that he should speak only when he has some strong evidence. They even said, 'So you are just saying that the industry is wrong, everything is wrong. We don't believe that the industry is wrong because they have given opportunities to outsiders like us. Here, we believe your work speaks for itself. In fact, if you don't do your work well, you won't get a job, no matter if you are an outsider'.

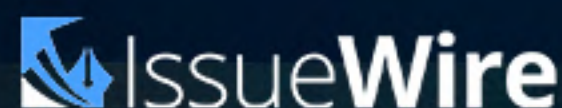

At the end, they said, 'We want an apology from you, and in public, because you went outside. You went on your social media, asking and telling all these things. Also, this can happen to anyone'.

It continues by saying 'Just because these days accusations are like this, if you accuse someone, that person is deemed wrong. Please follow the truth and then tell someone if they are wrong or right. This could happen to us or anyone. We are not the kind of people who keep cribbing all the time or keep saying something wrong. I think it's better'.

Kylie Minogue Unveils New Album 'Kylie Christmas (Fully Wrapped)'

Kylie Minogue plans a new 10th anniversary edition of Kylie Christmas on 5th December through Warner Records and brings the holiday album back with fresh energy.

Kylie Minogue is set to bring her holiday era back with a fresh release of Kylie Christmas in a special 10th anniversary edition called Kylie Christmas Fully Wrapped. The album arrives on 5th December through Warner Records and brings a mix of old charm and new energy.

You get the familiar holiday sound that made the original project loved by many, and you also get new music that adds a warm lift to the season. The release comes in a wide range of formats that feel fun and collectible.

There are limited vinyl editions in candy cane colors, transparent red, and a pink and white marble style. Each version leans into the festive spirit and gives fans something they can hold onto.

The tracklist includes 'Santa Baby', 'It's The Most Wonderful Time of the Year', and the originals, 'At Christmas' and '100 Degrees'. These songs return with the same shine, but the new edition grows even more with four fresh tracks recorded for 2025. 'Hot In December', 'This Time Of Year', 'Office Party', and Amazon Music Original 'XMAS' bring a new wave that still fits the joyful mood of the project. Kylie shared that looking back at the album after ten years felt creative and light. Fully Wrapped opened the door for her to write and record new songs, adding more color to the holiday theme. XMAS dropped first as an Amazon Music Original and lands digitally on Amazon Music. It also arrives on CD, a seven-inch gold vinyl, and a twelve-inch zoetrope vinyl. Pre-orders for Kylie Christmas Fully Wrapped are open now.

While speaking to The Sun, Kylie admitted that the idea of releasing 'XMAS' came to her after releasing her first Holiday album, 'Kylie Christmas'. "The song comes from 2015. I was at Soho House in Berlin, it was summer on the terrace and we'd just done the first Christmas album," the singer said. "We'd had a couple of glasses of wine ... and it came to us like 'YMCA' but 'XMAS.' I've been sitting on the chorus for 10 years." The single comes with a video where Minogue brings back the famous flying lift from Dirty Dancing.

She shared that even with her long time on stage the move felt like a leap of faith. "I was a bit scared as I've never done it before. It was a fantasy moment. I was told not to overthink it," Minogue said. "We did a couple of practices before we did the main one. The thing is, you just need to trust the other person. The first one I got up, but I overshot it. The second was fine. The third one was good. The bruises were worth it the next day."

Kanye West Prepares for a Comeback with brand New Album Project

Yes, that is right! Ye, or the troublemaker Kanye West, who is always at the top of controversies, is currently preparing to launch a new album, and he admitted it. Rapper cum music producer Kanye West is best known for his amazing musical creations and weirdly engaging opinions and activities that make him stand out. Regardless of his persona, this artist is best known for his creative musical works, and he has recently made a surprise appearance at the comedy show by Deon Cole, which took place at the Hollywood Improv. The show happened on December 27, and Kanye announced the release of his new album at the show.

Deon Cole invited Kanye on stage and introduced him to the audience by addressing him as “a good friend,” and he also thanked him for attending the comedy show. It seems like promotional propaganda, as after a few jokes, Cole landed the question, “You got anything we could look out for?”

and further added, “No music, no shirts or sweaters or some boots?” The audiences were also seeking answers, as it is not every day that you see Kanye at a comedy or talk show in recent days. West replied concisely to Cole’s question by saying, “New album,” and it created a huge buzz of applause and cheers from the audience. Deon is a comedian, and he left no chance to ask West if he would be sending a care package of clothes to him, and West politely agreed to it before leaving the stage.

Kanye West has not been releasing any personal projects for a long time, and the last time he worked in the industry was back in 2024 when he did collaborative projects with TyDolla $ign for ‘Vultures 1’ and ‘Vultures 2’. Since then, West has not been releasing any projects, but managed to stay at the top of the news by launching anti-Semitic tirades online over the last few years. Due to such activities, the rapper has been banned from Instagram, X, and multiple other social media platforms for making hate speeches.

Later on, Kanye West launched a T-shirt for online selling, which included a large swastika on the chest, which is largely associated with the Nazis in Western countries, and due to this release, the Yeezy website was shut down by Shopify. Previously, he also claimed that the Jewish people are holding him back and that they should ‘forgive’ Hitler.

West also said that he does not believe in anti-Semitism, and that sparked a huge backlash, which also included a lot of celebrities speaking out against him.

After understanding his mistakes, Ye has recently met with a rabbi in New York named Yoshiyahu Yosef Pinto and decided to take accountability for what he has said and done. He claimed that his bipolar disorder makes him lash out against the Jewish community, but he is not like that.

To be honest, the way Israel is continuing with their genocide, everyone deserves to lash out.

Charli XCX Returns With Wuthering Heights Album and Drops New Song ‘Chains of Love’

Charli XCX reveals her new album Wuthering Heights and drops ‘Chains of Love’. The project grew from Charlie’s work on an Emerald Fennell film after Brat. Charli XCX has officially announced her next album. The project is titled Wuthering Heights and serves as the follow-up to Brat and its recent spin-offs. The album arrives on February 13 through Atlantic. Along with the announcement, Charli has shared a new track from the record called ‘Chains of Love’. This offers an early look into the world she has been building over the past year.

The Wuthering Heights album grew directly out of Charli XCX’s work with filmmaker Emerald Fennell. The musician was involved in Fennell’s upcoming adaptation of the Emily Brontë novel, and what began as a single creative request quickly turned into something much bigger.

Speaking on Substack, Charli explained how the collaboration sparked a deeper idea. “I called Emerald and asked her what she was hoping for from my read of the script,” she wrote. “She coyly suggested ‘A song?’ and I suggested ‘An album?’ because why not? I wanted to dive into persona, into a world that felt undeniably raw, wild, sexual, gothic, British, tortured and full of actual real sentences, punctuation and grammar. Without a cigarette or a pair of sunglasses in sight, it was all totally other from the life I was currently living. I was fucking IN.”

That shift in mindset shaped the emotional tone of the album. Charli leaned fully into character, atmosphere, and storytelling, stepping away from her current reality and into something darker and more theatrical. The result is a record that pulls from classic literature while still feeling grounded in her own instincts as a pop artist.

Much of the Wuthering Heights album was created alongside British producer and songwriter Finn Keane, formerly known as Easyfun. Charli described their process as highly focused and deeply collaborative. “From the very start of our process we were discussing the Todd Hayne’s documentary about The Velvet Underground and in particular this one quote from John Cale where he describes that the main sonic rule of creating songs for the band was that all things had to be both ‘elegant and brutal,’” Charlie said. “We started to live by this description as we created songs for the Wuthering Heights album throughout most of this year. Finn came with me on tour and we rented a studio space most days.”

With ‘Chains of Love’ now out, Wuthering Heights is set to mark a bold new chapter for Charli XCX. This one would be shaped by cinema, classic influence, and a clear creative leap forward.

The 12-song Wuthering Heights album opens with ‘House’, a recent collaboration between Charlie XCX and Velvet Underground co-founder John Cale. The record sets the tone for the album and hints at its darker and more theatrical direction. The Wuthering Heights album arrives as the next chapter after Brat and its many evolutions, including the deluxe release Brat and It’s the Same but There’s Three More Songs So It’s Not and the remix project Brat and It’s Completely Different but Also Still Brat. Together, those releases marked a restless creative period for Charlie, one defined by constant reinvention and sharp left turns. With this new album, she continues that momentum while stepping into a more cinematic and character-driven space.

"All I Want For Christmas Is You - Mariah Carey"

No matter which tracks stay at the top charts for the rest of the year, Christmas is mostly dominated by Mariah Carey with her evergreen Christmas track 'All I Want For Christmas Is You', and this year also reflects the same. This song is currently boasting the no.1 place on the top chart, and it has been a holiday hit for years now. This song was released back in 1994, and even after two decades, this song still remains as one of the mandatory songs for Christmas celebrations. The song peaked in the first position for a total of 77 weeks on Billboard Hot 100. This is the first-ever song to become No. 1 on seven separate holiday seasons. Its recurring popularity can be felt every December.

A new song from the 'Dhurandhar' movie gets released. 'Shararat' featuring Ayesha Khan and Krystle D'Souza brings a very jolly and exciting vibe to the screen.

The music video for 'Shararat' from Dhurandhar has finally arrived, and it lands with the kind of energy that pulls you in right away. The song feels playful and bold, staying true to the mood it promised from the start. Sung by Madhubanti Bagchi and Jasmine Sandlas, the track boasts a confident and fun vocal presence. The music by Shashwat Sachdev keeps the rhythm lively, while the lyrics by Jasmine Sandlas and Shashwat Sachdev add attitude and flair without trying too hard.

On screen, Ayesha Khan and Krystle D'Souza bring the song to life with sharp moves and strong chemistry. Their performance adds heat and drama, making the dance sequences hard to look away from. The video runs parallel to an important moment in the film, as Ranveer Singh and Sara Arjun tie the knot. This contrast adds an interesting layer, blending celebration with high-energy performance.

Both Madhubanti and Jasmine also appear in the video, which adds a personal touch and lifts the overall vibe. Shararat feels like one of those tracks that stays with you, driven by rhythm, presence, and pure confidence. As the wedding season picks up pace, 'Shararat' arrives with the kind of energy that feels made for loud celebrations and crowded dance floors. What truly drives Shararat forward are the vocals. Jasmine Sandlas and Madhubanti Bagchi bring confidence and spark, giving the song a pulse that feels lively and bold.

The lyrics, written by Jasmine Sandlas and Shashwat Sachdev, carry a teasing edge that blends well with the rhythm, making the song feel light-hearted yet full of character. Shashwat Sachdev's composition ties it all together, showing his range once again and adding another strong moment to the Dhurandhar album that continues to hold attention across playlists.

The song sparked instant conversation across social platforms, with many listeners unhappy with its lyrics and visual treatment. 'Candy Shop' marked another collaboration between the brother-sister duo and was released on 15th December. Sung by both artists, the track arrived with bright visuals and upbeat music that initially grabbed attention. The energy and styling made it hard for her fans. For a moment, it looked like the song would ride on hype and high energy. However, that reaction did not last long. As more people watched the video, the tone of the discussion shifted. heated online debate. "Neha Kakkar thinks she's cute korean queen," one user wrote, with another shared, "Unpopular opinion: Neha Kakkar is vulgar (she tries too hard to look sexy)." One social media user labelled the single as "Cringe Neha Kakkar and Tony Kakkar Song" with another one commenting, "Tony Kakkar songs are all about saying one word 100 times in a 2 min song."

It is getting unbearable at this point. Neha Kakkar tries her best to look cute and hot but she ends up looking cringe every single time. "What in world is this crap by #NehaKakkar Has she done any surgery to look even more shorter? Moreover why she's trying to be fake KOREAN..? She's landed in between, not Indian nor Korean feel in the song. Married women should stop doing such sh#t," an angry user wrote. Another social media shared, "Neha Kakkar is trying her best to become like an international pop star, but she looks very cringe and is just handing out lollipops to everyone in the name of lyrics." "Neha Kakkar has almost fallen to Dhinchak Pooja's level of talent. Hard to believe she's the same artist who used to rule the Indian music charts just 7-8 years ago," one wrote, while another one shared, "Seriously what is wrong with Neha Kakkar? Has she lost the plot n actually believe as if she is giving some K-Pop vibe?" "Trying hard to act like K pop star... what's wrong with this woman??" a social media user wondered, while another one said, "Trying to copy Hollywood singers like Taylor Swift and Ketty Perry, she looks so cringe and stupid. On top of that, the music is so crap that it is making absolute p**p to watch and hear." "What kind of compulsion did Neha Kakkar have that she had to do such an obscene dance step in the song? Today, this obscenity has crossed the extreme limit. This is not just a dance step of theirs but a mockery of our culture," one comment read.

Amid the criticism, some social media users have also stepped in to support the singer. They praised her for trying something different and moving beyond familiar territory. Her supporters felt the experiment deserved space, even if it did not land for everyone. Earlier this year, she was in the news for a different reason after a video from her Melbourne concert went viral. The clip showed her breaking down on stage after facing boos from sections of the crowd. Reports claimed she arrived several hours late to the show.

She later denied the claims, saying the incident was misrepresented.
